WALL ST. FINANCIAL

PITT FACES STALWART OHIO STATE; MUST FIGHT TO KEEP SLATE CLEAN

Today

Earth and the Senate.
Wall Street Crumbs.
Safety in Insurance.
A News Theater.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE earth turns on its axis about 1,000 miles an hour, 25,000 miles in 24 hours. Because of its size, the earth's motion is slow.

At the same comparative rate of speed, you could not detect any motion in a cart wheel, revolving once in 24 hours.

HOWEVER, as President Hoover justly complains, there is something slower, and that's the Senate's motion on the tariff.

It has been considering a tariff bill, as the President says, "since June, with 15 schedules to work out, and has not yet completed Schedule 1."

IN THE Wall street canyon, leading from Trinity Church, where men give thanks for winning, down to East river docks, convenient for jumping, all was quiet yesterday. Sparrows were picking up crumbs from messenger boys' lunches. They are scarce. Wall street boys usually go to restaurants.

IN BROKERS' offices, clerks and bosses were working day and night, catching up. They also had collected some crumbs, while customers were collecting large crumbs of experience.

WILL ROGERS says it will comfort "poor people who lost their stock in the late crash to know that it has fallen into the hands of Mr. Rockefeller, who will see that it has a good home."

MR. ROGERS, not by accident the richest actor and manager in the world, knows that Mr. Rockefeller's purchases plus purchases by George F. Baker and others, and the wise increase in dividends of corporations that could afford it, saved thousands of the little people from complete destruction.

F. H. ECKER, president of Metropolitan Life, biggest insurance company in the world, replies, to a question concerning recent Wall street excitement:

"Drastic deflation of market prices of shares of common stock in nowise affects life insurance policies issued by companies whose investment practice, guided by laws such as those of the state of New York, or the sound judgment of executives, excludes common stocks from their holdings.

"More than ever has this recent experience demonstrated that life insurance is the safest, most dependable repository for the savings of millions of our population, furnishing at the same time sound protection against loss which follows in the wake of death."

NEW YORK has the world's first news theater. Its moving pictures show news events only, and, being "sound newsreels," they tell both the ear and the eye what has happened.

The first "news theater" in the world, the Embassy, exhibiting Fox-Hearst news pictures from all over the earth, showed last night actual moving pictures of the Italian Crown Prince visiting his fiancee in Belgium. The noise of a shot, fired in a futile attempt to assassinate him, was heard in a theater 3,000 miles away.

You would not have expected that 25 years ago.

ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR., head of General Motors, back from Europe yesterday, sees no "logical reason for such action as has occurred in security values."

Business is sound, says Mr. Sloan. He believes that the quarter earnings for General Motors will be ahead of the same period for last year.

EDSEL FORD announces reductions in prices, expressing the belief of the Ford organization that "basically, the industry and business of the country are sound."

THERE is no better contribution to prosperity than to give buyers more for their money, when greater efficiency makes that possible.

It isn't how much money you get, but what you get for your money that counts.

KEMAL PASHA, boss of Turkey, wants to join the "United States of Europe," if and when that brotherhood is organized.

If Mussolini should follow Kemal's example, and join also, the United States of Europe would have material for a first-class war within its borders from the start.

Mussolini has not forgotten Kemal's statement, "If you ever attack Turkey, your one difficulty will be to find room to bury the Italians that I shall kill for you."

NOVA SCOTIA, having enough of prohibition, votes to end it and substitute sale of alcohol by the government. Ten years ago the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of prohibition.

Rum runners and bootleggers financed and worked for the prohibition campaign, which is not surprising.

PITTSBURGH AIR LINE BANNED

Newark Officials, Piqued At Being 'Slighted', Refuse Passenger Service Permit

International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 2.—Displeased at the manner in which, he said, the Pittsburgh Airways, Inc., announced and began to use the Newark Airport as "a New York terminal," Peter J. O'Toole, supervisor of the local airport, declared today that the Airways company would not be allowed to use the port until arrangements for that purpose were made with the city of Newark.

Two Pittsburgh Airway planes arrived here yesterday. They carried letters to Mayor James J. Walker and Police Commissioner Grover Whalen, and also left letters for officials of Philadelphia and Camden when the planes stopped at Camden airport.

NEWARK OVERLOOKED

However, they brought nothing at all to Mayor Jerome T. Congleton and other Newark officials.

The two pilots left word to have the planes ready to leave today. Supervisor O'Toole said the planes would be ready, but that they would not be allowed to take passengers back to Pittsburgh.

"They can't expect to come in here unless they make arrangements wtih Newark first," said O'Toole. "They have had circulars printed and advertised the service, but told us nothing about it."

"NOT NEW YORK SUBURB"

He pointed out that Newark was neither a suburb nor a part of New York City.

The Airways' advertisements call for trips east from Pittsburgh to New York by way of Camden on Tuesdays and Fridays, leaving Pittsburgh at 12:30 p. m., stopping at Camden at 3:30 p. m., and arriving at Newark at 4:30 p. m. The westbound planes are scheduled to leave Newark at 12:30 p. m. Wednesdays and Saturdays, stopping at Camden at 1:30 p. m.

Ted Taney piloted one of the ships here, with Mrs. F. Le Moyne Page as co-pilot. The other was in charge of Bob Dake, whose co-pilot was Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, winner of the women's air derby.

The passengers on the initial flight were Capt. L. F. Beery, Arthur Kaufmann, Oliver Kaufmann, Gordon Flagg, Ralph Nicholson, H. E. Loyett and George R. Dorman.

BROOKHART TO TESTIFY ON RUM

Iowa Dry, Subpenaed in Quiz, Will 'Tell All He Knows' About 'Wet' Senate Dinner

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, the Iowa dry, is going to have an opportunity to tell a District grand jury all about that "wet dinner" which he says he attended here several years ago where the bottles were placed on the floor under the table within easy reach of senatorial hands.

Goaded to action by criticism of the conduct of his office, District Attorney Leo Rover has subpenaed the Iowan to appear before the grand jury next Wednesday and repeat under oath the story he told the Senate of how Walter Fahy, a New York broker, gave a dinner party to "get acquainted with new senators" and how all a guest had to do when he wanted a drink was to reach under the table for a convenient flask.

PROMISES TO 'TELL ALL'

Brookhart said today:

"Certainly I will testify, and tell all I know."

When Brookhart told the story on the Senate floor, in the course of general debate, he said Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, was among those present.

Somewhat discomfited, Smoot said he had "no recollection of being present or of seeing any liquor."

"Oh, yes, the Senator from Utah was there," replied Brookhart.

"I have no recollection of it," reiterated Smoot.

OTHERS MAY BE CALLED

The Fahy dinner was attended by a number of senators, according to Brookhart.

Presumably he will give the grand jury the names of others present, with the prospect that they will be summoned to testify.

The District Attorney's somewhat belated action in summoning Brookhart followed the capture by local police of a bootlegger known as "the man in the green hat" on the steps of the Senate office building late Thursday, while in the act of delivering rye whisky to some occupant of the building.

BIG 10 TEAM INVADES BOWL

Weather May Cut Crowd; O. S. U. Lineup Uncertain; Williams on Injured List

By JESS CARVER.

The Western Conference today wheels one of its big guns into action in an attempt to stop the victorious advance of the Pitt Panthers toward the golden goal of an undefeated and untied football season.

Ohio State, facing the Panthers here in the Stadium, is the first Big Ten school to make a gridiron invasion of this city, and it is fitting and proper that the appearance of the Buckeye eleven here may be before another record-breaking crowd, the second in two weeks.

A steady drizzle, putting in an overnight appearance, threatened to put a crimp in the crowd, which earlier in the week had promised to equal, if not surpass, the 66,000 turnout that saw Tech and Notre Dame a week ago. Today's crowd, even with the rain, is expected to total at least 60,000.

FORMIDABLE FOE

Half a hundred white-jerseyed hefties from the neighboring state descended on Pittsburgh yesterday, and swarmed over the Stadium gridiron in a peppery practice in the afternoon. This half a hundred, pointing with pride to a clear slate except for a single tie.

Michigan and Iowa, Conference rivals of the Buckeyes, have fallen before Sam Willaman's eleven so far, and Indiana has been tied. The Ohio Staters, held in but slight regard prior to the opening of the campaign, with a new coaching system and a squad of doubtful strength, has been the sensation of the Big Ten struggle to date.

Pitt breaks into the competition with the Big Ten a favorite in the wagering and in the minds of those souls who know one end of a football from their elbows. Despite the fact that the Panthers have yet to attain top form, they have demonstrated tremendous power, and have brushed aside the brave challenge of Nebraska, Duke and West Vir-

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—The national debt on October 31 was $16,697,800,000, the Treasury announced today, a reduction of $847,000,000 during the year.

For the first four months of the fiscal year, ended October 31, the government's ledgers show a surplus of $107,000,000 over the same period last year. Receipts increased $117,000,000 to $1,190,708,000.

'Miss Pat' Holds Record for Thrills

He faced death to taunt the girl he loved—but just then fate played her most cruel trick—and the plane swooped dizzily into a tailspin that stabbed the sky with flames of lightning! Here is the supreme thrill in a serial that sets a new standard in American fiction—"Miss Pat," by Elenore Meherin, author of "Chickie."

Although she is the author of hits that have swept the country and established new records for popularity, it is doubtful if Miss Meherin has ever created a story that will fire the imagination and stir the pulse as much as "Miss Pat." Start "Miss Pat" next Wednesday in the daily Sun-Telegraph.

River Dredge Sinks, Deck Hand Missing

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 2.—(AP.)—The United State dredge Gamma, pride of the government's Mississippi River fleet, rested on the bottom of the river today near New Madrid, Mo., with one of her crew missing and the 39 others aboard probably owing their lives to the quick action of a passing river steamer in launching lifeboats.

The Gamma sank in 50 feet of water six miles north of Naw Madrid late yesterday. Emerson E. Harvey, of Caruthersville, Mo., a deckhand, was reported mising and possbly drowned.

Gram Dunham, Wife Of Fiddler, Kills Deer

NORWAY, Me., Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Gram Dunham, wife of Mellie, Maine's famous fiddler, has no fault to find with her eyesight—or trigger finger. Word came out of the woods that the 71-year-old lady saw a deer over her gunsights on a recent hunting trip and downed the animal.

Further, Gram insisted on dressing and quartering the deer herself. Meanwhile, Mellie stayed at home and minded the fire.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—The Radio Commission announced today that 20 broadcasting stations had been ordered off the air because they failed to file applications for renewals of their licenses on November 1.

It was said at the commission that action will be taken in the courts to prevent any station operating without a license.

In order to renew the licenses now public hearings will have to be held in each individual case. The stations ordered off were:

DELAY BINGHAM CENSURE VOTE

WASHINGTON, No. 2.—(INS.)—Postponing immediate action because of the absence of Senators, Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, this afternoon served notice on the Senate he would demand a vote Monday on the resolution of censure against Senator Hiram Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, for his employment of a paid lobbyist during the tariff hearings.

The resolution would condemn Bingham's employment of Charles L. Eyanson, manufacturers' agent, as "contrary to good morals and senatorial ethics."

The announcement by Norris meant the issue of meting out punishment to Bingham would be settled Monday, since the resolution is of the highest privilege and will supplant all other parliamentary business until the final vote is taken.

Bingham could avoid this terrific indictment at the hands of the Senate if he would agree to apologize publicly for employing Eyan-

Steel Rail Purchases Break 5-Year Record

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—American Railways in October purchased more steel rail than in any other month for the past five years, according to the monthly summary of railway purchases compiled by Railway Age. Rail orders totaled 794,046 tons, exceeding every other month since 1924, but two, by more than 300,000 tons.

HOOVER'S 'GANG' GOING TO CAMP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—A reunion of "that old neighborhood gang" is going to be held over this week-end at President Hoover's mountain camp at the headwaters of the Rapidan River in Virginia.

The lure of wonderful Indian summer weather and the prospect of a mountainside in flame with autumn coloring prompted Mr. and Mrs. Hoover today to decide on one final visit to their Blue Ridge retreat. With them as week-end guests will go 19 of their friends, for the most part recruited from the little colony that lives on S street in the immediate vicinity of the house the Hoovers occupied before election.

As usual, the party will motor down this afternoon.

Dry Raider Guilty In Oklahoma Killing

CHANDLER, Okla., Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Jeff D. Harris, unofficial prohibition enforcement officer, was convicted by a jury here today of first degree manslaughter for the killing of Oscar Lowery, Pottawatomie County farmer, in a liquor raid July 4. Punishment was left to the court.

SPRINTER HURT IN FIRE LEAP

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Frank Wyckoff, University of Southern California champion sprinter, suffered an injured ankle when a fire that destroyed the Kappa Alpha Fraternity house on the U. S. C. campus forced him to jump from a third-story window. He landed on the veranda roof, and dropped to safety after the flames had cut off his escape by the stairs.

The fire, the third to attack fraternity row within a few days, caused loss of approximately $20,000 in destruction of the building and its contents.

Detectives and fire department officials began an investigation to determine if a pyromaniac might be responsible for the recurring blazes on the campus. Detectives said the fires in each case started in the attic, and were similar in other respects.

Plot to Kidnap Pantages' Daughter Investigated

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Investigators for the district attorney's office today were tracing a report that Carmen Pantages, pretty 19-year-old daughter of Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, is the object of a kidnaping plot.

According to the district attorney's office, Miss Pantages yesterday received an anonymous letter which indicated that she was to be abducted and held for ramson.

The writer requested the millionaire's daughter to meet him at a designated place in West Hollywood, according to the information given out.

The writer promised to give her information which would prove helpful to her father, who is facing a 50-year sentence following his conviction for an attack on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old danseuse.

Pantages appeared before Judge Charles Fricke yesterday for sentence. A continuance was granted until November 9 on the plea that he wished time in which to prepare motion for a new trial.

Princess Ileana Calm As Yacht Wrecks

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—The coolness and poise of the Rumanian Princess Ileana during a near shipwreck on the Black Sea was glowingly described today in dispatches from Vienna published by the Daily Express.

A tidal wave struck the yacht Istrava, aboard which the princess was journeying to Balczyk. The wave washed over the ship and tossed it upon a hidden reef.

The princess was lowered into a small tossing dingy in which she braved the dangerous rocking of the craft and terrific salt spray as bravely as any of her sailor companions. Meanwhile, efforts were made to ascertain whether the yacht could be refloated before being battered too badly against the reef.

When it was found that the yacht was in no danger, the princess returned aboard, refusing to abandon it for other craft which had come to the rescue. She then aided the crew in refloating it.

FALL SCORNS IMMUNITY TO FIGHT FOR VINDICATION

ABSOLUTION HOPE RESTS IN APPEAL

Rejects Suspended Sentence To Carry Case to Higher Courts; Note Denies Guilt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Convicted of bribery but vigorously asserting his innocence, Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding cabinet, today rested his hope upon an appeal to higher courts.

Beyond the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in which he was found guilty of accepting a bribe of $100,000 from Edward L. Doheny in return for executing the famous lease on the Elk Hills Naval oil reserve, lay but two tribunals—the District of Coumbia Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court of the United States.

In spite of the fact that a retraction of his appeal would bring about a suspension of the one-year jail sentence imposed upon him by Justice William Hitz, together with a fine of $100,000 the former cabinet officer went purposefully forward with his efforts to obtain an ultimate exoneration.

APPEALS TO PUBLIC

For the first time since the oil scandals came to the attention of the nation, the former secretary late yesterday issued a public statement, summing up his version of the naval petroleum reserve leases. In this he said that his "borrowing" of money from Doheny may have been "unethical," that he committed an "unspeakable blunder" in writing to the Senate committee that he obtained the money from E. B. McLean, and finally he entered a plea that the American people do not believe him "guilty of this damnable crime."

The next step for the convicted former cabinet officer was the appeal to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Like all higher tribunals, this court is empowered to review cases brought to it not only upon questions of law involved, but also upon the merits of the evidence, and to set aside jury verdicts if it sees fit.

The principal contention of Fall's attorneys is that Justice Hitz, in instructing the jury, went beyond his province in telling the panel that it should not be swayed by sympathy for the aged and ailing defendant, should decide the case upon the evidence before it and leave all questions of mercy to the court. Fall contends that this was tantamount to telling the jury to return a verdict of guilty with a recommendation for mercy, as was done. The appeal also takes exception to numerous other sections of Justice Hitz' charge.

DIVORCEE ASKS $25,000 BALM

Mrs. Anna Bruce, of 3530 Louisa street, divorced wife of Albert D. Bruce, has filed a $25,000 breach of promise suit against Howard Emil Bolton, 48, a bachelor, who lives at Haddon Hall.

According to her statement filed in Common Pleas Court, she avers that on the day of her divorce, April 14, 1921, Bolton asked her to marry him. The engagement was made in her home, which at that time was at 3468 Bates street, she charges.

The papers say that Bolton showed marked attention to her, took her to parties, was very affectionate, but on August 20, 1928, their relations ceased. He had grown cool toward her before that time, she charges. Her counsel is Samuel Goldstock.

DRY, BUT NOT FANATIC, SAYS YOUNGQUIST

Minnesotan Also to Enforce Dope and Tax Laws in Mrs. Willebrandt's Post

ST. PAUL, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Commenting on his appointment as assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition, G. A. Youngquist said:

"I am dry politically, and personally," he said, "but I am not a fanatic on the subject." He declined to elaborate.

Born in Sweden in 1885, Youngquist was brought to this country by his parents two years later. The family first went to Illinois and then to St. Paul. After attending public schools, Youngquist worked in a business college and was graduated from the St. Paul Law School in 1909, being admitted to the bar soon afterwards.

His first practice was at Thief River Falls, Minn., and later at Crookston, which still is his home. County Attorney of Polk County for four years, until 1918, he joined the Army in that year with rank of captain, and was appointed assistant attorney general of Minnesota in 1921. Seven years later he was appointed attorney general and a few months after that was elected to the post for the term expiring in 1931.

Youngquist is vice president of the National Association of Attorneys General, member of the American Legion, a Mason and a Unitarian.

MINNESOTANS RULE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—G. Aaron Youngquist, attorney general of Minnesota, is to take over the prohibition enforcement post in the Department of Justice which Mabel Walker Willebrandt held for eight years.

Announcement of the selection of Youngquist was made yesterday at the White House in a statement prepared by the Department of Justice and describing the new assistant attorney general as "dry politically and personally."

The appointment of Mr. Youngquist gives the control of making the dry laws effective largely to Minnesotans. Attorney General Mitchell and James M. Doran, the prohibition commissioner, are from that state. Also the prohibitory law was written by another Minnesotan, Andrew J. Volstead, a former representative.

Youngquist will be in charge of enforcing the income tax and narcotic laws as well as prohibition.

U. S. to Aid Crew Of Sunken Vessel

NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Immigration officials announced that the crew of the British vessel James B., which sank off Long Island Wednesday night after her stern had been cut off by the Coast Guard Patrol Boat Cahoone, would be taken to Boston and from there would be sent by boat to their homes in Nova Scotia.

The announcement brought to an official close the inquiry instituted by customs, coast guard and immigration authorities after the British vessel's crew of eight men had been picked up by the Cahoone following the sinking of the ship.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—An examination at the Emergency Hospital here of Minister Michael MacWhite, of the Irish Free State, who was struck by a hit-and-run motorist, revealed that the Minister had five fractured ribs in addition to lacerations of the head and bruises of the body. While the injuries are painful, it was said at the hospital the Minister's condition is not serious and he is expected to be able to leave for his home within three or four days.

AIMEE FACING COURT TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Aimee Semple McPherson, widely known evangelist, today is facing possible criminal action following charges by former associates that she mishandled funds belonging to her congregation, according to Deputy District Attorney Daniel Beecher.

This statement was made after the grand jury spent most of yesterday investigating charges brought by the Rev. John Goben, former superintendent of the Four Square Gospel Lighthouse Association.

Mrs. McPherson is charged with maintaining a secret bank account of $100,000 under an alias. Although the Evangelist appeared before the grand jury yesterday afternoon with a large box full of cancelled checks, it is understood that she was not asked about the alleged bank account.

Subpenas brought four of the Evangelist's associates, including her mother, before the investigating body, presumably to produce records of the Angelus Temple Association.

Blast Kills Nine On Spanish Steamer

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Nine persons were killed today when a terrific explosion occurred aboard the Spanish steamer Kontzesi as it was leaving the port of Bilbao, according to a Central News dispatch received from Madrid. The steamer was bound for Santander.

HOOFS HIMSELF OUT OF HER LIFE

Raymer G. McClaren, handsome and a good "hoofer," picked pretty and graceful Beatrice B. McLaren as his wife. That was more than two years ago. They "hoofed it" to Wheeling, planning to dance through life together, and were wed there.

But six days passed. His feet began to twitch. He "hoofed" himself out of their little apartment at 2828 Bedford avenue. And his toes didn't turn back in again.

Mrs. McClaren, 21, in divorce court yesterday testified that she could give no reason why her husband left her. Judge James R. Macfarlane heard the testimony.

The libellant is a telephone operator, and was represented by Attorney J. F. Gloeckner.

Mrs. King G. Gillette Seeks Reno Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Sherman S. Cark, business manager for King Gaines Gillette, son of the safety razor manufacturer, disclosed here today that Gillette and his wife, the former Elizabeth Caldwell, of Grand Rapids, Mich, had separated, and that Mrs. Gillette had gone to Reno, Nev., to seek a divorce.

The couple have been married 15 years. The contemplated court action was described by Clark as "a most friendly agreement," under which the only child, Celeste, 14, is to remain with her father in Hollywood for one year.

LITTLE HOPE SEEN FOR TARIFF

Many Plans Offered for Speed, But Final Action During Session Is Doubtful

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—President Hoover's demand that the Senate pass a tariff bill within two weeks today produced many proposals to speed action but had produced no concrete results.

Although Senator Jones, of Washington, acting Republican leader, declared he is "hopeful," it appeared doubtful whether any agreement could be reached which would assure final action on the bill in the special session.

Among the suggested plans for speeding up the Senate are:

Naming of committee of two Democrats, two regular Republicans and one insurgent to attempt an agreement on most of the rates in the bill, leaving the big question open to a free-for-all debate.

Counter proposal of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, Democratic finance committee chief, to name sub-committees representing the three factions to attempt agreement upon finance committee amendments.

"A "gentleman's agreement" to curtail debate on individual items, by permitting sub-committee chairman to present facts briefly on most items and then vote.

WORK ON COMPROMISES

A growing belief on the part of some senators from Eastern industrial states that the Democratic-Insurgent Republican coalition will not only defeat tariff increases but slash rates in the Fordney-McCumber law reared up as a formidable obstacle to any plan designed to obtain quick action. Some of these senators, high protectionists, frankly declare that industries would be better off if the tariff bill is killed.

Nevertheless, Senator Jones continued informal conferences in an effort to obtain an agreement. Senator McNary (Rep.), of Oregon, negotiated with various groups, and a half-dozen senators individually were working for compromises.

REED QUIZZED ON NOTE

The Senate forged into a brief flurry of excitement over the letter written by Senator Reed to a Minneapolis editor in which he referred to certain senatorial opponents of the pending tariff as more dangerous to the economic interests of the United States "than Communists."

After having the leter read into the record, Senator Wheeler, of Montana, demanded that the Pennsylvania senator identify specifically those to whom he referred.

"In fairness to those Republican senators who campaigned for the Republican ticket in the last national election, I think the senator should name those he had in mind," said Wheeler.

"If the senator," said Reed, "thinks he will get me to make an unkind remark about one of my colleagues, he is pursuing a futile task. The country knows and the senator himself knows the names of these to whom I referred."

Reed's letter to the Minneapolis editor, made public here yesterday, contained an appeal for the election of senators in that section who could be counted upon to cooperate with the industrial East in framing tariff which would be of mutual interest to agriculture and industry.

Weather Conditions.

The skies have cleared over the Central Mississippi Valley states, and over Michigan, but from Indiana eastward cloudiness continues, and it is raining in the Ohio valley from Pittsburgh to Louisville. It is also raining southward over Kentucky and Eastern Tennessee. The barometer is rising over this section, and the indications are that the rain will end by noon. The barometer is relatively high over the Lower Ohio Valley states and westward over the southern plains and relatively low over Canada.

River Conditions.

The rivers are still stationary except for a slight rise in the upper Allegheny, due to moderately heavy rains over the Northwest counties. Meadville reported 1.05 inches of rain. Stage at Franklin is 1.4 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.4; Pittsburgh, 11.0; Dam No. 2, 7.1; Dam No. 6, 8.0; Dam No. 9, 9.0, and Dam No. 12, 5.1. The dams are up.

son. He declined to do so, even though many stalwart Republicans urged him to make the "amende honorable."

NO DOUBT OF APPROVAL

There was no doubt whatever that the resolution would be approved if brought to a vote. The attitude of the regular Republican organization was sealed when Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Rep.), of Indiana, member of the lobby investigating committee, announced on the floor of the Senate that he disapproved of Bingham's action and that it would meet with "the Republican party's disapproval." Only a handful of Bingham's closest personal friends, chiefly from New England, were expected to oppose the resolution.

A movement meanwhile was afoot to "tone down" the resolution, but Senator Norris indicated he would oppose any such concession. One move was to change the word "condemn" to "disapprove" while another would strike out the phrase "contrary to good morals." With Norris opposing the proposed changes, they appeared doomed.

Build Boulder Dam Higher, City Urges

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Increase from 550 to 575 feet in the height of Boulder dam was asked in a resolution ordered drawn by the metropolitan water district board at its meeting yesterday.

Proponents of the increased height declared that the extra 25 feet would supply an additional 100,000 horsepower of electric current for consumers.

2 Ambridge Children Run Down By Auto

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Nov. 2.—Helen Poluka, 9, and Jenny Lapensky, 8, were injured when they darted from the curb into the path of an automobile driven by M. E. Cook, of Ambridge, police report.

Blue-Gray Union 'Beyond Grave,' Says G.A.R. Head

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 2.—(INS.)—A reunion of the Blue and the Gray will be beyond the grave, not this side, in the opinion of National Commander Edwin J. Foster, of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Commander Foster had written Gen. R. A. Sneed of the Confederate veterans at Oklahoma City, Okla., that a get-together was possible if the Confederates would forego carrying the Stars and Bars in the parade. But word from Gen. Sneed was to the effect that the veterans of the Southland would never parade without their war flags.

YOUTHS ADMIT EIGHT HOLDUPS

State highway police today were checking up stories told them by two young men who said they were Alex Kritchner and Richard Guffie, both of Bairsford, Pa., arrested following a chase in the Harmar road, Harmar Township, last night. In Springdale Police Station they admitted, police said, that they committed eight holdups in the Allegheny Valley district during the last two months.

Their arrest came a short time after they were alleged to have robbed a clothing store in North Bessemer, and escaped in an automobile owned by W. C. Hartman. The latter, with Corp. L. L. Martin, of the state highway patrol, pursued them into Harmar Township and they arrested them. Both suspects carried revolvers, police said.

5 COMMUNISTS FREE ON BAIL

Five Communists, one of them a woman, were at liberty on bail today, following their arrest last night when police at Arnold broke up a Communist meeting in Umbria Hall, Third avenue, Arnold. Among those arrested was Pat Devine, Communist organizer, who was arrested several times in Pittsburgh when police broke up meetings.

According to police, the meeting was held without a permit, and after police had ordered the participants to leave. According to Devine the meeting was held to give the candidates for office in Arnold on the Communist ticket, an opportunity to express their platforms.

Others arrested were Leon Galbrish, Communist candidate for burgess; Carlo DiSantos, candidate for council; John Sara, candidate for tax collector; Devine, and Pearl Mann, a representative of the Young Communist League.

Police Chief P. F. Walsh entered the hall shortly before the meeting started and ordered those present to leave. The meeting, however, continued, and as each speaker finished his address he was taken to the borough lockup.

The charge preferred against the prisoners was that of violating a borough ordinance. All five posted $15 forfeits pending a hearing Monday before Burgess Harry D. Koessler.

Miner Caught Under Slate Fall, Injured

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 2.—Charles Cooper, 35, of Alicia, was injured severely yesterday when caught under a slate fall while at work.

Death, Injury Mar Opening Of Hunting Season

Allegheny County is fast becoming a community of private hunting preserves, it was revealed with the opening of the season on small game here, hunters generally reporting the finding of more "no trespassing" notices than rabbits and birds.

The season was ushered in to Western Pennsylvania sportsmen with springlike zephyrs, working more or less hardship on the dogs, which tired quickly.

Game was plentiful, but hunting grounds scarce. Practically every farm in Allegheny County is posted, the only lands free to hunters being abandoned mine properties or small tracts in isolated sections where the owners are not concerned.

Numerous accidents marred the season's opening, most of the casualties having been reported from districts outside of Allegheny County.

William Muster, 18, of West Elizabeth, was shot in the left leg while hunting in Elizabeth Township today. At McKeesport Hospital he told authorities he was accidentally shot by Robert Beeler, of 837 Van Kirk street, Clairton, a companion.

W. P. Lohr, of Eleanor street, Pitcairn, was wounded in Westmoreland County.

Other hunting accidents in Western Pennsylvania follow:

Dubois—John Wilson, 17, of Woodland, killed when own gun was discharged accidentally. Fred Zeigler, farmer, near Luthersburg, found unconscious from gunshot wound.

Sharon—William Robinson, 70, died from heart attack while hunting.

Grove City—H. L. Buchannon, wounded in both legs when accidentally shot by companions.

Greensburg—George Panick, 18, of Elizabeth, accidentally shot by fellow hunter near Latrobe.

New Brighton—John Guisti, 28, shot in eye by unknown hunter.

Waynesburg—Harold Henderson, 15, of Spraggs, injured in foot by accidental discharge of own gun.

Vandergrift—Ignace Minarik shot at a swaying bush and wounded his 10-year-old son, Mike, 12 pellets entering the boy's leg.

MARY JANE'S MARRIED!

HALT IN TRADING AIDS BROKERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Wall street workers began to see their way out today as they labored to clear away the mass of accounting piled up in four record-breaking days in which 43,499,540 shares changed hands on the stock exchange.

Trading was suspended yesterday and today, but activity was not. Brokers and their staffs hoped to have their books straightened out and all the tangles unsnarled so that trading could be resumed without difficulty Monday. There will be another holiday Tuesday which is election day.

The floor of the exchange yesterday presented as busy a scene as any ordinary session. About 800 brokers were on the floor most of the day closing transactions that had not been completed at the end of the three-hour session Thursday.

In the brokers' offices clerks toiled over their books and adding machines and messengers flitted in and out.

Although members of the stock exchange were forbidden to trade over the counter, there were some sales of stock in the street by nonmembers, who set up impromptu markets in corridors and on street corners. Such deals were for cash.

Wall street looked toward the re-opening of the exchange Monday with optimism.

The upward trend of prices two days after the tremendous slump coupled with the reduction of the Federal Reserve rediscount rate from six to five per cent and the drop in the Bank of England rate from six and one-half to six per cent were taken to augur a stabilized market for the immediate future. The contraction of $1,096,000,000 in brokers' loans this week also was a favorable factor.

MARY JANE WED, SECRET OUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Broadway found out today about the secret marriage of one of its dainty favorites, the dancing Mary Jane Kittell, of Pittsburgh.

Broadway found it out when Mary Jane's new husband, the young, moneyed Sam Martin, of Chicago, was arrested in Paris (France, Europe) for laying a mean left against the tender jaw of a French bar boy.

Then was it revealed that Sam was honeymooning with the little girl whose dancing in "Whoopee" and other Ziegfeld shows has pleased critical customers.

It wasn't many months ago that Mary Jane divorced her first husband in Greensburg (Pennsylvania, United States).

The smile that usually lights up the features of Mary Jane, who learned her a-b-c's, to say nothing of the d-e-f's, at Mt. Mercy Academy in Pittsburgh, was swept away when she learned that her husband was behind one of the Paris bars (jails) but everything was all right again once Sam hired a lawyer.

Idaho's Governor Not to Fight Borah

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—In a long distance telephone message from Portland, Ore., to the Statesman, Gov. H. C. Baldridge of Idaho, denied reports in Eastern papers that he was a candidate for the Senate against Senator William E. Borah, and insisted his support was squarely behind the Senator in his tariff fight.

He said the talk of punishing Borah was "amusing" up to the point where is came to using himself as the instrument for the punishment at which point, he said, it ceased to be funny.

'Cupid' Is Football Fan At Harvard Game

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Cupid becomes a football fan in Harvard Stadium this afternoon when the University of Florida meets the Crimson in football combat.

With Cupid perched atop the massive concrete and steel structure on the Florida side, "she" will cheer her sweetheart and hero. On the playing field "he" will lead his cohorts—he hopes to victory.

That a romance of the college football world was blooming right before the eyes of 40,000 game spectators gave a romantic touch to the Florida-Harvard battle.

That wedding bells will ring tomorrow for the captain of the University of Florida eleven, became known today when it was learned that Miss Sarah Payne, New York school teacher, will become the bride of Rainey Cawthon, fullback of the 'Gator aggregation.

According to information here, the wedding will take place tomorrow afternoon in New York. It was understood that a church has been chosen and all arrangements made. The entire Florida team, together with Mrs. Dale Van Sickle, wife of the 'Gator all-America end, will attend the nuptials.

Miss Payne, a teacher of drama in New York, arrived here this forenoon and will attend the game this afternoon with Mrs. Van Sickle.

GERMANY O K'S PLEBISCITE ON YOUNG PLAN

Nationalist Leaders Obtain Enough Petitions for Nation-Wide Referendum

International News Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—Germany seemed assured today of a nation-wide referendum on the question whether the Young reparations plan shall be approved and put into effect by Germany.

This apparent certainty resulted from the virtually complete returns from the petitions circulated by the Nationalist party leaders for signatures by qualified electors, demanding such a referendum in case the Reichstag voted approval of the Young plan, which the Nationalists oppose. The Reichstag is believed to favor approval of the plan by a large majority.

Although not entirely completed, the present total of signatures obtained on the Nationalist petition is 4,136,348 names, or 9,000 more than the number necessary to compel a referendum. The requisite is 10 per cent. Of the qualified electorate of Germany and the Nationalists have already had a total of 10.8 per cent.

It is believed in political circles that the referendum may not be held until the middle of January, or after the Reichstag's ratification of the Young plan shall have been completed.

Qualified political circles do not necessarily view the large number of signatures secured for the Nationalist referendum petition as signifying the eventual defeat at the hands of the general electorate. While it is admitted that this plan saddles German business and industry with a tremendous load of debt, it is generally held preferable to to the Dawes plan, which the Young plan replaces.

RADICALS BALK AT TARDIEU

PARIS, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—A majority of the radical socialist deputies today voted not to collaborate with Andre Tardieu, French premier-designate, who is trying to form a government.

Their action rendered much more acute the parliamentary crisis precipitated October 22 with the resignation of the Briand government.

The votes in the caucus, taken this morning, were 46 against participation in the projected Tardieu government and 28 in favor.

There was possibility the minority might revolt against the party whip and accept portfolios in the new ministry, in which case M. Tardieu would be able, probably, to manage a precarious majority in the chamber. The impression, however, was that party discipline would prevail and that M. Tardieu would have to offer his ministries elsewhere.

Despite the refusal of radical deputies to collaborate in his projected cabinet, M. Tardieu declared that he would nevertheless form a ministry.

One Slain by Bandits, Office Robbery Fails

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Two robbers yesterday shot and killed Sam Levinson, secretary of the B. and L. Metal Stamping Company, in Brooklyn, in an attempt to rob the offices of the firm. The robbers, each of whom had a pistol, entered the offices and ordered Levinson and three employes to hand them money.

Levinson, shouting "give it to them," ran toward a storage room in the rear and was shot twice in the back. His assailants escaped through the door without obtaining any money.

Va. He graduated from Washington and Jefferson College in 1915 and attended the medical college of the University of Pennsylvania. He leaves his widow and three sons.

Gotham District Boasts Single Downtown Voter

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Manhattan, one of the world's most congested spots, discovered that it has one election district so deserted that only one voter, George Schrader, 32, has registered for the city election next Tuesday.

Election officials explained that houses in the district bounded by Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth streets and Seventh and Eighth avenues were being torn down to make way for new developments. Most of the old residents have moved.

Schrader's vote, whether he casts it or not, will cost the city $240. An election board of four members, a voting machine, and a policeman to keep order, must be at the polling place all day. A registration board spent a week at its post and Schrader was its only customer.

AMATO CANCELS ONE DATE HERE

Pasquale Amato, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will not appear in Pittsburgh with the French-Italian Opera Company, everybody agreed today.

He will, however, sing at the performance of the Pittsburgh Opera Company next Monday.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Opera Company were incensed by reports that Amato would also appear with the French-Italian company, whose local performances are being sponsored by Miss May Beegle.

But Miss Beegle announced today that she had no intention of lending the impression that Amato would appear under her auspices.

This impression was created by circulars of the French-Italian company, which bore Amato's picture.

Casualties Heavy In Chinese Fighting

HANKOW, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Reports from all quarters today agreed that heavy fighting was going on in Northwestern Honan province, but as yet no decisive results were apparent. Both sides were reported to have suffered heavy losses.

It seemed probable that the Nationalist Army was driving the revolting Kuominchun, or "People's Army," westward along the Lunghai Railroad, although the Kuominchun faction was simultaneously reported to be aggressive on all fronts.

Weather Fine, But Overcoats Are Taken

Although the weather was fine, overcoats were in demand last night, according to reports to police. J. G. Doub, of 111 Maple avenue, Edgewood, reported his overcoat was taken from his automobile which was parked on Duquesne way, between Seventh and Eighth streets. Similar thefts were reported by L. Barton, of 3682 Fleming avenue, North Side, whose car was parked in front of the Chatham Hotel, and Norman Werland, of 324 Meyran avenue, from his car parked at Forbes Field.

Polish Row Put Before President

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Settlement of the controversy between Marshal Pilsudski, minister of war, and Ignace Daszinski, speaker of the Diet, appeared improbable today before the return to Warsaw of President Moscicki, who planned to spend several days at his country residence.

The deadlock between the leaders of the opposing political factions had been put up to the President by both. The speaker informed him that he could not open the scheduled fall session of the Diet because of the presence of "armed" army officers who appeared with their chief, Marshal Pilsudski.

RUSSIAN FLIERS REST IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Weary from the strain of their long journey and the strenuous welcome accorded them upon their arrival here, the four members of the crew of the plane Land of the Soviets today planned nothing more exacting than sleep.

The big, low-winged monoplane came to earth at Curtiss Field late yesterday, completing the 12,500-mile flight from Moscow and climaxing the wildest afternoon in the airport's history.

A crowd of 10,000 enthusiastic Soviet adherents, one of the most unruly gatherings ever to visit a metropolitan airport, all but mobbed the quartet of fliers when they landed. Adding to the excitement of the crowd was the unexpected arrival of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who swooped down on the field a few minutes after the Russians. Lindbergh greeted the visitors with a cordial handshake and smiled and congratulated them on their achievement.

Their plans, the fliers confided, were uncertain. Next week, after election, they are looking forward to shaking hands with Mayor Jimmy Walker. Wednesday night they are to be guests of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerrce and the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Astor. On another night, yet to be set, they will be entertained by the Quiet Birdmen.

COLBY MARRIES N. Y. WIDOW

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson administration, whose marriage to Nathalie Sedgwich Colby ended in a divorce at Reno last month, has married Mrs. Anne von Ahlstrand Ely, a widow of New York and Paris.

In taking out a license at the Municipal Building, Mr. Colby gave his age as 59. Mrs. Ely said she was 39. The marriage was performed at the Plymouth Congregational Church, Brooklyn, in the presence of a small group of friends.

Mrs. Ely's husband, Joseph N. Ely, died in New York in 1922. He was the owner of a sand and gravel company. For several years prior to his death he and his wife lived in Paris. She is the daughter of Carl von Ahlstrand of New London, Pa.

Rumors of Colby's engagement to Winifred Sackville Stoner, the former "child prodigy," of Pittsburgh, caused a stir in 1927, but the reports were denied by her mother, Dr. Winifred Sackville Stoner.

CRASH KILLS PARENTS, CHILDREN

Tenth Victim Hurt Seriously; Bodies Strewn 100 Feet Along Railroad Tracks

ELKHART, Ind., Nov. 2.—(AP.)—A train-automobile accident cost the lives of nine members of the same family at Osceola, Ind., six miles west of here, last night, and a tenth was critically injured.

The dead are:

John Flatt, 50, and Mrs. Flatt, 47, both of Newcastle, Ind., their daughter, Mary Flatt, 17.

Dewey Brennan, 29, and Mrs. Brennan, 23, both of Newcastle, son-in-law and daughter of the Flatts.

Three Brennan children, Virgie, 5; Florence, 3, and Robert, 10 months.

A daughter of Ray Vaughn, Betty Bell, 4, received a fractured skull and head lacerations and was in a critical condition in a Mishawaka, Ind., hospital.

Two school girls, the only witnesses, said although the crossing bell was ringing and they screamed a warning at the driver, he drove his car directly in front of the westbound New York Central passenger train. The bodies were strewn along the right of way for 100 feet.

Ray Vaughn, running to the scene from a nearby grocery store, a 2-year-old son in his arms, stumbled over the body of his mother-in-law lying in the grass along the rails. The family had been visiting at Vaughn's home.

12 INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

WAGGONER, Ill., Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Five rear coaches of the Illinois Central's "Diamond Special" were derailed early today and a dozen persons injured, two of them seriously, when the rails spread at a point between here and Litchfield.

Mrs. Ida Judd, of St. Louis, and Charles Henderson, Negro porter, of Chicago, were the most seriously injured of the 12 victims.

The crash occurred about 1:50 a. m., when all had retired for the night.

The five derailed cars were two Pullmans, two day coaches and one club car.

Pitt Fraternity Houses In Their Brightest Garb

The University of Pittsburg's fraternity men have their houses all decked out today for the homecoming of alumni and also to celebrate the first Pitt-Ohio State game.

It is not every occasion that calls for gala colors and bright lights in Pitt's fraternity homes, but on this particular day the university will award a silver plaque and a silver loving cup as first and second prizes for the best-decorated houses.

When the old grads return they will be greeted as never before. Many of them may never know that prizes were awarded for the most colorful house, and therefore have the impression that for them only did the colors burst forth.

The undergraduates seem certain that their interior and exterior decorating will also prove appropriate in celebrating a victory over Ohio.

CHURCHES HERE TO OBSERVE REFORMATION SUNDAY

PASTORS PLAN FOR SPECIAL SERVICES

Lutherans to Feature Event With Mass Meeting at Carnegie Music Hall

Reformation Sunday will be observed in several of the Pittsburgh churches tomorrow. The largest of the meetings will take place in Memorial Hall tomorrow evening when the Lutheran churches of Pittsburgh and vicinity will hold a joint reformation mass meeting at Carnegie Music Hall under the auspices of the Lutheran Brotherhood of Pittsburgh.

This mass meeting commemorates the event of October 31, 1517, when Dr. Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses to the church door at Wittenberg.

ASSAILS G. O. P. IN VOTE CASES

The refusal of the Board of Registration Commissioners to purge the vote books of "from 25,000 to 40,000 names" was attacked by Donald C. Anderson of the elections committee of the Bar Association, speaking last night from KQV.

He urged that every voter cast his ballot against the Republican organization, charging that that group will do nothing "to right the abominable conditions which have existed for 20 years."

"The issue is no longer one of party against party but of honesty against fraud and right against wrong," he said.

Anderson charged that witnesses before the registration commission have been coached "by political henchmen to perjure themselves," have been openly advised by an assistant city solicitor to tell nothing, and that the district attorney has refused to take action when presented with facts that warranted immediate prosecution.

POLITICAL FOE CALLED FAIR

While the political fight for the office of Burgess in Wilkinsburg grew hotter today, there was no bitterness between William M. Turner, Republican candidate and Sheridan Heep, independent candidate for that office.

Attorney Roy T. Bostwick, principal speaker at a Turner rally last night in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel credited Heep with being a fair opponent and told the Turner supporters the paper had been distributed by persons not connected with any political organization.

The paper is said to have contained slanderous remarks against Turner and against Police Chief Wallace Bishop and Constable Adam Fornoff. As a result of its distribution, Chief Bishop, through his attorney, Ralph H. Smith, filed charges of libel against C. A. Boddie, of Montier street, Wilkinsburg. Boddie is at liberty under bond pending a hearing on the charges before Alderman T. A. Flanigan.

SERMONETTE

"WHY GO TO CHURCH?"

By REV. NORMAN C. MILLIRON,
Pastor of First Evangelical Church

"The Church of the Living God, the pillar and ground of the Truth." I Timothy 3:15.

The critics of the church today are legion. There are those who talk glibly about the passing of the church. They publish from the house tops that its death knell has been sounded. It is often regarded as an institution that has served its day and, therefore, should cease to be.

But, let it be remembered that the Christian Church was not born to die. Whatever its weaknesses may be, its glory does not belong to a dead and buried past. Deep down, beneath all the visible defects, there is still an abundance of Pentecostal passion and vitality.

O where are kings and empires now,
Of old that went and came?
But, Lord, Thy Church is praying
yet,
A thousand years the same.

Let us hasten to say that the hope of humanity lies in the saving and uplifting ministry of the church. Where will you find another group of people who are as passionate for the welfare of their fellowmen as are the people of the churches. They are possessed of deep religious convictions and certainties that give to their faith in humanity a power and a vitality which are compelling.

Daniel Webster was altogether right when he declared that free institutions could not long endure if the American Sunday was gone, and without moral instruction in the church once each week. And it was Gladstone, was it not—whose words have gone to the ends of the earth bright with moral and mental radium—who said that he went to church once each week even when the sermon was dull, because he loved old England. If there were no church, no churches—well, neither life, property, or virtue would long endure.

Rev. Dr. Norman C. Milliron

The church anchors us to the Infinite. A part of the glory of the church through all these changing years has been its power to create in the hearts of men the spirit to lift up their lives to the "style and manner of the skies." "A man rises to the greatest height of which he is capable when he enters the door of a church."

Every church is a pillar of truth and an altar of the Eternal. It is a refuge for the sinful, a trysting place for the lonely, a shrine of power for the weak. So it is that men and women have been coming to the church during all these years—people of every name, of every race, of every creed—to lift up their voices in praise and their hearts in prayer to a common heavenly Father.

May our presence at the House of God tomorrow not be as a heavy burden thrust upon us, neither let our feet be as leaden feet as we journey hither, but may we with happy hearts hasten to the banquet of love, renew our broken vows and go out to make our lives clean, honest, loyal and useful, living the Eternal life in the midst of time.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Harriet Fickes Making Debut Today at Tea Given by Mother

EVEN though it does look as though the ark erection industry were going to have a boom, folks defy the grey skies with their gaiety.

And if the world does look gloomy and depressed today, no one in the debutante set does, for there are going to be some interesting events for first season folks.

First of all, Harriet Fickes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Fickes, of Woodland road, is making her debut at a tea her mother is giving in the family home this afternoon.

Golden and bronze chrysanthemums against a background of cibotium ferns and palms decorate the home, and the debutante's gift bouquets, too.

Mrs. Fickes, in a black transparent velvet gown with a bodice of cloth of gold, is receiving with her daughter, who is wearing an interesting gown of beige chiffon and lace in the Princess mode.

Aiding Mrs. Fickes are Mrs. Safford K. Colby, Mrs. Harry Cornelius, Mrs. Robert E. Withers, Mrs. Taylor Alderdice, Mrs. W. Edward J. Keeble, Mrs. Bennett Rodgers, and Miss Alice Ives, of Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. Fickes' houseguest.

And the debs aiding Harriet are Nancy Alderdice, Marie Louise Bickford, Katherine Collin, Caroline Crittenden, Joan Diehl, Martha Edmonson, Laura Evans, Frances Johnston, Mary Elizabeth Floyd, Dorothy Jarvis, Frances Reed, Sylvia Robertson and Virginia Wright.

AND I want to tell you, before I forget, that I know some more of the John Philip Hoelzels' plans for the dinner dance they'll give on December 5 in the Urban room of the William Penn Hotel for three buds, Nancy Allderdice, Laura Evans, and Joan Diehl. The hour of the dinner is 8 o'clock, and the guests will be all the buds and members of the younger married set, too. It's going to be a large party, rumor has it.

NEWS has come to me from the East of the wedding of Caroline Harbaugh Kennedy, daughter of the Frank W. Kennedys, of Trenton, N. J., and John Philips Wooldridge, son of the Norman S. Wooldridges, of Pittsburgh. The ceremony took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the chapel of Princeton University with the Rev. Peter K. Emmons, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Trenton, officiating. The chapel was festooned with southern smilax, and decorated with masses of chrysanthemums and pompons, and tall cathedral tapers were placed in the background.

Caroline, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white velvet and old lace and a veil of tulle. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Elizabeth Kennedy, her sister, who was her maid of honor, wore a gown of yellow moire, and her small sister, Frances, who was flower girl, wore a frock of pink crepe. The bridesmaids, who were Elaine and Virginia McAlpin and Abby English, of New York; Mrs. Lawrence Tremaine, of Buffalo; Martha and Betty Rutan, of Sewickley, and Mrs. M. Craig Barry, of Rochester, wore gowns of tangerine moire and carried Johanna Hill and talisman roses. The matron of honor was Mrs. Ralph Boots, of New York, who also wore tangerine moire.

William P. Wooldridge served as his brother's best man. Arthur D. Forst, Jr., of Trenton; Richard English, Andrew F. Derr and Henry Dunn, of New York; Morris Benny, John S. Richardson and Charles Moore, of Sewickley; Murray Carr and Malcolm MacFarlane, of Pittsburgh; Kenneth Kassler, of Denver; Richard Bucholtz, of Paoli, Pa., and Stephen Bradley, of Nyack, N. Y., were the ushers.

A reception was held in the Kennedy home immediately after the ceremony. The young Wooldridges will spend a month in Cannes, France, and upon their return will live in Morrisville, Pa.

Following the rehearsal Thursday evening, the bridal party was entertained with a dinner-dance in the Princeton Inn by the Herbert L. Watsons, of Trenton.

Among the Pittsburgh guests were the Hubert Moores, the uncle and aunt of the bride; the James Lockharts, who recently gave Lockhart dormitory to Princeton, and Mrs. Robert Townsend.

LOSES FIGHT ON DEPORTATION

Luigi Di Cicco, 34, an Italian, of Coraopolis, has lost his fight against an order of the Department of Labor for his deportation to Italy for entering the United States unlawfully. Federal Judge R. M. Gibson dismissed a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Di Cicco last July against W. H. Marshall, immigration inspector in charge of the Pittsburgh district, and ordered Di Cicco remanded into the custody of the inspector.

Counsel for Di Cicco questioned the legality of an assistant secretary of the Department of Labor in signing the order of deportation, instead of Secretary James J. Davis. In deciding the case Judge Gibson was guided by a recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in which the facts were identical to those advanced by Di Cicco's counsel.

Di Cicco, according to immigration inspectors, entered the United States over the Canadian border at Niagara Falls, N. Y., October 2, 1927, using a passport that was issued to his father. In the prosecution of the case the government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney Zeno Fritz.

DOG PIE THIEF BACK HOME

Seven-year-old Ernest Greco, of 7235 Finance street, lost his pet dog "Spider," on Sunday. Rather, the dog left suddenly when Mrs. Greco caught him in the act of devouring one of her fresh pumpkin pies. The dog failed to return home, and little Ernest searched streets and alleys in the Finance street district in vain.

Wednesday the dog was noticed by a pedestrian who was attracted by the sorry picture the animal presented while huddled alongside the curb at Smithfield street and Sixth avenue. The dog was taken to the restaurant at Trinity House, Oliver avenue.

From Wednesday until yesterday afternoon the dog was the companion of Harry Kofman, chef at the parish house. Through a license tag the chef identified the owner and yesterday Ernest was given his pet. Today the dog sits at home in a new kennel, away from the pantry and pumpkin pies.

THE golden age of the drama is still to come, George Seibel, dramatic critic of the Sun-Telegraph, told the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club drama department yesterday. The chromo did not destroy the artist nor the talking machine the piano, and in spite of all the inroads which have been made on the stage it will continue to flourish, great plays will be written and great artists still arise as in the past, Mr. Seibel declared. The occasion was the opening luncheon of the drama department in the Penn Lincoln Hotel, which was attended by 100 guests. In addition to Mr. Seibel's address the program included a delightful presentation of Clifford Bax's fantasy "Square Pegs," Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprowls and Mrs. William C. Walters depicting the two characters and Mrs. John M. Lessells giving the epilogue. A very elaborate garden setting of real flowers had been arranged for the playlet, the first of an ambitious program which the drama department's program committee, under Mrs. Sprowls, has prepared for the season.

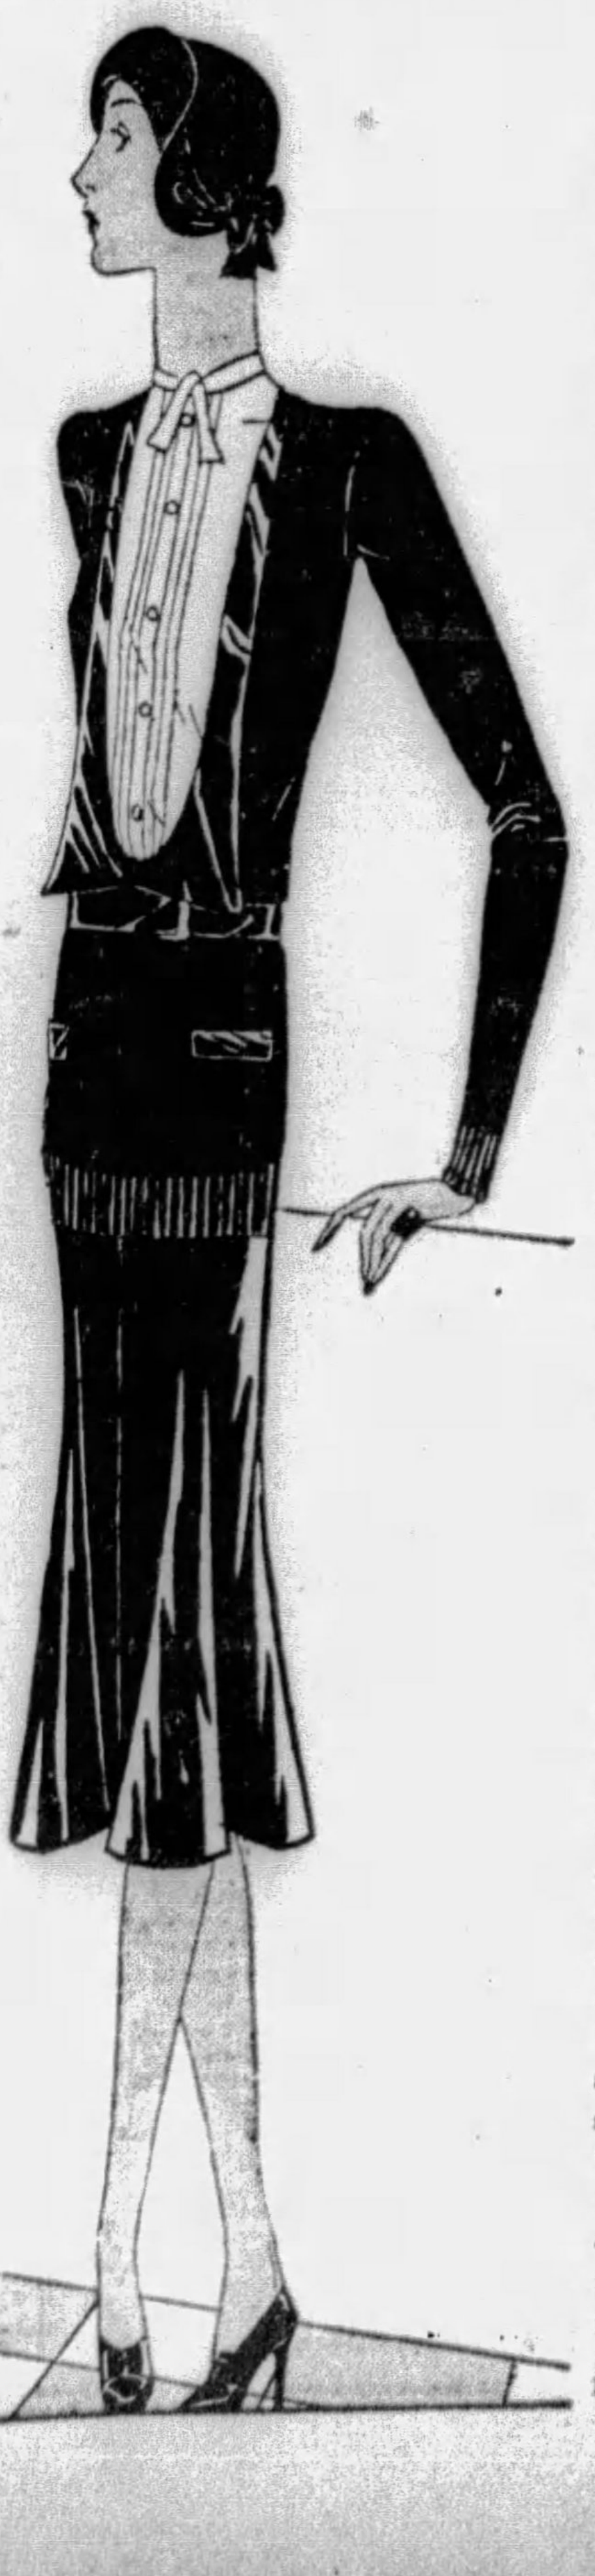
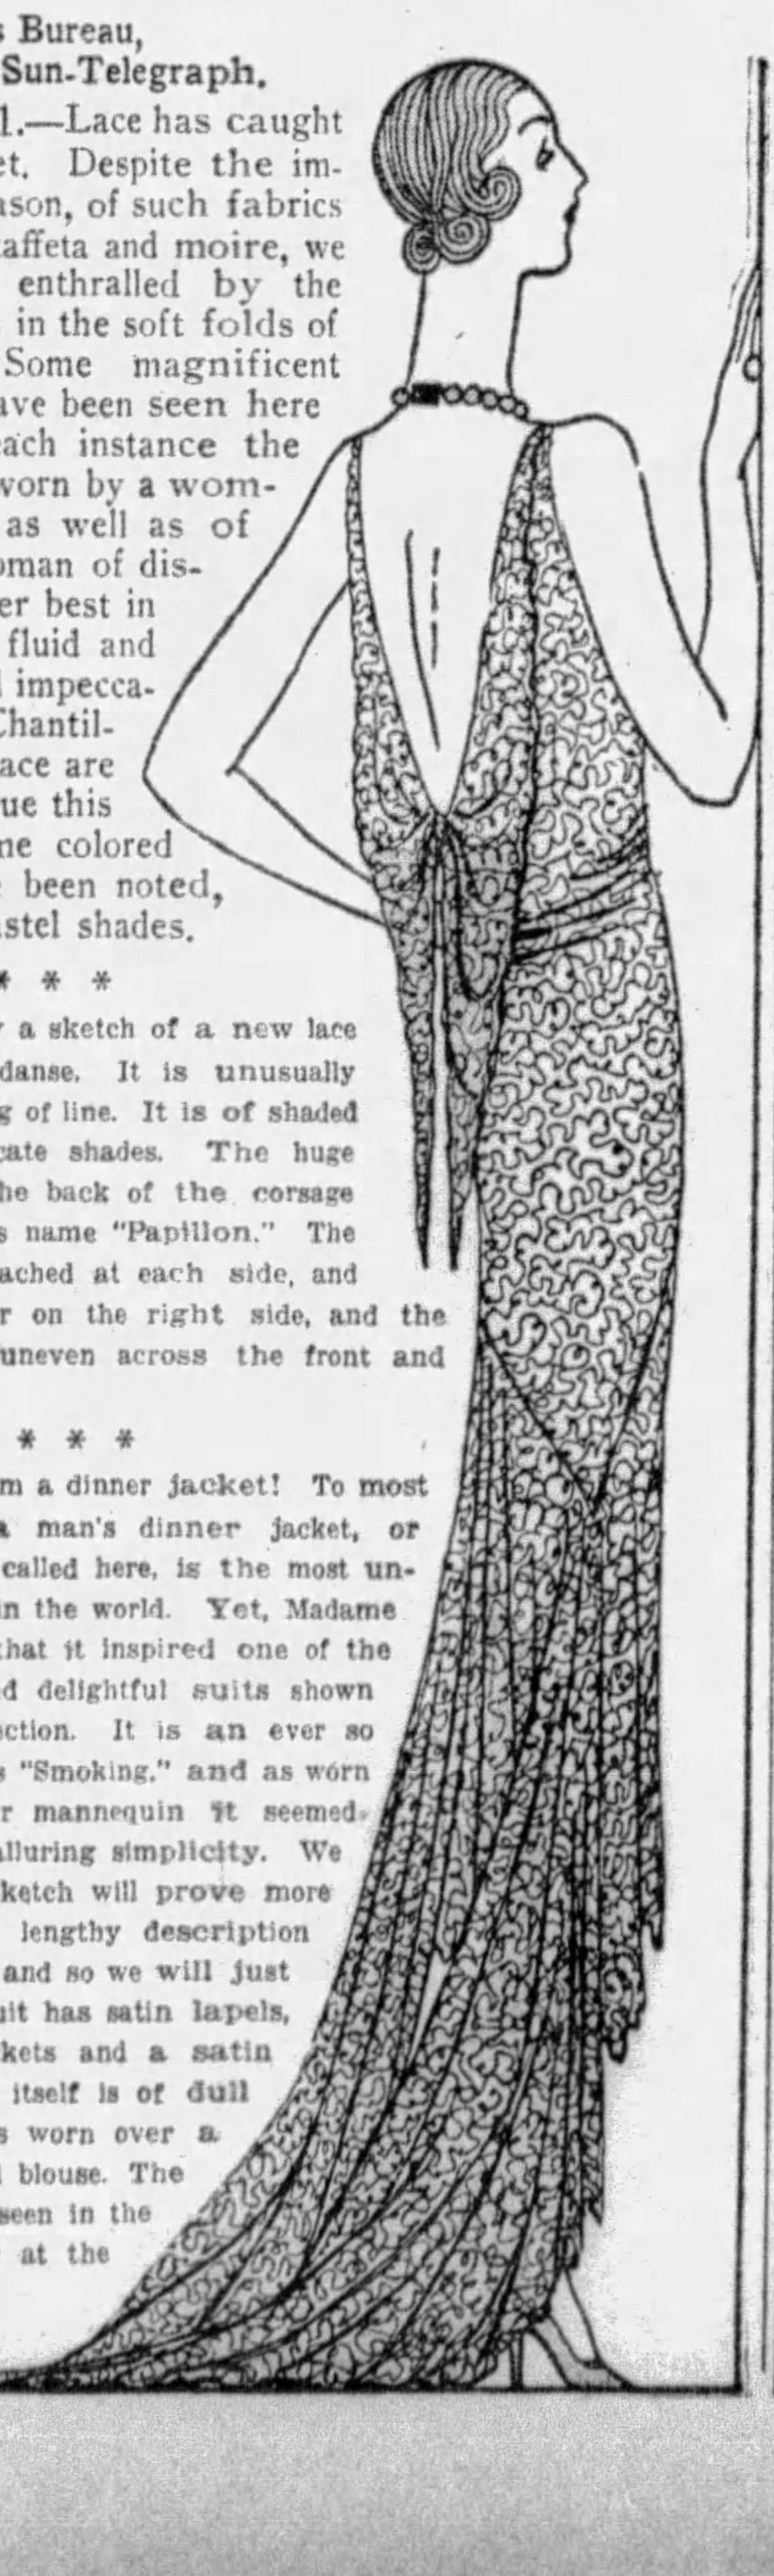
ATELIER DESIGNS BEAUTIFUL GOWN OF ATTRACTIVE LACE

—Sketched in Paris—





Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Lace has caught us in its net. Despite the importance this season, of such fabrics as lame, velvet, taffeta and moire, we continue to be enthralled by the magic that hides in the soft folds of lovely lace. Some magnificent gowns of lace have been seen here lately, and in each instance the gown has been worn by a woman of breeding as well as of chic. For a woman of distinction looks her best in a lace gown of fluid and graceful line and impeccable cut. Both Chantilly and Spanish lace are are much in vogue this season, and some colored lace frocks have been noted, but mostly in pastel shades.

AND so, we show a sketch of a new lace gown from Ardanse. It is unusually graceful and flowing of line. It is of shaded green lace in delicate shades. The huge butterfly bow at the back of the corsage gives this model its name "Papillon." The double train is attached at each side, and is somewhat longer on the right side, and the skirt is decidedly uneven across the front and sides.

INSPIRATION from a dinner jacket! To most feminine eyes, a man's dinner jacket, or "smoking" as it is called here, is the most uninspiring garment in the world. Yet, Madame Jane Regny, says that it inspired one of the most distinctive and delightful suits shown in her recent collection. It is an ever so perky little suit, this "Smoking," and as worn by a young slender mannequin it seemed devastating in its alluring simplicity. We are sure that the sketch will prove more eloquent than any lengthy description that we could give, and so we will just tell you that the suit has satin lapels, satin belt and pockets and a satin skirt. The jumper itself is of dull black jersey and is worn over a white crepe tailored blouse. The circular movement seen in the skirt is found only at the front.

STEEL VOLUME SHOWS NO CHANGE

Effect of Stock Market Break to Be Less Sharp Than in Previous Years

By B. E. V. LUTY

Not a ripple has been observed in the steel market as a result of the crash in stocks, but the metaphor is to be taken in detail, for ripples are on the surface. Unquestionably an undercurrent has been produced, which in the long range future will have an influence, the importance of which cannot be predicted closely at the present time.

The absence of immediate influence is a notable departure from precedent, due to conditions in both the steel market and the stock market being radically different from those existing at the time of breaks in the old days. As to the steel market, there used to be forward buying and the carrying of stocks of steel by consumers. A break in stocks produced a desire to liquidate inventories of steel and instructions to postpone deliveries, while actual ultimate consumption was not greatly affected.

With the new practice of steel buyers not carrying inventories, there are no stocks to liquidate and no deliveries to be deferred. In the old days there were long and large swings in steel prices and a break in the stock market suggested that steel prices needed revision. Recent steel prices, in contrast, have averaged no more than a shade above the low point of late 1927, the lowest level in steel prices since 1922. Thus there is no suggestion from the stock market that steel prices should be lower.

FORMER BREAKS

As to the difference in the stock market, in the old days breaks occurred from general trade conditions having become less favorable. For instance, early in 1907 it was clear that the steel industry was wound up only to run into the fourth quarter. A stock market panic occurred late in October and there was a tremendous slowing down in pig iron and steel production, which had been clearly foreseen by competent observers. This stock market break, on the contrary, was not caused by any substantial change in industrial and economic conditions. It was due to the failure of new theories as to yields of common shares as compared with bonds and as to expected large increases in earnings over a period of years. The break came from conditions within the stock market, not conditions outside the stock market, such as would affect the steel business.

STEEL SLUMPS

The rate of steel production had been on a slight down grade since May, when there was substantially 100 per cent production of steel ingots. There has been no decrease in the last week, the rate being simply a little below the 80 per cent rate estimated for the two weeks preceding. From all that can be observed there are just about even chances of the rate being above or below 70 per cent in the last two or three weeks of the year. The further decrease would be attributable to gradual slowing down in buying to date and to the usual year-end influence, a December dip in production having been the regular thing.

Steel prices have been holding very well to date and they have not particularly lost ground in the last week. All told there has been only a very little slipping in the last few months. Prices on the whole are only a shade above the average of the last two years, since the decline of late 1927. Consumers are fully able to pay them and the prices are needed to give the steel companies a fair return on their investment with the fairly large operation now in prospect. In the last few quarters earnings have been exceptionally large because there was big tonnages.

MARKET EFFECT

For the longer range future the change in the stock market will produce a change in steel, the full importance of which cannot be predicted at the present time. Chiefly it is not a matter of what the new stock market will do to the steel trade in future, but of what the defunct stock market did to the steel industry in the past, since the middle of last year. For instance, it caused the public to buy an altogether unusual number of automobiles and it enabled corporations to lay pipe lines by issuing common shares which the public was very anxious to acquire.

However, before this thing occurred it was reasonably certain that the special bulge in steel activity which began at the middle of 1928 was going to end if it had not ended already. Frequent reference has been made to that matter in this weekly review, as for instance in that of September 21, when it was said: "Part or all of this extra bulge in steel demand is now coming off."

AUTO BUYING

In the last few days the most prevalent remark has been that the stock market break would reduce the amount of automobile buying, but it has been reasonably clear that one should not expect for next year a duplication of the heavy buying of this year. After a slow increase there was a very sharp increase, which evidently was due to an unusual amount of replacements, for the accepted computations show 1923 as the year of heaviest new buying of cars, the growth in replacements since then covering more than the increase in the total production. The extra replacing has put the public ahead and there was good reason to expect less replacing next year.

Missouri Pacific's orders for 40,000 tons of rails bring the season total of rail buying up to 970,000 tons, just a trifle more than the same roads bought one year and two years ago, but the buying has been one to two months early. Rail production is already increasing. There is much additional rail buying to be done, some 600,000 to 750,000 tons being in prospect for the next few months.

Pacific Fruit Express has ordered 400 cars making an October freight car buying total of 20,050 cars, about twice the monthly rate of production since April. Much more buying is predicted.

Fabricated structural steel lettings have been heavy in the past fortnight, over 110,000 tons.

Employes Share In Company Ownership

With completion of a stock distribution to employes recently undertaken by the Richman Brothers Company of Cleveland, the men and women who make and sell the product of the company will have a financial interest in the business comparable to that of the management.

Employes of the company number 3,800, and virtually every one of them is a partner in the business, which manufactures and retails men's clothes. The total value of employe stock holdings is $13,500,000. The company is unique among the great industrial enterprises of the world in that it operates without time clocks or bosses.

Early this summer, in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishing of the business in Cleveland, directors of the company set aside 50,000 shares of stock for sale to employes at $50 a share.

NAT GETS NEW EQUIPMENT

The Pittsburgh Natatorium, one of the finest institutions of its kind in the world, housing a swimming pool and a complete Turkish bath department, has recently added ultra-violet sun ray baths to its equipment.

Other new features installed to maintain the institution's standards are the Burdick Body Culturor, the Burdick Light Bath and equipment for infra-red radiations.

The Natatorium has one of the most beautifully architectured pools in the world. The constantly flowing water from the artesian wells is regularly tested.

Site Not Selected For Rustless Plant

The Rustless Iron Corporation of America, subsidiary of International Rustless Iron, is planning to build a plant which may be located in this district but no site has been selected, it was learned yesterday from local interests connected with the management.

The company makes a corrosion resisting alloy steel being used by the automobile makers and other industries in place of plated materials.

Cigaret Sales Gain This Year

Government revenue was increased by $271,671,338 through the tax on cigarets in the first nine months of this year, as shown by a compilation of Internal Revenue Bureau reports.

This represents a gain of $31,781,967 in federal revenue from this source over the corresponding period last year, when $239,889,371 was received. Sales to October this year are reported to be $3,000,000 ahead of the entire 12 months of 1926.

The two states of North Carolina and Virginia produced almost the entire federal income from cigaret taxes, the former contributing $168,497,536 and Virginia $51,082,350. The cigaret industry places North Carolina second only to the state of New York as a tax contributor to the national government.

Humble Oil Firm Finds Salt Dome

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 2.—Humble Oil and Refining Company is reported to have discovered a salt dome through geophysical methods two miles north of Devers in Liberty County and between four and five miles southeast of Liberty oil field in the same county.

New Bond Offerings For Week Decrease

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—New bond offerings for the week ended November 1 amounted to only $2,292,500 comparing with $74,439,300 in the preceding week and $99,395,000 in the corresponding week of 1928.

RETAIL TRADE VOLUME LIGHT

Jobbers State That Some Lines Are Below Level Expected This Season

Retail trade is in moderate volume, some lines not being as active as they were, particularly men's and women's wearing apparel, jobbers of which also complain that sales are not up to normal for the season, according to R. G. Dun & Co. There is some improvement in demand for millinery, although sales are largely of the cheaper grades.

While some wholesale jewelers report a fair volume of business, others state that sales are less in volume than during either of the past two years. Seasonable hardware lines are fairly active, although builders' hardware is moving in smaller volume than last year. Building construction is less active than for several years and demand for lumber and building materials is below normal. There is comparatively little change in the grocery and provision market.

STEEL OPERATIONS

Industrial operations in this district are showing comparatively little change, with the average rate of operations in the steel industry holding at about 80 per cent. The demand for plate glass continues quite satisfactory and production is considerably higher than a year ago. Demand for window glass has shown some improvement, but is still considerably below normal for this period of the year. Production continues at an unusually low rate.

Manufacturers of electrical equipment continue to operate at a rather high rate and there is an improved demand for radio equipment. While the movement of sanitary equipment is not quite up to last year, there is considerable activity in radiator and heating lines.

OIL OUTPUT

Production of crude oil showed some decrease during the past week. Bituminous coal production is slightly higher than a year ago. There is a moderate improvement in demand, but prices continue low and unsatisfactory. Western Pennsylvania grades run-of-mine are quoted per net ton at mines: steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80c to 90c, and gas slack, $1 to $1.10.

While some jobbers report collections showing a slight improvement, the average continues quite slow.

FINANCING FOR WEEK HIGHER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The volume of money turnover during the week ended October 26, as reflected by check payments, was greater than the previous week and showed an increase also over a year ago, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. The output of bituminous coal during the latest reported week showed a decline from the previous week, but was higher than a year ago. Operations in steel plants for the latest week showed expansion as compared with the previous week, but were on a lower level than at this time last year. The movement of commodities by rail, as indicated by data on carloadings covering the latest reported week, was lower than in the same week of last year.

The general level of wholesale prices showed a further recession from the previous week and was off about 5 per cent from last year. Iron and steel prices averaged lower than in the previous week, but were higher than a year ago. Bank loans and discounts were higher than in either period. Interest rates on time funds averaged lower than in the previous week, but were higher than a year ago. Call money rates showed lower averages than in either period. Prices for stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange again declined from the previous week, but were still above the level of last year. Bond prices averaged higher than in the previous week, but were lower than a year ago.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
'Public Improvements Promote Progress'
Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.
MOSS SIDE BOULEVARD, now under construction, is located near the eastern boundary line of the county. It will furnish a desirable north and south connection between the Lincoln Highway and the Wilmerding-Trafford City Road in the vicinity of Wall Borough and Pitcairn Borough. The State Highway Department contemplates extending this improvement southwardly to the White Oak Level Road, which will thereby furnish a rather direct north and south route extending throughout the eastern section of the county. In addition to this through service the improvement has numerous local advantages. The estimated date of completion is July, 1930, and the funds approved by the people for it amount to $890,000.00.

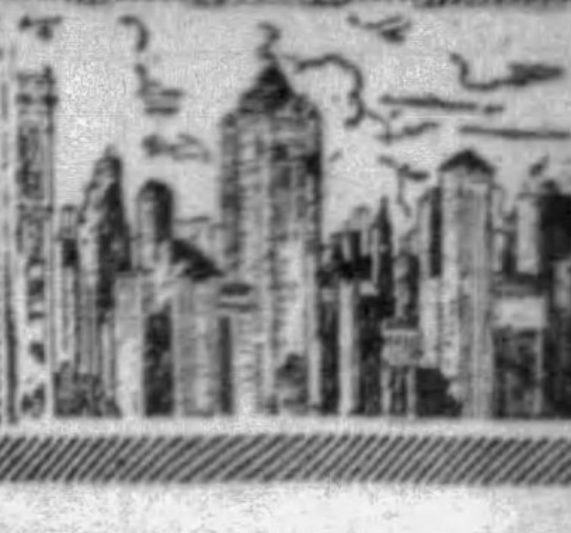
ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS



PIONEER RUNS THEATER CHAIN

D. J. Selznick, Producer In First Movie Days, Operates Houses Here

An idea in 1915, a reality 13 years later, a plan conceived in Sydney, Australia, and brought to birth 7,000 miles away, in Pittsburgh, is the history of the Imperial Chain Theaters, Inc., a rapidly expanding group of modern motion picture theaters, headed by D. J. Selznick.

When one speaks of motion picture progress, the name Selznick is one to conjure with. For the blood of this clan runs red with the corpuscles of show business. In the days when the movies were still taking the tottering steps of infancy, the name Selznick appeared on the scene.

COMPANY FORMED

Forming their own film company, they immediately started the production of features of a nature foreign to screen entertainment at that time, Selznick pictures were solicited by hungry exhibitors the country over, and shown to millions, eager for well knit stories, intelligently told and well photographed. Many a star, now firmly established, has D. J. Selznick to thank for his prominence.

Theda Bara, the original "vamp," was discovered in Cincinnati, playing in a mediocre stock company. Ever alive to the changing tastes of the motion picture public, D. J. persuaded the ever fascinating one to change her name from Theodosia Goodman to Theda Bara, and a new constellation appeared. Among others who owe their fame to D. J. were Clara Kimball Young, Olive Thomas, the Moore brothers and Jack Pickford.

The fame of the American motion picture rapidly spread to other parts of the world. Other countries demanded our pictures. Producers were hesitant about expansion, afraid to venture in unchartered waters. Without the fanfare of publicity trumpets, Selznick repaired to Australia, where in a short time he arranged for the exhibition of his pictures. It is admitted that without the Selznick pioneering, Australia would not be, as it is, the greatest foreign consumer of American-made pictures.

D. J. spent three years in the Antipodes, in the meantime opening branch offices in many other parts of the world. Had he chosen to remain, unlimited English capital was his to command for the production of Australian-made pictures.

RETURNS HOME

In spite of his successes in other branches of the industry, D. J. is essentially an exhibitor. In his mind revolved the thought of some day returning to his native Pennsylvania, to operate a string of modern motion picture theaters. He corresponded with banker friends. They welcomed the idea, and offered him financial assistance. In 1922 he returned to the United States.

After three years of production activity, he was ready to turn his energies to the realization of his long dreamed ambition. Proceeding carefully, D. J. first associated himself with the Harry Davis Enterprises of Pittsburgh to acquaint himself with local conditions. Then satisfied that the time was ripe, he went ahead, with the result that early in 1929 the very modern 1,500-seat de-luxe Roxian Theater was opened in McKees Rocks.

CHAIN GROWS

The success of his operating methods spreading rapidly, D. J. next made a survey of Oil City, and to a group of prominent citizens he outlined his plans for the erection of a modern cinema. The result was that the Latonia Theater in Oil City became the second modern theater in the chain. The third link in the rapidly expanding chain is the Lyric Theater, also in Oil City.

Gets Profit

J. RALPH CRUTCHFIELD

SAVES BUILDING FROM LOSS

J. Ralph Crutchfield, manager of the Law and Finance Building, recently demonstrated a high degree of business versatility by taking over the operation of a restaurant which was in difficulties and placing it on a profitable basis.

The H. C. Maddux interests, of Washington, D. C., operating a large chain of apartment hotels, includng the Fairfax at Fifth avenue and Craig street, acquired the Law and Finance Building, a new 21-story office structure, in June of last year. Mr. Crutchfield, long associated with Maj. H. C. Maddux, head of the Maddux Hotels, was dispatched to Pittsburgh to take over the operation of the building.

SEEKS TENANT

The architect proveded in the basement a large room for use as a restaurant, cafeteria or luncheon club. Mr. Crutchfield, recognizing that a modern office building must provide its tenants with every convenience, including luncheon facilities, immediately directed his efforts towards securing a tenant.

From several applications he selected a man whose record seemed to mark him as ideally qualified. The term "seemed" is used advisedly because their restaurant had been in operation only a short time before it was in difficulties. Mr. Crutchfield was confronted with the choice of either closing up the restaurant with loss to the building or of launching into the business himself. He chose the latter course. The services of F. M. Albright, successful proprietor of La Fiesta Sandwich Shop, were secured. The change of management was accomplished without any interruption to business. The transfer took place on a Monday afternoon and at lunch time on Tuesday the "business as usual" sign greeted all patrons.

PROFIT SHOWN

Mr. Crutchfield has just completed a thorough audit of the Law and Finance Restaurant at the end of three months' operation. This check reveals that the business has not been in "red ink" for a single day during this period. The patronage has shown a steady increase and the outlook for the future of this venture is altogether gratifying.

The experience of Mr. Crutchfield with his restaurant problem presents a concrete illustration of the fact that to successfully manage and operate a modern office building involves varied qualifications. It is not sufficient that a man be able to successfully sell office space and keep a building spick and span if he would succeed in the field. He must be ready to cope with unusual situations.

Gas Industry Achieves High Records

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE close of the present year will see the establishment of another set of new records for the gas industry and the next two or three years may be expected to achieve even higher levels. The growth is being shown in both the natural and manufactured branches of the business.

A study recently made by Pynchon & Co., estimates that for the first time the investment in the industry will have crossed the $5,000,000,000 mark by the end of the year. Revenues from the sale of both manufactured and natural gas will exceed $900,000,000 for the first time.

While more has been heard of the phenominal development of the natural gas industry, the greatest expenditure of new capital will be in the manufactured end. Out of a total of $400,000,000 to be spent for improvements and expansion this year, manufactured gas will require $250,000,000 and natural gas $150,000,000. The amount invested by the end of the year will be about 25 per cent over the total at the end of 1926.

Increased Industrial Use

ALL types of gas consumers have been showing fairly steady increases. Gas is finding its way into a greater number of industries each year and this growth may be especially rapid in territories where natural gas has come to replace the manufactured product at a lower rate.

The manufactured gas industry sold 8.2 per cent more gas to industrial and commercial consumers in 1928 than it did in 1927. In spite of the fact that electricity has monopolized most of the newly developed household appliances, domestic use of gas gained 2.9 per cent. The greatest gain in proportion of all the groups was shown in house heating which expanded 41.3 per cent.

Changing Production

A PITTSBURGH organization has played an important part in the transition in production methods now under way in the gas industry. The development of the by-product coke oven by the Koppers Company has provided for the growth in recent years in the output of manufactured gas. The making of carbureted water gas, the most used type of the manufactured product, has been declining since 1926, while the purchasing of coke oven gas has been gaining.

The specilized nature of the producing and marketing of coke by-products is tending to divorce gas manufacture from gas distribution. More and more gas each year is being bought by utilities from coke plants, many of which are operated, as well as having been built, by the Koppers Company.

Natural Gas Competition

THE rapid expansion in producing natural gas fields and the building of thousands of miles of pipe lines is bringing natural gas to many cities which had to depend on the manufactured product in the past. The spread of the pipe lines has also made possible the furnishing of gas to many small communities which formerly had no gas of any kind due to their inability to support a costly gas-making plant.

The laws of most states protect utilities to such an extent that manufactured gas companies are not endangered by the competetion of natural gas but in many cases the increased business and profits to be secured by selling gas at a lower rate have brought about the change to the natural product. This usually occurs either by the purchase of natural gas by the distributing company or by a consolidation of natural gas producing and pipe line organizations with local utilities to the advantage of both.

Celotex Overseas Sales Show Gain

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Celotex shipments show an increase of more than 40 per cent over the previous year, according to a report just compiled for the first three quarters of 1929. Shipments are now being made at the rate of 85,000,000 feet per annum to practically every civilized country in the world. Sales of acoustic-celotex overseas have increased 100 per cent in volume and shipments of celotex roof insulation board are up 150 per cent this year.

Wheeling Steel Co. Shifts Personnel

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 2.—A number of important changes in the sales department of the Wheeling Steel Corporation were announced by President I. M. Scott.

Henry B. Scott, manager of the tinplate sales division, Wheeling, and N. C. Reed, manager of the Detroit office, are appointed general managers of sales and will be located in Wheeling. J. L. Neudoerfer is also named general manager of sales, succeeding John O. Tucker, at Wheeling.

W. M. Hall, manager of the Boston office, succeeds Henry B. Scott, head of the tinplate division, and S. A. Waters, of Boston, will succeed Mr. Hall at Boston. H. B. Miller, manager of the Cincinnati office, will succeed N. C. Reed at Detroit. H. E. Smith, manager of the St. Louis office, will succeed H. B. Miller at Cincinnati and B. M. Sharpe, assistant at St. Louis, will succeed Mr. Smith. O. I. Strickland has been named manager of sales of the tubular division. W. H. Higgins, vice president in charge of sales, will continue in that capacity.

GLASS VOLUME BETTER

The American Glass Review, in its issue of November 2 will say:

With the advent of November, normally the most active month of the year for consumption of window glass, some slight improvement is to be noted in demand for this commodity. New business from the jobbing trade continues considerably below the average for this time of the year, however, with both factory operating schedules and shipments of this commodity holding at close to the levels of a week ago.

The demand for plate glass, which has been in record volume throughout most of the year, has shown some recession of late. This slowing-up in activities is to be attributed entirely to the comparative quiet now holding sway in the automobile industry. Orders from other principal consuming industries, including the mirror manufacturers, are reported in very good volume.

Imports of plate glass into this country during the week ended October 26 receded from the preceding week's total, while incoming shipments of window glass were in slightly larger volume. In both, however, the week's importations were relatively light. Receipts of plate glass totaled 180 cases and 27,060 pounds compared with 234 cases and 192,946 pounds received the week of October 19. Window glass importations for the comparative periods were 2,462 boxes, 56,217 pounds, and 2,992 boxes, respectively.

Grant and Seventh
Operators of retail stores should study the possibilities of Grant Street and Seventh Avenue. The Koppers Building is an accomplished fact. The Gulf Building will be occupied by May 1, 1932. The New Federal Building will be started next year. This means that the three of the four corners in this location will be occupied by magnificent buildings by May 1, 1932. Automobile and pedestrian traffic in this area is increasing rapidly. The district has adequate parking facilities. It is well served by street car and bus lines. The Pennsylvania suburban trains haul a large number of prospective customers daily. There is a spendid opportunity to secure excellent locations for retail stores in this district, which will be represented by Pittsburgh's finest buildings.

Bank Leaders Haven't Shown White Feather

By B. C. FORBES

WILL ROGERS pokes fun at John D. Rockefeller for having stepped in to buy stocks when they were being thrown on the market during the drop. But had not John D.—and other men of means wise enough not to be carried away by all the hokum that the bull market couldn't possibly collapse—come forward when pandemonium broke loose, how much less than they did get would the misguided ones have actualy got for the shares they had to sell? The truth is, of course, that the announcement of the Rockefellers, senior and junior, that they were buying stocks, did more than any other one thing to restore some semblance of sanity. As one Wall street paper remarked, "It took old John D. to pour oil on Wall Street's troubled waters."

HAD you seen something of the inside workings of the Big Six, the Morgan-sponsored group of bankers that shouldered the responsibility of doing their best to keep the market open, you would have realized that several of these gentlemen sweated and worried and worked enough in one week to last you or me half a lifetime. They got after anybody and everybody who might be in a position to extend support to the crashing market. Talk of high-pressure salesmanship—the Big Six practiced it with a vengeance.

Money was being withdrawn from Wall street by more bank lenders—"bootleg lenders"—to the tune of, as revealed later, $1,380,000,000. New York bankers actually increased their assistance to brokers by $992,000,000 in the week. Out-of-town bankers scrambled for their money to the tune of $707,000,000.

So, credit the big fellows in New York for not having shown the white feather. They didn't grab for their money when other lenders grabbed frenziedly. Instead, they stepped courageously into the raging demoralization and supplied an extra billion dollars without asking a cent more than 6 per cent for it—a lot was actually lent at 5 per cent.

CALIFORNIA friends are greatly encouraged by the newly-reached agreement to curtail production. The best California oil stocks were eagerly purchased just before the market closed.

Standard Oil of California is often bracketed with Standard Oil of New Jersey as the two leading Rockefeller oil enterprises. John D. has an unusual affection for Standard Oil of California and cherishes stock certificate No. 1 which was issued to him. Ken Kinsbury, the master mind of the company, is one of the real oil giants of the world. Although college-bred, the old Standard Oil Company put him through a grueling test for several years before advancing him. Kingsbury at one time had a furnace-feeding job which almost broke his back nightly—the 8-hour-day was not known then.

NECESSITY stocks may prove more attractive than luxury stocks.

COTTON looks cheap. Other countries can supplement America's wheat supply when it runs short, but the world depends upon the United States for its cotton.

A SEATTLE business man sends me this telegram:

"Seattle newspapers display a banner headline, 'Merchants Ready for Christmas Shopping Season.'"

"The story reveals that 6,000 extra sales folk, drawing a million dollars in holiday pay, have been engaged for a period of eight weeks, whereas last season only 5,000 were employed, drawing $800,000 pay. Does this not appear an unusually healthy business sign in face of the stock crash?"

It does.

SECRETARY MELLON was not such an old fool, after all, when he issued his advice some little time ago: "Buy bonds."

Many wise ones who switched from skyrocketing stocks to bonds reversed to bonds when the inevitable stock collapse came. Bargains are still abundant in the stock market. Only, they should be selected with proper regard for actual earnings. Buying expectations has brought ruin to many.

BROKERS say that their buying orders already received for execution at the opening of Monday far exceed selling orders. Odd-lot purchases have been unprecedentedly numerous at panic prices. All the little fellows were not wiped out. Those who had backbone enough to buy when things were at their worst will reap the reward courage usually reaps.

Leading Mail Order Firms Report October Sales Show Improvement.

SALES of the leading mail order firms during October showed substantial improvement over the same month a year ago, as indicated in the report of Montgomery Ward for the month, that company reported total sales of $32,181,217 for the month, an increase of 21.05 per cent over the corresponding month of 1928. For the 10 months sales aggregated $225,880,02, equivalent to an increase of 29.11 per cent when compared with the same period last year. Sears, Roebuck's figures, which should be available shortly, are expected to show corresponding improvement, with sales for the month estimated to have run better than 23 per cent above last year.

With income from investments and miscellaneous sources in the proximity of $57,000,000 this year, New York Central will show nearly $17 a share on its present stock issues of $653,600,000. This would compare with $10.86 a share on the same amount of stock for 1928. Indications are net railway income for the full year will be around $66,500,000, which would compare with $62,222,121 in 1928 and the record figure of $72,158,492 in 1926.

AS a result of lower production and higher prices as compared with last year, most of the important farm products are in a relatively stronger statistical position, the Department of Agriculture stated in its November 1 report on the agricultural situation. "Since early summer, the prices of practically all groups of farm commodities with the exception of meat animals, have increased."

Though sentiment is improving with regard to heavier steel products, tinplate operations are at the year's low and further recessions are developing in the sheet market. Galvanized sheets are quoted at 3.50c but are being shaded at Detroit to 3.40c, though makers are still quoting the higher prices to the fabricating trade. Concessions also are developing in black sheets from the nominal 2.75c market which already is a reduction of $2 from the third quarter. Blue annealed sheets, however, appear to be holding firmer than other grades with No. 10 quotable at 2.20c and No. 13 gauge at 2.35c. Sentiment in the strip steel market is better. Mills are maintaining fair schedules due to sustained demands for heavier products and operations of these rolling mills are supporting semi-finishing and pig iron plants.

IN view of declining production and sales and rather unfavorable outlook for next few months there appears small likelihood that Brockway Motor Truck Corporation will continue the present $3 dividend rate. September sales were off, but trend during October was reversed and showed fairly substantial gain. However, it is apparent that truck industry is going through temporary recession, with accompanying impairment of earning power, and there is only remote possibility that Brockway sales will hold at satisfactory levels. It is known that in event of an insufficient spread between net income and dividend requirements a reduction of the dividend or its entire omission will be recommended. Brackway has 219,081 shares of no par common stock outstanding. Company has outstanding 22,905 shares of $7 cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. Quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on junior issue aggregates $164,310 on present outstanding stock.

The two factors which were important in connection with the slowing down of the industrial pace several months ago were the sharply reduced volume of new construction and the somewhat doubtful foreign trade situation. Both these influences were traced directly to the high cost of credit, which was international in scope and checked many activities. With money available at reasonable rates, it is possible that there will be improvement in new construction in this country, and that conditions abroad may be improved. In fact, the foreign buying of American stocks which has been reported recently, may be the first reflection of this change.

Pierce & Co. Post New Margin Rates

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—E. A. Pierce & Co. anncunced a reduction of margin requirements in the following notice to brokerage customers:

"In our opinion the severe decline of the past few days and the relatively healthful condition of the market as a result has convinced us that we properly may reduce our margin schedule somewhat.

"Henceforth until further notice it will be as follows:

"On individual customers' accounts 10 points on stocks selling below 30, 12 points on stocks selling from 30 to 39⅞ and 30 per cent of the market price on stocks selling at 40 and upward.

"As heretofore, we shall accept from the general rule certain issues to be specified later on which the margin will be figured on a higher basis."

Cash Pouring Into Wall St. District

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—One of the most important features of today's developments in Wall Street district was the heavy volume of cash received in connection with purchases of securities already bought or arranged for beginning of business on Monday. The amount of cash received on street has been so large as to defy any reasonable estimate. Many brokers received payment for stocks in thousand dollar bills reaching large aggregates. Checks, including those known as savings bank cashiers' checks, have also been received in large numbers.

Lehigh Navigation Plans Stock Split

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Special stockholders meeting of Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company has been called for January 15, 1930, at which stockholders will be asked to vote on a plan approved by board of managers through which capital stock will be increased to 3,000,000 no par common shares from present 643,355 shares of $50 par value, after which present stock will be split on a three-for-one basis.

The plan also provides for sale, conveyance or transfer of all coal lands and properties current assets of coal business and all capital stocks of affiliated coal companies to a new corporation to be organized for carrying on coal mining business.

Cotton Seed Quiz Ordered by Senate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(INS.)—The Senate today adopted a resolution of Senator Heflin (Dem.), of Alabama, directing the Federal Trade Commission to investigate allegations that cottonseed oil mills are purchasing cotton gins to destroy the competitive market for cotton seed in the South.

Conde Nast Net Shows Slight Gain

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Conde Nast Publications reports for quarter ended September 30, net income of $355,427 after charges and federal taxes, equal to $1.11 a share on 319,465 shares of common stock, against $350,892 or $1.10 a share in the corresponding quarter in 1928.

Nine months' net income totaled $1,114,583 or $3.49 a share against $1,220,684 or $3.82 a share in the 1928 period.

Lake Ore Shipments For October Down

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2.—Ore shipments from upper lake ports for the month of October totaled 7,989,127 tons, as compared with 8,453,952 tons for the same month last year, or a decrease of 464,825 tons. For the 10 months ended October 31, ore shipments total 61,253,954 tons, compared with 49,719,931 tons, an increase of 11,534,023 tons, or 23.20 per cent, according to the Lake Superior Iron Ore Association.

Corn, 26,666, compared with 23,946 last week and 59,812 in this week last year; from July 1, 761,317 contrasted with 1,761,401 in the similar period a year ago.

INTEREST RATE CUT SEEN IN STOCK FALL

Bond Market Improvement Likely as Cash Is Freed From Brokers' Loans

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Liquidation in the Stock Exchange, in freeing funds from brokers' loans, paves the way for distinctly lower interest rates. Lower interest rates point to an improvement in the bond market and a revival in the demand for fixed maturity obligations (bonds) will reopen New York as a world capital center. As this column has frequently pointed out, the New York capital market has been under blockade to the rest of the world for nearly a year, because the American public was more concerned with stock speculation than bond investment.

The same liquidation in the stock market will also mean lower interest rates for short-term commercial credit and should promote more financing of trade in New York. Accordingly, recent events, in so far as they affect the law of supply and demand, promote New York's leadership in world finance. On the other hand, it is said that some foreigners would rather pay ½ of 1 per cent more in London than submit themselves to the hazards of wide fluctuations of rate in New York.

FACTS OVER SENTIMENT

Be that as it may, economic facts, rather than sentiment, will prove determining factors, in my opinion. For a time the world was being starved of capital and credit because stock speculation in America and obsolete tax laws in France were preventing the two largest depositories of gold from carrying on credit operations commensurate with their holdings of the precious metal. In the circumstances, England was doing more than its share and more than its gold reserves warranted. The Bank of England did not raise its discount rate from 5½ to 6½ per cent until nearly two months after the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, on August 8, went up from 5 to 6 per cent. The British move was a belated forced maneuver to keep in line with New York.

Satisfied that a New York rate decline was imminent, the Bank of England on Thursday cut its rate to 6 per cent, hours before the Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced its return to 5 per cent.

HUGH CUT IN WEEK

The reduction of $1,096,000,000 in brokers' loans in a single week was, of course, of unprecedented proportions. It was commensurate with the butchering of stock prices during the week under consideration. The reduction reflects not only the decline in stock prices, but also the passing of stocks from weak, marginal holders to strong outright buyers. The switching of stocks during the last week or so, has been the very reverse of what took place during the month of September when temperate, discriminating outright holders liquidated their shares to marginal buyers. That this earlier transformation was taking place was suggested at the time by the rise in brokers' loans while stock prices were declining.

When the crisis came, the leading bankers of the Street formed a defensive group and did skillful work in bringing order out of chaos. If the bankers had been as brilliant in preventative work, there would have been fewer headaches and regrets.

STEP TOWARD NORMAL

If the business community will read the objective facts and steel itself against the speculative hysteria, it will recognize that the liquidation in the stock market, which has released funds for legitimate trade, is a step back to financial normalcy. The revival of the bond market will stimulate public works, will resuscitate the farm loan market, and will promote long term and short term foreign financing in New York, tending to sustain the volume of exports. The speculative community has suffered a shinkage of purchasing power, and the business community has lost the stimulus of the spectacle of ever rising stock prices. But the release of funds from the stock exchange provides a normal circulation of credit through the economic system.

30 STATES HIT IN FOSHAY FAILURE

Stock Slump Termed Factor In Crash of $20,000,000 Investment Firm in West

International News Service.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 2.—"Shoestring" financing and recent stock market turmoil today were designated as factors in the crash yesterday of the $20,000,000 W. B. Foshay Investment Company.

The Foshay Company failed when a voluntary petition of bankruptcy was filed against the firm, holder of banking, industrial, public utility and real estate properties.

Founded and built up through the efforts of Wilbur B. Foshay, the firm's collapse carried with it subsidiaries in 30 states, and in Canada, Central America and Alaska.

WEST HARD HIT

California and other West Coast investors are hard hit by the greatest failure in the northwest in recent years. Foshay Utilities the operated on the West Coast, most of them financed by installment plan payments. Steamer lines on Puget Sound also are involved.

Federal Judge John Sanborn designated Joseph Chapman, Minneapolis banker, as receiver for the vast interests. Chapman estimates that only 50 per cent of outstanding payments can be collected.

Estimated liabilities of the company amount to $12,120,000, while the assets of the concern will not be known for some time.

While no direct cause could be given for the failure, rumors today were to the effect that the decline in the stock market was the immediate reason for the collapse. It is also rumored that the firm paid dividends out of stock sales rather than from the profits, but this cannot be verified until the inventory ordered by Judge Sanborn has been completed.

BANKS TAKEN OVER

Foshay's brief answer to the complaint gave over-expansion as the cause of the crash. He stated that the firm has expanded too intensively for the amount of income available from the sale of security, the result being a large amount of stocks, bonds and notes which the firm finds difficulty in selling.

The receivership action also named the Public Utilities Consolidate Corporation, the utility operating subsidiary of the company, and the W. B. Foshay Building Corporation, owner of the Foshay tower here.

Two Foshay banks affected by the collapse were taken over by other Minneapolis banks. The second Foshay bank, of St. Paul, was closed by the state bank examiner.

The Foshay concern grew from a two-man concern in 1917 to a Minneapolis personnel of 400 persons. Foshay utilities were serving nearly 200 communities in United States, Central America and Alaska, company records show.

ATLANTIC GULF IMPROVING

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—One of the companies that is profiting most from admittedly improved conditions in the shipping industry is the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies Steamship Company. The recently published statement for the first eight months of this year, showing net earnings of $9.29 a share on 199,512 common shares against 23 cents a share on the same capitalization in the corresponding months of 1928 and 81 cents a share earned in the entire year of 1927, speaks for itself. To carry the contrast further, a deficit of $212,764 in the months of July and August last year was turned into a profit of $460,607 in the same months this year.

Although it is even yet impossible to forecast with any degree of accuracy what results for the full year will be, it would seem that with earnings of over $9 a share registered in the first eight months, net for the 12 months should run between $11 and $12. Business in the closing months will be stimulated by the opening of the Florida winter season and other routes may be expected to operate at an increased rate.

CRUDE OUTPUT CONTROLLED

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—With California flush fields cutting down their yield to market requirements, we now have for the first time all flush producing oil fields of the United States prorating their yields to the requirements of markets, says E. B. Reeser, president of American Petroleum Institute.

"It will take several days for California operators to make necessary mechanical and other changes to bring actual yield down to desired amounts. I should estimate it will be accomplished about next Tuesday. This will then mean the oil industry has finally gotten its house in position of matching its yields to the consumer market demands. In other words, it is placed on a seasonal demand basis."

Stockholder Drops Receivership Suit

Counsel for Bruce N. Griffing, a majority stockholder of the Eatmor Chocolate Company, who recently applied for a temporary receiver for the company, yesterday withdrew the proceedings. They had been instituted in Common Pleas Court. Judge James R. Macfarlane handled the proceedings. Attorney A. M. Oliver, representing the company, said there was not justification for the original action.

Youth Shot in Leg At Target Practice

While shooting at a target, Edward Sinclair, 16, of West Railroad street, Verona, wounded himself in the leg, county detectives were informed. His companions, Tony Palino and Olgerico Gorrilli, each 15, were detained by Verona police to determine which one had accidentally fired the rifle shot that struck Sinclair. The accident occurred yesterday.

Prison Chaplain Discusses Riots

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Nov. 2.—Speaking before the Kiwanis Club, the Rev. A. E. Fletcher, of Knoxville, chaplain of the Western penitentiary, said the recent uprisings in prisons were due to poor food, crowded conditions and brutal treatment of prisoners.

He said that in the Western pententiary, Warden Stanley Ashe had adopted a plan of reclamation of men with the idea of fitting them for society when they were released.

Ohio Foundry Men Take Verona Posts

ALLIANCE, O., Nov. 2.—Transfer of four men from the American Steel Foundries plant here to Verona, Pa., was announced today. W. H. Scott, of the inspection department, here, becomes chief inspector at Verona; Gilbert Polen becomes cleaning room foreman, and Fred Maple, foundry superintendent here, is to become general superintendent at Verona.

Turkish Dictator Seeks More Power

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—The Turkish press is publishing reports that important changes may soon be made in the Turkish constitution giving President Mustapha Kemal the prerogatives of premier, namely the presidency of the cabinet and the choice of cabinet members. This would do away with the premiership, at present held by Gen. Iemet Pasha.

Mrs. Mueller, who charged that Mueller had beaten her and reviled her in the presence of guests, was given custody of their son, Merrill F., 13, and alimony of $250 a month.

KLINE AND DUNN PRESS FIGHT FOR MAYOR

Democrat Assails Claim of Clean City; Republicans To Hold North Side Rally

The rival candidates for mayor last night continued the drive for votes that will end at the election Tuesday.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, Republican, speaking from Radio Station WJAS, declared that the time has come for the large cities of the state to demand a share of the taxes levied on motor vehicles and gasoline in order to reduce the tax burden on real estate.

Thomas A. Dunn, Democrat and Good Government, speaking in the Bellefield School, Fourth Ward, assailed the Mayor's statement that Pittsburgh is a clean city, asserting that the raids by Federal prohibition agents, the existence of slot machines and the conviction of 239 election officers proves otherwise.

When the Mayor Wednesday said over the radio that Pittsburgh is a clean city "many of his listeners understood him to say 'Queen City,' Dunn said. He said that Kline had spent 73 days in one year at Madison, O.

ASSAILS COYNE

The Fourth Ward, Dunn charged, is the home of gambling houses run openly, the favorite hunting ground of the prohibition agents and is pre-eminent in ballot-box stuffing. Senator James J. Coyne, leader of the ward, he termed "the real power behind the mayoralty throne."

The present taxes on automobiles and gasoline are sufficiently high to take care of state needs as well as return a portion to the city, Kline said in the course of an address in which he outlined his plans for the future.

"I am convinced that by proper readjustment and a fair distribution, a sum approximating $1,000,000 can be returned to the city treasury each year without increasing the tax on motor vehicles and gasoline and without taking away one cent now coming back to the counties," he said, adding that it is necessary to find new sources of revenue to relieve the real estate levy.

BACKS PARK MOVIES

Sunday motion pictures in the parks must be made a permanent attraction, the Mayor said. He said the movies should be shown not only in Schenley, Highland, East, North and McKinley Parks, but in the smaller parks and playgrounds.

Immediate action on the rapid transit problem, construction of new thoroughfares as rapidly as is financially possible, more band concerts, additional playgrounds, support of the new Housing Commission, efforts to make the metropolitan district an actuality, upward readjustment of municipal wage scales, preference to Pittsburghers, not only in municipal work, but in business enterprises here, were urged by the Mayor.

The Republican campaign reaches its climax at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with the usual meeting of the Republican city and county committees in North Side Carnegie Hall. Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong will preside. Kline and the other candidates will speak.

HIGHTOWER FOR DUNN

Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, vice chairman of the county committee, who supported James F. Malone for mayor in the primary, introduced Mayor Kline to the radio audience last night.

Support of Dunn for mayor was urged by the Rev. A. V. B. Hightower, speaking from KQV last night, making a special appeal to Negro voters. He charged that Mayor Kline has closed his eyes to the abuse and mistreatment of that group of citizens.

"I am not in any party's vest pocket," he said. "I am casting my vote for clean, honest and decent government, so that my wife and children and those of all the good citizens of Pittsburgh may live in the spirit of true citizenship, protected by our public servants."

Oath Taken by 3 Court Reporters

Judge James R. Macfarlane of Common Pleas Court, yesterday administered the oath of office to three court reporters. They are: Edward J. Wilson, named a stenographer to fill a vacancy caused by the promotion of James W. Dillon to court stenographer, and F. K. Martin named official court stenographer. Wilson receives a salary of $3,000 a year and Martin and Dillon $4,600 a year each.

Apple Show Here Draws Record Crowd

With record crowds inspecting the Tri-State Apple and Potato Show, the Chamber of Commerce exhibit closes at 10 o'clock tonight. More than 250 growers are represented in the various groups of exhibits which opened Thursday. Student groups from several nearby towns competed in judging the apples and potatoes for merit honors in the chamber's exposition room.

Skull Fractured Sues for $25,000

As a result of a fractured skull, broken right leg and other hurts, caused by being struck by an automobile, Walter Kosak, Upper St. Clair Township, has brought suit against John J. Wolfe, Jr., for $25,000 damages. The accident occurred January 19 last, while walking in the McLaughlin Run road, near Bridgeville.

Election Overseers Named by Court

Judge James R. Macfarlane, of Common Pleas Court, has appointed overseers for the First to the Fourth districts of Brentwood and First to the Seventh districts inclusive of Wilmerding. The appointments were asked for because of local fights for offices to be filled during the coming election.

OFFERS HINTS TO CHECK FORGING

New York Expert Warns Public Against Fast Growing Crime in U. S.

While forgery has become a highly organized structure, enlisting a quarter of a million Americans from public relations counsel types down to window washers, business men can use some precaution to minimize its great financial toll.

So Fred C. Banister, of New York, says. "Forgery is the fastest growing crime in America," he said today. "It took $300,000,000 out of so many bank's accounts last year. It is going to get more this year, unless business men are more careful."

Mr. Banister is an expert, heading the forgery department of the National Surety Company, with offices here in the Arrott Building. His job is to salvage what he can from forgers' accounts.

OFFERS THESE HELPS

One way to help beat them, he says, is to follow these directions:

"Never sign petitions on the street.

"Sign letters different to checks.

"Never cash a check for a stranger. It is better to lose a small sale now and then than to take chances cashing checks for strangers.

"Never accept a check because it looks business-like. Crooks are now counterfeiting checks of well-known concerns.

"Never assume that the use of safety paper justifies the acceptance of a check as 'good.' Safety paper checks even when imprinted can be altered and neither paper nor machine can possibly prevent forgery of signature or forgery of endorsement or counterfeiting of the entire check upon paper purchased for that purpose.

"Never leave your check book or canceled vouchers where an outsider can get hold of them.

"Always have a safe place for delivery of your mail. Do not depend upon the type of box that can be easily opened by a crook."

CHILDREN ARE VICTIMS

Not only adults but children are numbered among the victims of this easy lure, Mr. Banister added. Thieves can get your checks. They have manners and means. They can get your bank account. There is no sure way to stop them. But you can use every precaution—and that will halt a lot.

Mr. Banister was formerly a member of the British Secret Service. He spends most of his time traveling, mixing with professional scratchers or interviewing them in prisons.

DRYS' CHARGES DENIED BY EAGLES

Ambridge Aerie Protests Padlocking, Declares Club Is Not Common Nuisance

Seven members of the Ambridge Aerie No. 1365, Fraternal Order of Eagles, 653 Merchant street, Ambridge, have denied that the premises occupied by the aerie were maintained as a common nuisance, as alleged by the prohibition authorities. The denial was made in an answer filed in Federal Court to an injunction proceeding brought by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington.

Attached to the answer are sets of resolutions passed by officers of the Ionic Chapter No. 194, Order of the Eastern Star; Dames of Malta, Economy Sisterhood No. 88 and Ambridge Union No. 1732, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, in which they "protest" against "padlocking" the building of the Ambridge aerie, so far as it pertains to rooms they occupy.

The Ambridge aerie has been under a temporary injunction since September 6 and the final hearing is set for Monday. The answer to the government's bill of complaint was signed by John L. Gorman, D. P. Tooley, Harry Schwartz, Stephen G. Horlick, James W. Laffey, Albert Hahn, Wilmer H. Wise and James H. Corbett. They were represented by Attorney Howard H. Devlin.

They denied that the premises are used and maintained as a place where intoxicating liquor is sold and kept in violation of the national prohibition act, but "on the contrary," the answer reads, "the Ambridge aerie is a fraternal and beneficial organization with 612 members." The answer also sets forth that the bar has been removed from the premises and the premises are not only used by the Eagles, but other fraternal bodies.

They ask for a dismissal of the injunction suit. In the bill of complaint filed against the Ambridge aerie, designated as proprietor and owner, it is alleged that prohibition agents purchased whisky in the aerie club room on May 10, May 15 and July 17, and in a raid on July 27, 86 cases of home brew beer, two quarts of whisky and two bottles of gin were seized.

COURTS IMPOSE LONG TERMS HERE

Ending of October Sitting Shows 452 to 1,041 Years Were Imposed

When criminal court rose today on completion of the October term, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner added up the results and announced that sentences totaling 452 years and 6 months to 1,041 years and 11 months, one life sentence and 11 indeterminate sentences to Huntingdon Reformatory had been imposed by the judges since the opening of the fall term in September.

The enormous total of sentences resulted principally because of long terms imposed on a large number of robbers and stickup men, more than a dozen gangsters drawing from 15 to 30 on up to 30 to 60-year sentences. The life sentence, the first imposed in Allegheny County under the habitual criminal act, fell to John B. Sloan, arch highwayman and robber.

TOTAL IS LARGE

In September a total of 190 years and one month to 472 years and 10 months in sentences were meted out, while in October the total was 262 years to 569 years and one month and the life sentence was imposed.

A large number of youthful robbers, caught red-handed, chose to plead guilty rather than stand trial. Sentencing of them fell to Presiding Judge Harry H. Rowand, who in October alone imposed sentences totaling 120 years, two months, to 260 years, 11 months.

FACED STERN DUTY

In pronouncing many of these sentences Judge Rowand remarked on the stern duty imposed upon the judge to make sentences severe as an example to others in order to curb the crime wave.

Another unusual feature of the fall court term was the large proportion of convictions, 70 per cent of the defendants who stood trial having been found guilty, with only 30 per cent acquitted. Usually about half of those tried are found not guilty.

JOCK LOSES ONLY ONE NOVEMBER TILT

PITT'S football team was to find itself up against a new sort of test in meeting Ohio State at The Stadium this afternoon, it being a departure from the usual order of things for Panther gridders to get a chance to match their wares with those of a member of the Western Conference. They had tussled with opponents from all other parts of the football map, but a clash with a representative of the Big Ten was to be something new, the first time such a team had ever played here.

Wesley Fesler

However, judging from the relative merits of the two teams, as far as the same could be estimated on paper, in advance of the game, the test of strange opposition this afternoon appeared unlikely to halt the victorious march of the Blue and Gold. In a general sense, any existing margin of superiority seemed to be on the side of Pitt. The Panthers this fall rank with the best elevens in the country, and though Ohio State, pepped up by a new coaching system and famous for a school spirit not surpassed anywhere in the land, is always a worthy opponent for any team, advance signs indicate that the Sutherland troops would add another victory to their season's string—that had not been marred by a defeat or a tie.

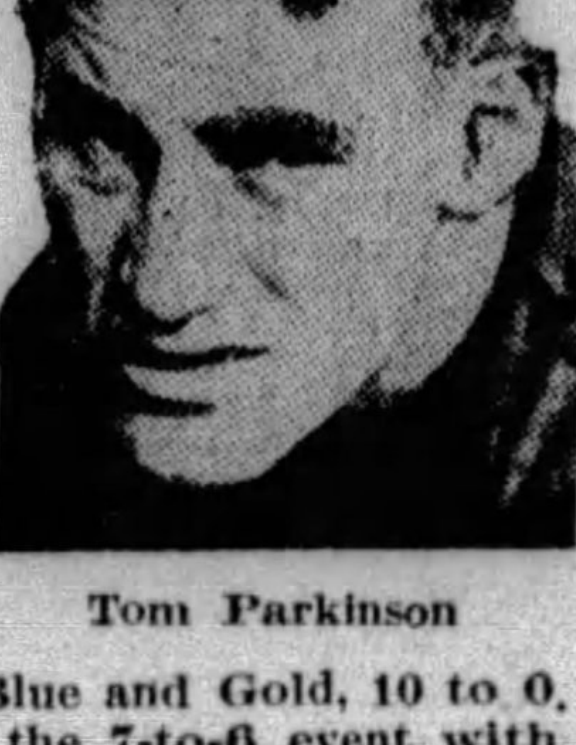
COMPARATIVE performances during the campaign to date, as far comparisons were possible, appeared to show an advantage for the Panthers in the line as well as in the backfield. To begin with, the possession of Joe Donchess gave the locals practically a stand-off against Wesley Fesler, rated by some judges the best end in the country.

Though it seemed that Fontaine might have a little on Collins at the other wing the remainder of the forward positions showed a bulge for the Pittites. It was principally a greater scoring punch in the backfield, the factor that seemed likely to decide the game, that made the locals look like the probable winners in the dope before the contest.

ALLEN HOLMAN, star quarterback of the visitors, ranked as a better passer than any Pitt regular, and it was conceded that McConnell could punt with the best of them.

But the Pitt halfbacks outclassed those of O. S. U. as end-running ball carriers, and as for the fullback post it was clear that Holcomb would not be able to measure up to Parkinson.

ANOTHER item that strengthened the dope pointing to a Pitt triumph today was the fact that the first game in the Panthers' grid relations with Ohio State was to be played on a November date. For this is the month in which Dr. Sutherland shines. Annually he may bring his team along rather slowly during the first five weeks, but by the time November arrives he generally has it hitting on all cylinders.



Tom Parkinson

BEATING a Sutherland-coached eleven in November has come to be considered one of the toughest contracts in football. Since he started coaching here in 1924, Jock has lost only one November game, up to today.

That lone defeat was suffered on November 15, 1924, when W. & J. downed the Blue and Gold, 10 to 0. The only other game lost after October was the 7-to-6 event with Stanford following the season of 1927. Two November games with W. & J. and one with Nebraska resulted in ties.

THE following was received from B. Leys, of Grand Rapids, Mich.: "I am surprised that The Stadium in Pittsburgh was filled last Saturday, even though it was for the first time, if patrons are often treated at football games there as some were treated on that occasion.. General admission tickets were sold and not honored by ticket takers. There seemed to be no order or system.

"A woman, two men and a little boy came in with stubs for seats in the row in front of the one in which I sat. The seats were occupied, and an usher was called. He informed the persons occupying the seats that their proper locations were several rows back, but they merely laughed at him and remained seated. The usher told a policeman, but the latter evidently was too interested in the game to interfere.

"PERHAPS it wasn't the policeman's duty, but surely a person is entitled to a full seat (and they are small enough) if he or she pays for it. The woman, two men and boy just had to squeeze in as best they could, and try to enjoy the game. If that is a sample of the usual treatment I am not surprised that crowds have not filled The Stadium. I am sure I'd make plenty of fuss to get what belongs to me. In my travels around Pittsburgh I've noticed this same condition at other times at baseball, football and hockey games. In fact, I have refused to attend any more hockey games because of it. I wonder why such a condition exists? I enjoy reading your column, and for that reason I take this liberty of writing you."

Ted Saussele

CARNEGIE TECH plays on a foreign field this afternoon, meeting Washington University in St. Louis, but in view of the improvement shown in the Plaid's work last Saturday there was no doubt prior to the game that the Steffenites would win by a decisive margin.

Washington depends largely upon two sophomore halfbacks, Ted Saussele and Waid, both of whom have performed sensationally, but the remainder of the team did not appear to class with the Skibos. Washington is coached by Al Sharpe, former Yale and Cornell mentor. Gale Bullman, line coach, was a crack end for West Virginia Wesleyan a few years ago.

ADDITIONAL interest was given to one of the East's big football games today, Yale against Dartmouth at New Haven, by the fact that two of the most sensational backfield stars of the year were scheduled to clash—Booth, of Yale, and Marsters, of Dartmouth.

Marsters, the leading scorer of the East up to date, is a polished veteran, but at that he has not outshone the comparatively green Booth, whose work in the Brown and Army games went into the records as one of the features of the season. Comparisons of the two today promised to be interesting.

AFTER the fine start to which night football got away here last night, with Duquesne and Geneva staging the first college contest of the sort at Forbes Field, it is safe to predict that there will be a demand for further moonlight competition here this fall and also next season.

The initial night game was a pleasing success from every viewpoint. A total of 36 arc lamps illuminated the field to such an extent that players and spectators alike were able to follow the white ball without trouble. Fears expressed that the gridders would not be able to judge punts prove unfounded, as the

HOMECOMING CELEBRATED BY PREXYS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 2.—This is football's day in Washington. King Pigskin rules this afternoon as Wash-Jeff and Lafayette clash on the College Field gridiron and his minions from both institutes will pay homage by the thousand.

As the home-coming engagement on the Presidents' schedule, the greatest throng of the season is certain. The vanguard began arriving yesterday, was augmented constantly throughout the evening and this morning the real influx was experienced as partisans of both teams kept pouring into the city.

EXPECT BIG CROWD

Prospects of inclement weather did not seem to have much effect on the attendance prospects as a majority had obtained their seats in advance, the disposal of which had lagged somewhat at midweek, but took a spurt and it was expected that close to 12,000, the capacity of the field and stands, would see the twelfth game between the teams.

Last night Wash-Jeff alumni had a big banquet and this evening additional "old grad" affairs are scheduled with Lafayette alumni invited.

The Lafayette team, which had been quartered since yesterday morning at Greensburg, reached here late this morning. The big Lafayette band, one of the finest in the East, arrived at about the same hour, with many Lafayette undergraduates. Colorful features will attend the combat. Headed by bands of both schools and the drum and bugle corps of the American Legion of Washington, the Wash-Jeff and Lafayette undergraduates and alumni, and any others who want to, will hold an extended parade ending at College Field. The W. & J. students have prepared special stunts during the game as well.

EVEN BETTING

The contest is regarded in most sections as an even affair, and only little betting is seen. W. & J. has a clean slate with two ties, and Lafayette has been beaten by Bucknell and Penn State, although it seemed to have both games stowed away. The contest, starting at 2 o'clock this afternoon, is expected to be typical, and consequently very close.

SOUTH HILLS TAKES LEAD

South Hills High smothered Oliver under a 25-0 score in their Section 2, City League game yesterday, gaining the leadership of the group by virtue of the victory.

Chicago Turf Fans Wager $40,000,000

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 2.—(INS.)—Over $40,000,000 was wagered at the pari-mutuel booths of Chicago race traks during the 155-day racing season which ended Thursday afternoon, it was disclosed today from figures given out by state inspectors.

One million persons passed through the turnstiles to see the racing cards, which drew a record-making business this year, it was shown in the report of Clarence Buck, director of the tate Department of Agriculture.

Five racing organizations are estimated to have divided actual profits of $1,500,000 during the season.

NEW STADIUM RECORD MAY BE SET

RESERVES COUNT

The thing that makes this Pitt team so powerful is the power encased in its reserves. Pitt's second team, the one that tore things up against Duke; that gave West Virginia a right merry tussle and that ran rough shod over Allegheny and held Nebraska better than even, gives Coach Sutherland the use of a magazine bursting with offensive and defensive football shells. As for the varsity—its record speaks for itself.

There is a possibility today that Pitt will send a slightly rearranged lineup onto the field to start the game. Josh Williams, sterling little right halfback, who suffered a knee injury in the Nebraska game, will be a doubtful starter, and the right halfback job will not be definitely awarded until time for the opening whistle.

In the event that Josh is not able to get to the post, either Jimmy Rooney, the rangy North Side youth, a fine kicker and passer and when aroused, a ripping ball-toter, or Leo Murphy, sophomore halfback of Youngstown, will handle the job. The right halfback job is not the spot one would place either Jimmy or Leo if it were not absolutely necessary, as they work best from the other side of the backfield.

Williams, you see, is a southpaw, who runs a bit better to the left than to the right, and therefore is an ideal man for the job. Of course, this is all technical. If you don't get the angle, don't worry—neither do I.

There will be no further changes in the usual order of things in the Panther lineup. Joe Donchess and Rip Collins will start at the ends. Jim MacMurdo and Charlie Tully are to be at the tackles with Ray Montgomery and Capt. Luby Di Meolo at the guards. Ralph Daugherty will play center. Eddie Baker is a fixture at quarter and Toby Uansa will play left half. Tom Parkinson, Pitt's bid for the all-America fullback honor, will play that position.

O. S. U. LINEUP UNCERTAIN

Ohio State's lineup is also uncertain, more so than Pitt's. Wesley Fesler, the crack wingman of the Buckeyes, who is to duel with Donchess today for possible all-America selection, and Lawton Fontaine are expected to be at the ends. Fesler will certainly be there. The tackles positions will be filled by Marsh, left, and Larkins or Haubrich, right.

TECH FAVORED TO DEFAT WASHINGTON

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2.—It appears highly probable that Dr. Al Sharpe, whose Washington University football team hasn't won an important game in so long that he's beginning to enjoy the sensation, is in for an exceedingly pleasant afternoon.

The astute doctor's Washington Bears will meet the Tartans of Carnegie Tech here at 3 p. m. Pittsburgh time, today, and there is no reason to believe that the Bruins' record, as yet unsullied by a victory against a major team, will be in any way marred as a result of the encounter. The Tartans, who, despite a one-touchdown defeat, handled the Notre Dame Irish very indelicately last Saturday, are overwhelmingly favorites, and the Bears are being confidently counted upon here to lose as gracefully in this intersectional game as they would in their own Missouri Valley Conference.

The teams are evenly matched in weight, but the comparison ends there. Where Carnegie has a tie with W. and J., and a defeat by Notre Dame to explain away, Washington has a scoreless tie with Grinnell College and a 20-to-0 beating at the hands of Drake University to account for. The only games in the victory column at Washington came at the expense of two obscure schools, Illinois College and Drury College.

Despite their unimpressive record, however, the Bears cannot be counted as a total loss, for they have two backs who constitute a threat against any opposition. Red Ted Saussele, the whirling dervish at left half, and little Les Waid, quarterback, both sophomores, undoubtedly are two of the finest ball carriers Washington has boasted in recent years, the superior power of the Carnegie line may stop them, but, given a fast field and fair interference, they are always a threat.

RANDALL WINS BY TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Tiger Joe Randall turned in a technical knockout victory over Walter Majeske, of Wilkinsburg, at the end of the seventh round of the scheduled 10-round windup at the Moose Temple last night. Referee Al Grayber halted the hard-fought battle when he discovered that Majeske's left eye, cut and puffed in a bout at McKeesport a week ago, and under which he wore a patch last night, was closed as tight as the proverbial drum.

Tiger Joe, the squat little Negro puncher, of Elizabeth, Pa., was just beginning to gain a decisive edge when the finish came. Majeske had outboxed him in the opening round, gone down for a count of seven from a right to the jaw, but recovered beautifully in the second, lost the third by a shade, held his own in the fourth and had been outpunched in the last three rounds. He went down in his own corner for a count of two in the sixth round as Randall smothered him with punches and should have taken nine. In the seventh round, he was so badly handicapped by the closed eye that the referee acted wisely in calling a halt after the beaten gladiator had gone back to his corner.

Majeske weighed 147¼ pounds and Randall 145 at 3 p. m.

MONROE BEATS KETCHEL

The semi-final also was a hard-fought battle, with Frank Monroe, of Fair Haven, winning the award over Walter Ketchel, of Detroit. After losing the first two rounds, Monroe began to weaken Ketchel with body blows and he scored knockdowns for counts of nine in the third round and six in the fifth. Ketchel claimed a foul on the latter flooring, but it was due to a right hand downward chop that landed in the pit of the stomach. The claim was disallowed and Walter got up and fought back vigorously. He tin canned throughout the final round, however. Monroe weighed 165¼ pounds and Ketchel 168.

Cowboy DeLuca, of Lawrenceville, 146¾ pounds, easily outboxed Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, in the first two rounds of the second bout and then began to take liberties with him until Georgie came from behind with a rush and took the lead on solid punching, never to be headed again. Bretsch

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

A spectacular flock of Bluff Night-hawks swirled down upon Forbes Field last evening and scattered to flight the tawny Flenniken fledglings of Geneva most astoundingly as 20,000 delirious Western Pennsylvanians absorbed initial taste of post-prandial college football in the dramatic brilliance of the Cahill lights. It had been some 37 years since Duquesne had ripped off gridiron victory over the ever-stubborn Beaver Falls array, bitterest of traditional foes of the Red and Blue, and when triumph finally came to the Hill combine, it brought with it a point for every twelve month of that lengthy and jonah-ridden span, the count that glared from the distant tally-board as the joyous throng jammed from the stands reading 27 to 7 for the Layden-coached Dukes.

Never in the annals of district football has there been more spectacular competition than that which greeted roaring fandom in the almost theatrical setting of the historic Oakland ball yard throughout that conclusive and remarkable Bluffite vendetta. Every dazzling stunt, every thrilling and heart-splitting break known to the many-sided pastime of the pigskin appeared to crop up for the edification of the mob that dashed from its dinner to rush the gates of the Dreyfuss arena. Sensational spurts from kick-off and scrimmage, streaking passes that arched in flaring whiteness into the arms of far-off receivers, scintillant defensive bits, the inspired courage of two teams that fought savagely to the last—all these served well with the uncanny blaze of an incandescent island in a sea of night, with bands and cheers and the tricks and trimmings adjunct to the game, to imprint indelibly on the mind of the beholder a glittering memory of varsity pageantry.

DUKES' CIRCUS

The fray was a Duquesne circus show, with Ringmasters Layden and Bach directing the performance well nigh flawlessly. To be sure, a tiger, disguised as John Knapik, of Youngstown, tore loose and ran amuck at the very outset of the program to effect more damage to the peace of the partisan crowd than a stiff, but happily brief, shower had been able to accomplish a few minutes earlier; but it was not long ere the Duke authorities had convinced even the most timorous of those present that the situation was nicely in hand from a home point of view and that further hostile outbreaks were unlikely to materialize. For once the bill had swung properly under way, the masterly display put forth by the unbeaten Hilltop host was of a nature to justify entirely all claims upon the part of the Red and Blue to formal recognition on the big time.

It was the Layden Foot Cavalry—Donnelli, Kovalcheck, Benedict, Burns, McCarthy and Devinney—that first swarmed over the ramparts of the Gold and White to place the Hillmen on the path to glory. But even before those prancing backs lashed in their licks, a magnificent Bach-drilled forward wall had thwarted the power of the enemy attack to open the off-tackle and overhead road to success. Then, in the second half, to ram home definitely the win, two sophomore halves—Fred Cristina and George Chacko—made many a hole to aid in the compilation of a trio of touchdowns and to complicate still further the serious question of how the Bluff mentors shall dispose of what threatens to amount to a plethora of meteoric oval-carriers.

As intimated above, the contest opened none too auspiciously for the Dukes. Capt. Donnelli, nursing an infected leg, was held on the bench at the start, Lou Skender kicking off to Kapik, who fumbled on the Geneva nine-yard mark, recovered quickly, and swept up the right of the field behind a massive wave of interference to sift through a seemingly bewildered Steel City defense and into the fairway for a breath-taking touchdown. Capt. Red Davis, of the Covenanters, topped off the procedure by booting goal from placement. Was a favored Bluffite crew again to be whirled off balance and toppled backward by a Beaver County underdog?

SPLENDID KICK

Duquesne, dazed but game, elected to receive the ensuing kick-off and, thanks to a splendid 61-yard punt by Joe McCarthy and a pretty cut off right tackle by Benedict for 11 yards, the spheroid promptly was planted deep in Geneva territory. But a 15-yard holding penalty suddenly halted the Duke advance and the remainder of the period consisted chiefly of punts and fruitless passes, though on one sparkling occasion, Benedict once more slipped clear at starboard tackle, this time 31 yards and a first down on the Covenanter 33.

The triple-threat Knapik, a great star and no mistake, terminated frame one by intercepting a protracted McCarthy toss over left wing on the Geneva 20 and speeding 52 yards up the right to the Duquesne 28 where various locals ultimately downed him.

But this visiting splurge was short-lived, Benedict returning the interception compliment by seizing a Knapik heave on the Duke 18 and returning eight yards to the 26. Devinney relieved McCarthy at quarterback for the Laydenites and on an exchange of punts breezed from his own 35 out of bounds on the right on the Geneva 43. A lateral pass, Devinney to Kovalcheck, lost a yard and a forward toss, Benedict to Murphy, was grounded over right end. On the following play, Devinney hurled the pellet long over mid-line to Murphy, who snared it handsomely for first down on the Geneva 14.

Kovalcheck banged center for five, and slashed at right guard as Geneva was offside and drew a five-yard penalty for a Duke first down four yards from the goal. On an incirect pass from Devinney, Kovalcheck bored to the end zone, only to fumble and see the alert Davis recover over the line for a touchback that gave the Gold and White the ball on her own 20 mark. The Geneva jinx was dying hard!

Seaburn promptly punted to Devinney, who was spilled in his tracks on the Duke 45. For a moment here the Bluffites faltered. Burns dropped four at left tackle and an instant later Pietsch, invading fullback, intercepted a Devinney pass on the Hill 47 to give his team the ball on that parallel.

Geneva punted on third down, the boot being blocked and recovered by a Covenanter. Again Seaburn kicked and Devinney was thrown on his own 22. Duke replacements were now in order and with fresh blood in the lineup, the touchdown march began. Burns dented left tackle for four. Benedict swished through opposite side for 14 and first down on the Duke 40.

Donnelli, who had taken over Kovalcheck's fullback duties, clipped center for three. At this juncture Sammy Pratt entered the fracas. A controversy arose as to whether or not Sammy should be permitted to wear a blue jersey, his mates being without exception clad in white. The debate ended in a decision for the Pittsburghers and, with all Genevans expecting a pass to the dark target that was Pratt, Benedict calmly threw high over center to Joe Tavelli for 44 yards and first down on the Geneva 13.

DONNELLI SCORES

A double pass-forward pass, Burns to Benedict to Devinney was grounded at right end. Burns skirted the same flank for eight, and Donnelli added another yard at center. A pass, Devinney to Benedict was grounded, but Geneva was offside on the play and the consequent penalty gave the Dukes first down a yard short of the goal.

A low snap from center rolled away from Burns, who recovered for a six-yard loss, but again the Covenanters had been offside and this time the leather was planted scarce half-a-yard from the fatal strip, whence Donnelli plunged over some 30 seconds prior to the close of the half. On the try for point, Devinney gathered in a slightly wooly pass-back to lay the ball for "Bootin' Buff," who nearly negotiated the goal to deadlock the score.

The Dukes received the kick-off in the second half and, with Cristina and Chacko slaughtering the tackles, marched without halt from their own 12-yard mark across for what proved to be the winning counter. Carrying the apple eight times, Cristina accounted for 77 yards in the course of this sally. With first down on the Geneva three, Kovalcheck literally hurtled over the piled-up lines to cross the goal, but a holding penalty set the Hillmen back to the 16. Three line attempts left the oval near the five mark, whereupon McCarthy zipped a pass over left terminal to Kovalcheck in the end zone. A Genevan was right with the Duke husky on the trial and in his overzealousness to prevent the catch was guilty of interference, Referee Cavanaugh ruling the tally good amid wild hurrahs from the gallery. McCarthy's placement was a little to the left of the uprights.

Geneva came to life at this stage and with two passes, Knapik to Davis, registered a brace of first downs that left the pigskin on the Duquesne 24. But a low snap from center cost eight precious yards and on the ensuing skirmish, Kovalcheck intercepted a Knapik heave intended for Davis and the last Covenanter threat was averted as the rangy Duke stepped off 35 yards and out on the left on his own 47.

KOVALCHEK TALLIES

Shortly after this event, Doggo Burns, who had returned for Chacko at right half, slipped an oar in to top off a consistent parade by Cristina and Kovalcheck that had wound up the third stanza with the ball on the Geneva 20 and first down for Duquesne. Taking the oval on the inaugural play of the concluding quarter, Burns sped around left end for 16 yards and first down on the Geneva four mark. The rest was simple, Cristina cracking right tackle for three and Kovalcheck diving over for the remaining yard and the touchdown. Skender made good the try for point.

The fourth and clinching marker was the fruit of a personally conducted 84-yard excursion by "Pharmic Fred" Cristina. Knapik had punted dead on the Duke four-yard line. McCarthy sneaked six on a short center drive. Cristina grabbed two at right tackle, but Geneva was offside and a five-yard penalty meant first down for the Dukes on their own 16. This was sufficient encouragement for Cristina, who, on the next scrimmage, clove right tackle, shook off numerous detaining hands, and was off up the right as interference strung expertly behind him to ward off ambitious Genevans who could never have overtaken the flying pharmacist once he beheld free passage before him anyway. Donnelli's placement hung up the night-cap clicker, and what little was left of the engagement consisted mainly of a gay procession of Duke substitutes, who might not have turned to advantage a Knapik punt that lofted from the rear of the end zone out of bounds on the Geneva 22, the good-bye whistle leaving the possibilities of this interesting situation a subject of controversy forever.

George Burns Gets Release From A's

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—George Burns, veteran first baseman and utility player, who joined the world champion Athletics in midseason this year, has been unconditionally released. The announcement was made yesterday by Secretary Robert Schroeder in the absence of Manager Connie Mack.

Burns is a 10-year man and thus has the right to negotiate with any major or minor league club.

GLENDALE MOVE REVEALED

By TOM BIRKS.

Despite the fact that in some quarters there is a blanket denial that the Glendale club protested the game with Heidelberg, stating that the club is not of that type, the following quotation, being the first paragraph of the official letter sent to Manager Balsarini, of Heidelberg, from Secretary Cahill, of the National challenge cup committee, might interest the fans who have followed the charges:

"At a meeting of the N. C. C. C. committee held at this office last evening, the objection lodged by the Glendale S. C. against the playing of amateur players, D. Cimeralli and George Chappel, in the first round of the N. C. C. C. was discussed at length."

Of course, those technical experts who ruled upon many interesting problems in the district, and usually ruled wrong, probably will insist that lodging an objection is not a protest.

Fans might go back to the discussion between the Corinthians and the Heidelberg club relative to a game that was late in starting at Heidelberg last season, and upon the outcome of which game rested the championship of the American League.

The Corinthians did not lodge a protest, they merely lodged a letter of objection to various things that happened in the game and the outcome was the same as in a protest, and now a matter of history. These people who split straws can get themselves into a jam, and maybe the Glendale club or its advisor did not lodge a formal protest; it was done in the nature of an objection, which is a much cleaner name, and it does not give the impression that it seeps of poor sportsmanship. But the result is the same. The same paragraph states that Manager Krall is too good a sportsman to protest, but how about playing McAlwee? And Manager Balsarini wants to be qouted that the Secretary of the Chartiers Valley League, who is also secretary of the West Penn Football Association, and has access to inside information stated that he would protect the members of the Chartiers Valley League when opposed to clubs outside of that loop.

And this is all right from the secretary of the Chartiers Valley League, but not from the secretary of the West Penn Football Association. The council should get together and divorce this combination of league and West Penn business.

Horton Smith Sets Pace in Oregon Open

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 2.—Over the wind-swept and fog-bound golf course of the Columbia Country Club, Horton Smith, boy golfing wonder of Joplin, Mo., led a field of 118 amateur and professional golfers yesterday in the final qualifying 18 holes of the third Oregon open golf championship, rounding out his 36 holes in 134, 10 strokes under par. He ended the final 18 yesterday with an even 67.

Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, and Walter Hagen, New York, followed Smith, Dutra shooting 69-71—140 and Hagen 71-69—140.

several times knocked DeLuca into the ropes and on other occasions DeLuca backed through them to avoid punishment. On the whole, the Cowboy took a bad beating and was lucky to go the limit.

THOMAS SCORES KNOCKOUT

Jimmy Thomas, a flashy little Negro from the Hill, scaling only 115 pounds, and managed by Able Witz, displayed a lot of stuff in punching Joe Pace, of the North Side, 111¾, into submission in one minute of the first round of the opening bout, the referee stopping the slaughter as Pace was arising from a knockdown at the count of eight.

The attendance was small, the Dukes' night football game at Forbes Field undoubtedly affecting it. It was announced that Hans Roberts, the popular German welterweight, will meet Dominick Profio, Italian knockout ace, of Cecil, in the main bout next Friday night.

Al Grayber refereed all of the bouts and the judges were Frank Brown and Frank Ferris. Ray Eberle did the announcing.

TURTLE CREEK HOST

One of the most important games on the scholastic football calendar will be up for disposal at Turtle Creek this afternoon when Turtle Creek Union High plays hosts to the Little Presidents of Washington. Both teams will enter the fray with an undefeated record, and a close, hard battle is expected.

Long's Sport Comment

great majority of kicks were cleanly caught and handled and most of the fumbles made were on line plays. The plays were run off smoothly on a field that was free from shadows, and from the stands the contest was as enjoyable to the 20,000 spectators as if it had been played in daylight.

WHEN it is considered that many working persons are unable to attend afternoon football games, even on Saturdays, the fact that this new arrangement will give them a chance to see games in their off hours after dark is another argument that will work for the continuance of the plan here.

It looks as if night games have come to stay. Independent teams are already dickering for the use of Forbes Field when the Dukes are not occupying it. The installation of the light system is said to have cost the Dukes about $6,000, but the cost of lighting for two hours, it is estimated, will not exceed $10.

IT WAS a pleasing uphill fight that carried the Dukes to their decisive 27-to-7 victory over Geneva, after they had been placed at a disadvantage on the opening kick-off, when Knapik ran almost the length of the field for a touchdown.

As a result of the triumph the Bluffites are still undefeated this season, but last night's win was particularly a source of joy to their followers because it marked the first time in a quarter of a century that Duquesne succeeded in beating Geneva. In the meantime Geneva has defeated the Dukes eight times, and the local boys had not even scored against the Beaver Falls lads since 1923.

ROGER BERNARD DUE TODAY

Roger Bernard

Roger Bernard, the lightweight star, of Flint, Mich., who meets Phil Goldstein, of the Hill, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden Monday night, is due to arrive in town some time today, accompanied by his manager, Mike McNulty, who first gained prominence as the manager of Johnny Ertle, the St. Paul Kewpie, who claimed the world bantamweight championship after winning on a foul over Kid Williams, more than a decade ago. Bernard will work out in the Motor Square gym tomorrow afternoon.

Goldstein will arrive tomorrow morning from New York, where he has done his conditioning.

The Garden has completed a good preliminary card for the show. Dan Billick, of Duquesne, and Carl Cavelli, of Canton, O., are in the eight-round semi-final; Eddie Brannon, of the Hill, and Andy Andrucci, of the East End, in the second bout of six rounds, and Young Joe Walcott, of Washington, Pa., and Marty Simmons, of Wilkinsburg, welters, in the six-round opener.

VINCE DUNDEE MARRIES

Vince Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, brother of Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion, was married on Wednesday to Miss Constance Rossi, of Newark, N. J., and now is on a honeymoon trip in Virginia.

Drew Snavely will accompany Johnny Windsor as the latter's manager when the Herron Hill middleweight leaves tonight for Florida to campaign during the winter. Johnny's first bout will be with Bobby Cox at Jacksonville next Wednesday night.

Marty Gold and Frisco Grande, flyweights, have been matched to box the main bout of the opening show of the Elks' Club at Franklin, Pa., next Wednesday night.

MAY REMATCH TUG, JOE

Promoter Jim McGirr is trying to rematch Joe Trippe and Tug Phillips for an early show at McKeesport, where Trippe stopped Tug in the fifth round Thursday night, Phillips claiming he got a fast count.

Willie Davies, of Charleroi, and his manager, Jim Buchanan, leave tonight for New York, where Willie begins his quest for recognition as flyweight champion of the world by taking on Black Bill in the first round of the New York commission's elimination tournament Monday night. Willie is in excellent shape for the test.

NATIONAL CUP TIE TODAY

TODAY'S GAMES.

National Cup.

Glendale at Pierpoint Motors. O'Conner.

District League.

Union Switch at Celtics.
Rovers at Crafton Heights.

Beaver Valley League.

Ambridge at New Castle.

Washington County.

Arden at Houston.

Soccerdom likely will pack in the Pierpoint game this afternoon as it is the feature tilt of the day. There was a chance the game might be postponed following the communication sent to the National secretary by Manager Balsarini, but as nothing has been heard from Thomas Cahill, the game will go on.

The Pierpoints will take the field a heavy favorite despite the fact Glendale gave Heidelberg a tough tussle in the first round. However, should Jimmy Moremen again be in goal-getting form, he will be hard to stop.

In the District League the Union Switch and Signal eleven will try to capture the points from the Celtics. The Switch is after the Douglas leadership and it should be a good game.

The Rovers will travel to Crafton to the Heights, while in the Beaver Valley League, Steven Horlick's team from Ambridge will meet New Castle.

D. & E. Director Brings Tech Into Picture

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2.—"Clarence Overend, director of athletics at Carnegie Tech, told me that Tech dropped West Virginia University in football because Stansbury, director at Morgantown, used domineering methods in his schedule making," said Director Jennings Randolph, of D. & E. here today in letting it be known further why Davis and Elkins decided to drop West Virginia.

Randolph charged that West Virginia University has always taken a domineering attitude in her athletic relationships with Davis and Elkins and in booking games had "dictated the date and applied the rule according to their own interpretation."

"The public will be told the facts in a very few days," added Randolph, who stated that West Virginia was trying by all means possible to cause the Senator officials embarrassment.

GIANTS, CHISOX TO TRAIN IN MEXICO CITY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

An unprecedented junket to Mexico City by John McGraw's Giants and Donie Bush's White Sox will be an outstanding feature of next spring's baseball training card. A switch of training sites by several other major league teams also is slated.

The Detroit Tigers, who trained at Phoenix under Stanley Harris last year, will be taken to Tampa, Fla., by the same Harris. The Washington Senators will forsake Tampa for some other point. President Griffith has not yet decided on the site for next year. The Boston Americans and Philadelphia Nationals also are in doubt as to their 1930 quarters.

FLORIDA LEADS

Florida, as usual, will lead the states in camps. Eight major league clubs have arranged to pitch their tents in the resort state. Those listed include four from each league, as follows: Athletics, Yankees, Browns and Tigers, of the American League, and Cardinals, Robins, Reds and Braves of the National League.

California will continue to entertain the Pirates at Paso Robles and the Cubs on Catalina Island, with Texas sporting the Giants and White Sox at the San Antonio Park. The Indians will stay in New Orleans.

John McGraw and the White Sox officials completed plans for the big Mexican tour while the two teams prepared last season. The Giants were at San Antonio and the White Sox in Dallas.

The unusual barnstorming jaunt calls for a long series of games to be played en route to the famous capital city. The idea seems to be popular with the athletes and the effect of such a long jump for exhibition purposes will be watched with much interest.

BUCS TO RETURN

The Pirates will travel to their Paso Robles abode for the seventh consecutive Spring. The fine ball park at the little California town is one of its most alluring assets from the standpoint of a baseball training camp. The weather, as a rule, is ideal for training, although the change of climates apparently brings some temparary bad reactions to the athletes. All in all, however, Paso Robles gets a club in shape.

Wrigley is the custodian of the Catalina playground, which is the permanent home of the Cubs.

Selby and Griffith or Ujhelyi will line up at the guards. The hefty Fred Barratt will play center.

Allen Holman, State's crafty field general and the star of the backfield, figures to hear the thud of the opening kick at quarter. Holcomb will be at fullback, with Nesser, McConnell or Horn at the halves. McConnell and Horn are both excellent punters, and the chances are that one or the other will be left on the bench for replacement duty, thus giving Nesser the starting job at right half.

Fesler, ranked as an all-America end last year, is the outstanding figure on the State team. He is a big, rangy fellow, a truly great all-around player, alert and knifing on the defense and a sure pass-snagger and aid to the interference when State has the ball.

O'Shaughnessy and Dill, lettermen, are the leading State reserve ends. Bell, Kile and Carter are choice tackle and guard replacements. Fouch and McClure are expected to see some action in the backfield.

STARTS AT 2 O'CLOCK

The kickoff is slated for 2:00 p. m. razor blade sharp. The game will not be broadcast locally, but arrangements have been made by the Ohio State University radio station to put the game on the air from Columbus. You know, the old remote control stuff.

A ball at the William Penn and a rip-roaring smoker at the University Club opened the festivities attending the classic last night. Ohio State's crack 110 piece band blared its way into town on the first of the incoming special trains from Columbus this morning and will add much to the zest of the proceedings between halves and before and after the game this afternoon. A luncheon for critics and newspapermen is booked for the P. A. A. at noon.

While the local classic usurps the major glare of the gridiron spotlight for the day, locally at least, other fine games are being offered in the tri-state district.

At Washington, Pa., Wash-Jeff plays to Lafayette for the first time in the dozen meetings between the two institutions. In addition to being the hosts, the Prexys are the favorites. Ray Ride and Bill Amos have steered their Red and Black craft through the season so far without being sunk. Lafayette has taken two on the button.

Thiel, aiming for the Tri-State Class B Conference title, or perhaps a tie, moves on Allegheny in a non-Conference game and promises to give the Methodists a torrid afternoon in Meadville. Waynesburg hopes to do better against Grove City at Grove City than Geneva did with the Crimson at Beaver Falls last week.

ST. VINCENT'S IN SCRANTON

St. Vincent's is in Scranton for a game with Jack Harding's St. Thomas varsity. Bethany invades New Wilmington for a Conference game with Westminster.

Carnegie Tech, third member of the city's collegiate triumvirate, is in St. Louis, there to tangle with Washington University. The Tartans are entering this game prime and justly so, favorites.

Duquesne's Dukes, following their night game with Geneva at Forbes Field last evening, will watch Pitt and Ohio State at the Stadium.

Chicago-Princeton Game Over KDKA

The major inter-section football game which will be brought to the attention of thousands of people who can attend a game by the way of their radio receiving set, will be a play-by-play account of the Chicago-Princeton game brought them directly from the Princeton Stadium through Radio Station KDKA linked with the NBC System beginning at 2:00 o'clock today.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Jeffrey J. Morley, 59, for 10 years vice president of the Kansas City Blues Baseball Club, died last night at Research Hospital following an illness of five weeks.

GRID LEADERS DRAW 250,000

YALE IS READY FOR TEST WITH DARTMOUTH

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Anywhere the thousands look or the millions tune in today along the football fronts, they should have no difficulty in detecting the thrills of some of the greatest gridiron battles of the year.

Close to 250,000 fans will see four of the teams foremost in the race for National championship honors—Southern California, Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Dartmouth—run into a variety of powerful opposition that may abruptly reduce this "Big Four" to a "big two and a half."

Upward of 100,000 spectators will watch the undefeated Western Conference elevens struggle to keep their slates clean in defiance of Old Man Upset.

TWO "TITLE BOUTS"

The Big Six has its own trio of family quarrels. Texas and Southern Methodist fight the big battle of the day in the southwest. The Southern Conference slate shows at least two "title bouts" for such of the forces as are not engaged for the day in intersectional warfare.

To top all this off, there is the glamorous duel of all-America candidates at New Haven, where Yale's Albie Booth will attempt to show that a "good little man" can upset the old ..iom and beat a "good big man"—Dartmouth's Al Marsters.

Unless Southern California experiences a reaction from its terrific struggle to victory over Stanford last Saturday, the Trojans figure to beat California and clinch the Pacific Coast Conference title. The Bears, however, have plenty of man-power, a great triple threat in Benny Lom and lots of defensive courage. They will need all these factors to win.

All told, more than 300,000 spectators will witness five of the principal Eastern engagements, with close to 70,000 watching Pennsylvania's attempt to stop the Navy, 40,000 viewing the renewal of Princeton-Chicago rivalry and 50,000 on hand for Harvard's defense against the fleet Florida array. Florida, Navy and Princeton are the favorites.

BATTLE IN SOUTH

In the South, Clemson's invasion of the Kentucky Wildcat's lair and Vanderbilt's battle with Alabama at Nashville have the most important bearing on the Conference standing. The Southwest Conference race may be decided by the outcome of the game between Texas, 1928 champions, and Southern Methodist.

The Big Ten scramble features three tilts in which Minnesota, Purdue and Illinois, the 1928 champions, are favored to keep their slates clean against Indiana, Wisconsin and Northwestern, barring another uprising on the Western front.

In the Big Six, Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma are the favorites in games with Kansas, Kansas Aggies and Iowa State, respectively, but here also the element of surprise may enter.

Utah and Colorado College, two contenders for Rocky Mountain honors, meet next week, but to make it a crucial engagement they must dispose today of Brigham Young and the Utah Aggies, respectively.

JACK JOHNSON SUED

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—A suit to obtain $2,307 from Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, was filed in the Superior Court here yesterday by the Castelberg National Jewelry Company. According to the papers, the former champion owes the sum claimed as a balance on jewelry purchased in 1921 and valued at $11,000. The jewelry was said to consist of a pair of ear rings, a bar pin, a ring and a lavaliere. Johnson was appearing at a local theatre.

COUNTY LINKS TEAM TOPS CITY, 39-27

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Allegheny County officials came through to defeat city officials, 39 to 27, in their annual golf match, played over the beautiful links of the Westmoreland Country Club yesterday. Everything was complete, from the golf down to the festive dinner in the evening, thanks to the man who made the arrangement, John Jay Burke, city office manager of county parks, and former U. S. G. A. public links committeeman.

The spoils of the victor happened to be the beautiful Major Shaffer trophy, which was accepted for the county golfers by Director of County Public Works, Norman F. Brown.

And the feature match of the day proved only too close, Director Brown defeating Director of City Public Works, Edward G. Lang, on the last green, although he copped all three points. Nassau scoring prevailed.

More than 75 officials turned out for the affair, with Mayor Charles H. Kline among the missing. Commissioner E. V. Babcock appeared on the scene of action for a short time, but did not play. The summary:

D. & E. DEFEATS CARROLL, 12-0

CLEVELAND, Nov. 2.—Those undefeated Davis & Elkins boys from the hills of West Virginia gained the revenge they were seeking last night, but a plucky little John Carroll aggregation, spotting the invaders a decided edge in weight and experience, gave an excellent account of itself and all but succeeded in holding the Scarlet Hurricane.

The invaders started off in determined manner, marching down the field from their 20-yard line to gain their first-period touchdown about eight minutes after the initial kickoff. Lang had punted over the goal line and D. & E. scrimmaged from its 20. Rengle plunged to a pair of first downs, then Smith raced around the right wing and followed his wall of interference 23 yards to a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter the visitors clinched the issue. Gurneau blocked Lang's punt and the ball rolled back toward the Streak goal, Fairbanks falling on it just six yards out from the final mark. On the second play Rengle went over for a touchdown. The lineup:

PITT FRESHMEN BEAT KISKI

SALTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 2.—Lady Luck handed a football to Francis Seigel, right guard on Pitt freshmen team here yesterday and as a result Pitt beat Kiski, 7 to 3.

It was the third quarter, Kiski led, 3 to 0, and the ball was on Kiski's 20-yard line for a third down, Joe Poilek, Kiski quarter, dropped back to kick out of Harm's way. But the Pitt guards got through the line and Poilek found it impossible to kick. Desperate, he threw a short pass to one of his teammates. Siegel, in there for the purpose of tackling the kicker, found the ball plopping squarely into his arms, eluding Poilek, he ran across for a touchdown.

The next play, for the point-after touchdown, turned into another spectacular piece of football. Paul Rieder, Pitt right half, went back to make the kick, but the Kiski tackles got through the line. Unable to get the kick way, Rieder tucked the ball under his arm, dodged about on the field and finally ran through both teams and across the goal for the point.

Kiski's score was the work of Colin Stewart, young left end. In the middle of the second quarter, Kiski was stopped on the 35-yard line. On the third down, Stewart went back for placement kick. Kicking from the 40-yard line, on a queer angle and with a cross-field wind blowing, Stewart got the ball squarely through the posts, the kick going full 60 yards. The lineup:

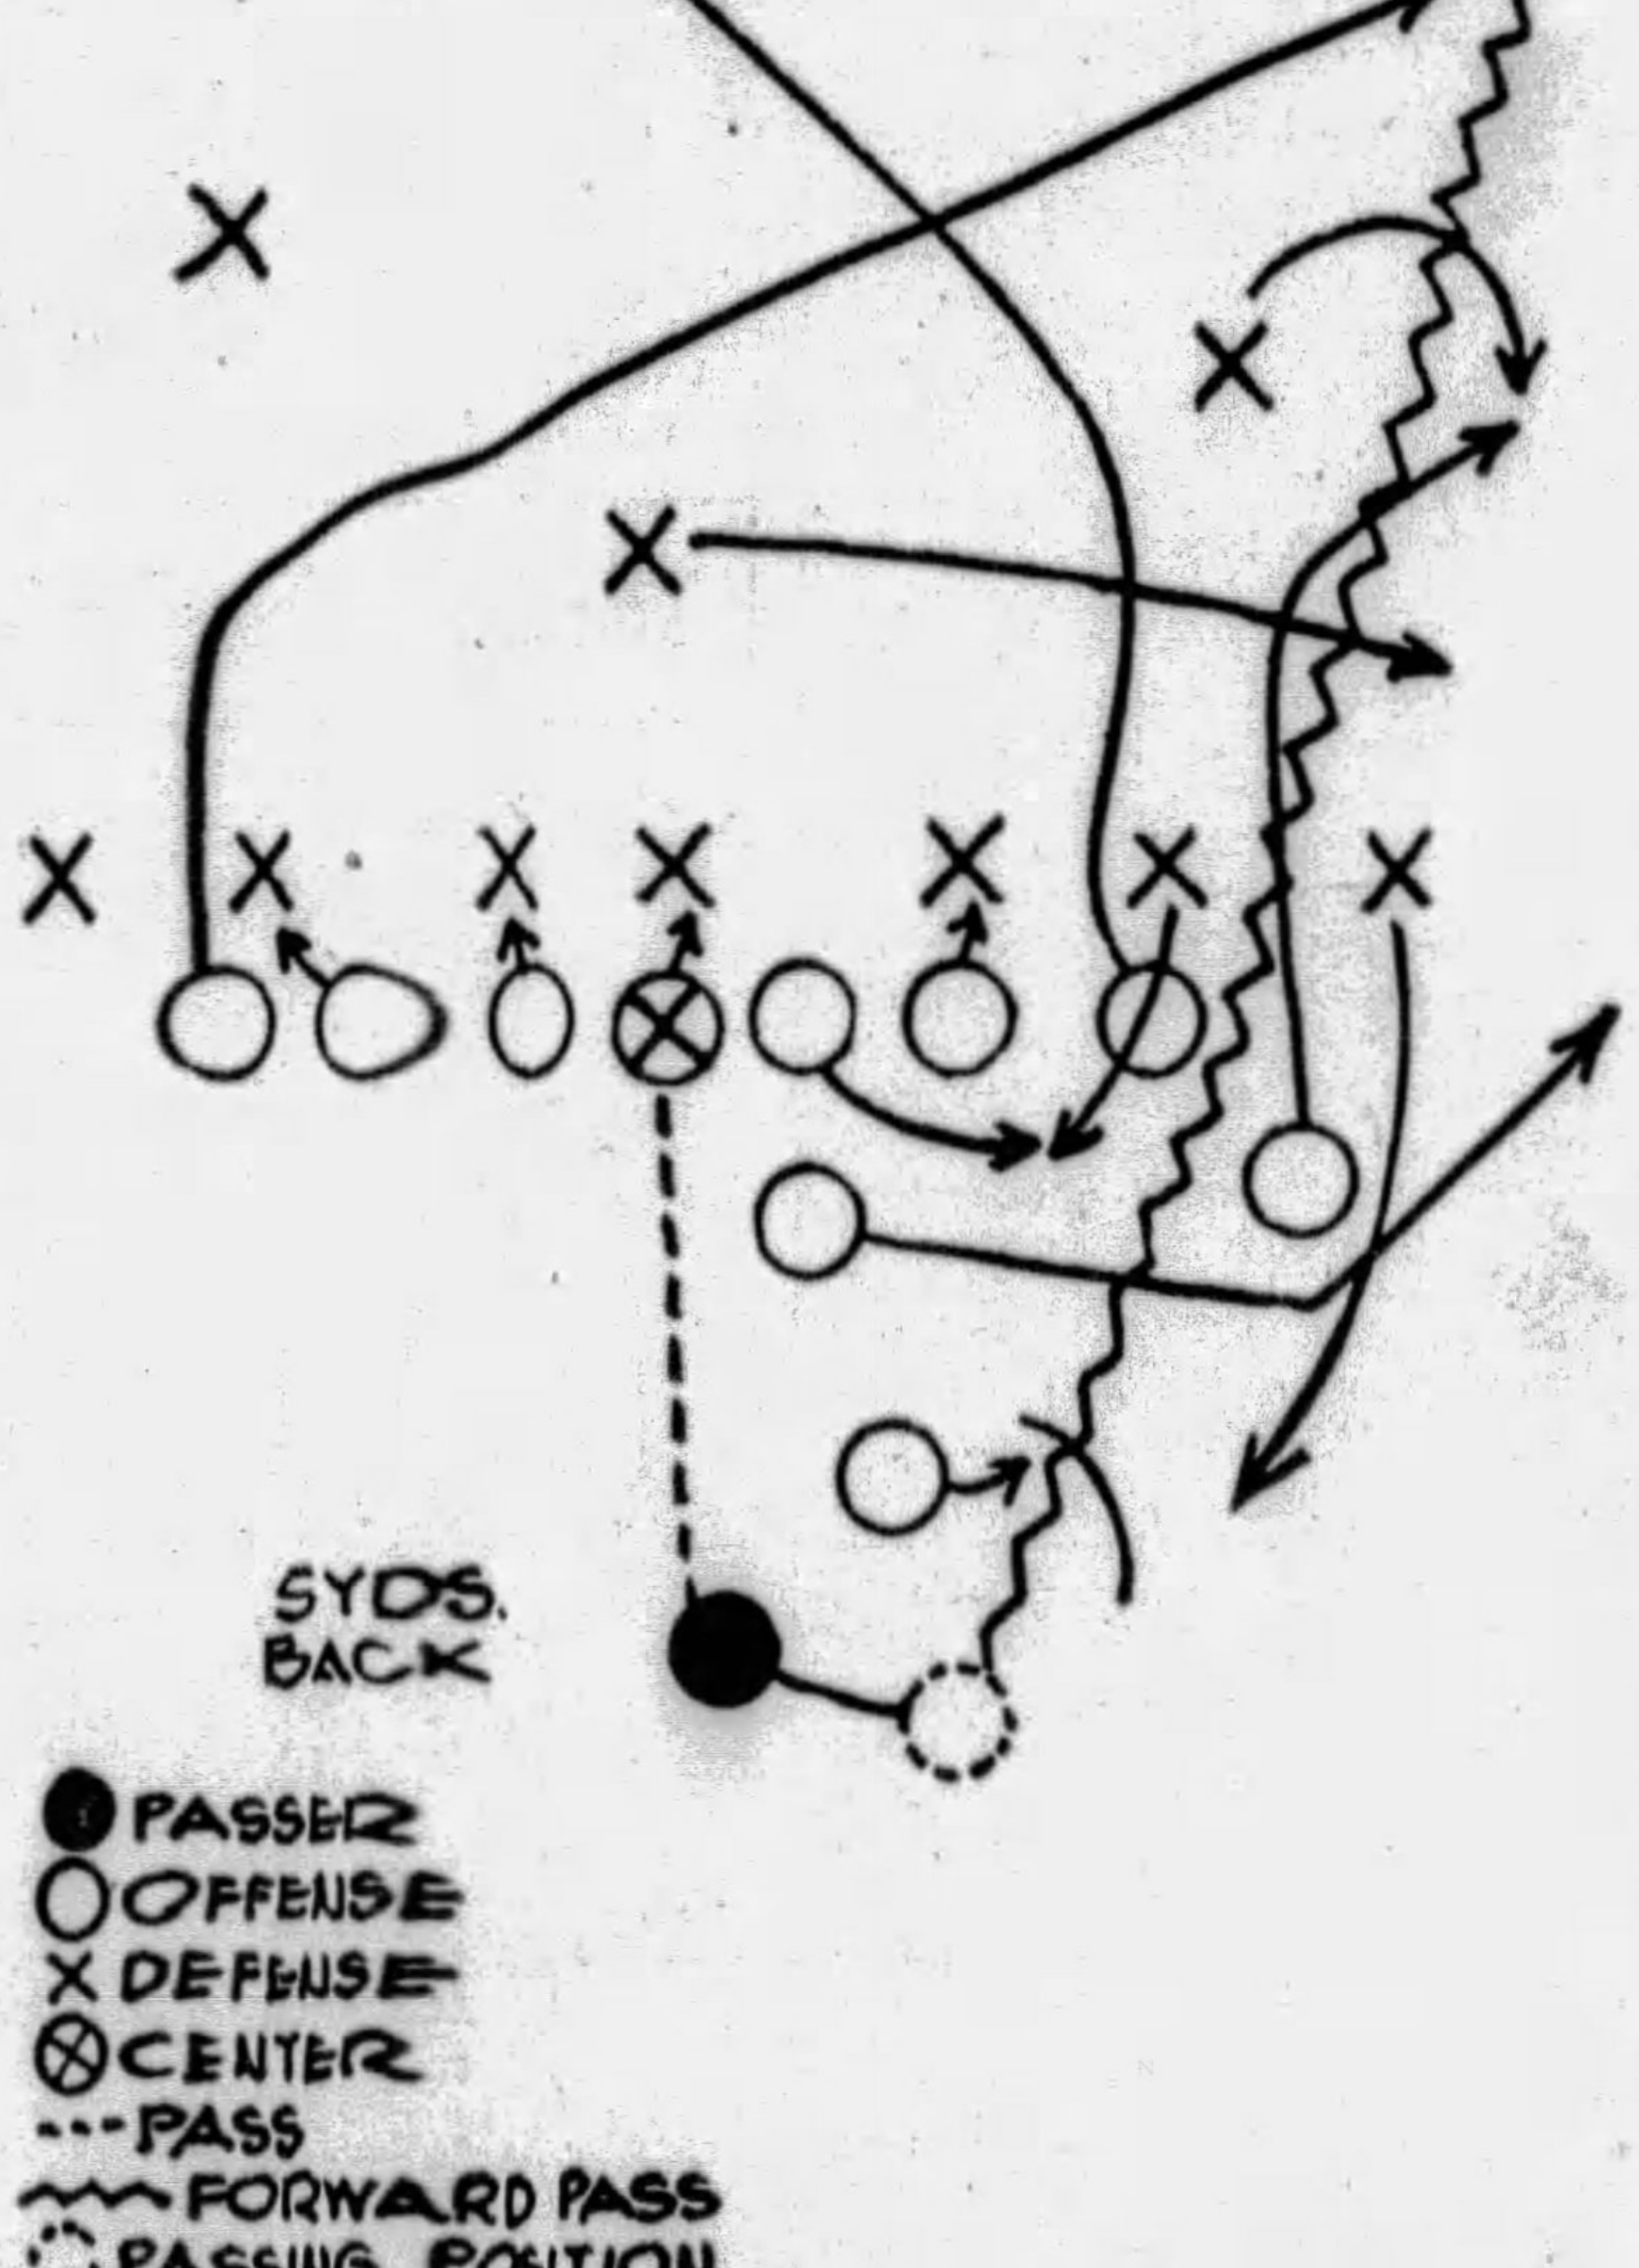
All-America Quarterback, 1928

Now Coach at Shady Side Academy

(Note.—Harpster, as the quarterback of the Carnegie Tech eleven last fall, gained national recognition as one of the most brilliant leaders of all time in the football realm. Experts hailed him as "the player with the mind of a coach." He captained the All-East team that defeated the All-West team in California at the end of the season, and was generally picked as captain of the mythical all-America selections.)



NO. 15—HOW NOTRE DAME BEAT ARMY.

THIS was a very famous pass play used by Notre Dame to defeat Army, 12 to 6, last year. The outside half was sent down to draw Cagle out, while the right end went down to hold the safety man. O'Brien, left end, who had just entered the game before the play was called, ran down the field long in back of Cagle and caught Neimic's pass just as he crossed the goal line. O'Brien was taken out on the next play, so that, although he was in the game for only a single play, he beat the Army.

Officials to Talk in KDKA Anniversary Celebration

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

GOING into the second half of its gala 40-hour program to celebrate the opening of a tenth year of consecutive day-by-day broadcasting, KDKA will offer several attractive features tonight.

M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcastng Company, will pay tribute to the pioneer broadcasting station of the world in a 10-minute address at 8:15 o'clock.

M.H.Aylesworth

At 8 p. m. H. P. Davis, generally recognized as "The Father of Radio Broadcasting," will say a few words. It is possible too that C. W. Horn, formerly superintendent of KDKA and other Westinghouse stations, will speak. Mr. Horn arrived in the city yesterday.

Of particular interest will be the Old-Fashioned Barn Dance at 9 and a reproduction of the first fight broadcast at 10 with Florent Gibson at the microphone.

We Now Present

Fin Reynolds, formerly with Jed Harris on Broadway, is now dramatic coach at WCAE. His first series of programs will be the "Seth Parker Singing School" which has its premiere next Thursday night. Phillips Lord, the original Seth Parker, will say a few words.

The Cleopatra sketch on the Triador program last night was very good.

Joe White—ever hear of him? He's the boy, guised as the "Silver Mask Tenor," who had everybody guessing he was John McCormack. He has returned to radio to sing on NBC sustaining programs.

The versatility of the WCAE staff was tested to the utmost the other night when Uncle Gimbee, Fred Webber and Paul Grime all sang on various programs while Frances Doherr, Cousin Lora and Herbert McGee played parts in the hilarious Hallowe'en Party.

WBAL at Baltimore will observe its fourth anniversary tonight at 10 with a special program by The Pattersons.

Florent Gibson, who will paint again the picture of Ray-Dundee fighting at Motor Square Garden as they did in 1921, as part of the KDKA anniversary program at 10 this evening, was hailed as a great announcer in the early days of radio and might be heard on the networks today had he chosen to explore that field. Florent, a sports writer, has an excellent vocabulary and a keen sense of humor.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

A marimba-xylophone weighing 350 pounds is played on several CBS programs heard in Pittsburgh through WJAS. Blundon Wills is the only man permitted to play the instrument.

Andre's Decision to Give Up Marianne Brings Him Peace

CHAPTER XVIII.

SPRINGTIME in France.

The red-tiled roofs and spires of Saint-Vallier emerging from a foam of apple blossoms. Weathercocks gaily riding against a blue and white sky. Water lily buds forming on the still pond beneath the willows.

The willows themselves had stopped weeping tears of rain and were putting on a veil of shyest, tenderest green.

Along the highway, Andre was walking one morning. His hand rested on Francois' shoulder but he had forgotten the boy who guided him. His pale face and sightless eyes were upturned to the sun, as though he bathed them in the warmth. Or prayed. . . .

The sun fell warm on his body. Underfoot he could feel the dust, thick as velvet. Could hear a thousand bird songs and the dry whir-r-r of grasshoppers.

Springtime . . . How strange to feel it—to hear it—and not to see it. To walk in a flood of golden light and feel that one groped in darkness. . . .

"Where are we now, Francois?"

"We approach the bridge," M'sieur Andre. Where the road crosses the stream."

"I know. I know."

Midstream, Andre stopped and spread his hands on the sun-warmed wood of the rail.

How well memory painted it. An old bridge . . . The timbers crumbling. He could smell the dank smell of rotting wood. Its piles were heavy with wild flowers, he knew, and velvety mosses and hanging vines which waved in the faintest breeze and were reflected in the dark green water below.

To his ears—straining to take the place of his lost sight—came the splashing of a millwheel further down the stream. He could hear the shout of Jean Michu and knew that he was loading his mules at the mill.

It was a spot where he had come to muse often in those old days—those beautiful lost days before the war. Never again to see it . . . never again to watch the stream flashing in the shallows—the deep green shadow under the bridge. The bitterness Andre had kept so well crushed back in his heart now rolled down like a black sea to stifle him.

"Lead on, Francois—" he ordered in a choked voice.

Now they were going along the lane edged with gilder-rose and box. The smell of fresh growing things came to him. He could imagine the changing light over the placid country. The subtle tints of Spring . . .

God . . . Oh, God . . . To walk through the Spring like this with the bleakness of winter in his heart.

Small sounds coming to his ears now. The grunt of a pig and the crackle of straw. The cackle and scurry of a surprised hen.

"We pass the Quivallan farm?" asked Andre.

When the boy assented, Andre could imagine the scene. Blossoming fruit trees surrounding a small cottage basking in the sun. The basket hung up in the doorway, where cheeses were placed to dry. The loft, where they dried the prunes. The cool, dim shed, where milk stood in shallow pans to permit the cream to rise.

Just such a cottage as he had planned to have for Marianne some day. Marianne—passing beneath the trees, the sun dappling her bright hair . . . Marianne, running to greet him in the calm of late afternoon when he returned from the schoolhouse . . . Marianne sitting in the candle light, perhaps another small Marianne in her arms . . . or a boy with bright, dark eyes . . .

"You are hurt, M'sier?" Francois looking up in alarm at the involuntary groan which broke from the man's lips.

"It is nothing," he muttered. "A pain—in my heart."

"Are you tired? Shall we go home?"

"No! No! We keep on for a while."

To go back to Marianne . . . to feel her pitiful attempt to be gay . . . To guess at the pity in her eyes—feel the gentle touch of her hands on his shoulders . . .

Nothing in the tall, slow-moving figure to tell of the jealousies and black despair which were rocking Andre to the soul. The fierce hot will of a man flinging itself against the cold stone wall of fate.

When a man has suffered through no fault of his own—when he had given as forfeit his precious sight—surely he was entitled to some happiness!

Oh, God—why hadn't the shot which took his sight, have blown his body to bits! He might be knowing the blessed Nirvana of death . . . But to be a man—with all of a man's appetites—a man's hot desire for life and love—and be doomed to crawl through the world like an earthworm . . .

His tortured thoughts, whirling about the storm center of a slight figure with yellow hair . . . A brave and loyal figure—whose bravery — whose loyalty was wringing his heart.

"We are nearly there, Francois?" Andre's voice was thick.

"We ARE here, M'sieur Andre. Shall I take you in?"

"No. I know the way. Go, petite—down by the stream and play. I will call when I am ready to leave."

Released of the weight of his thin hand the boy leaped away and a bitter little smile traced itself about Andre's lips. Even this little one found him a drag on his youthful spirits . . . All his life—to retard the ones he loved . . .

He stood before the chapel. Something restful in the thought. Memory showed him the inside of the building—cool and dusky. The one high-arched window would let in a shaft of dim religious light.

No fanning breezes here. No flood of warm sunshine to taunt a blind man. Here was cool rest. . . .

Andre groped his way up the steps, knowing by the coolness on his face, when he passed beneath the arched entrance.

No one here . . . His footsteps echoed lonesomely as he passed hesitantly up the aisle.

He felt the altar beneath his outstretched hands. He sank on his knees with a weary little sigh.

He did not pray. He did not even think while he kneeled there. Good—to be in here in the cool—away from all things which turned the knife in the wound. Still. Peaceful. He felt his fevered spirit relax. Laved in serenity. The old hot longings seeped away, one by one, leaving his soul light enough to rise. Ah—this was release . . .

The mellow shaft of light trembling through the window shifted, passed from the chapel as the sun rose higher.

Down by the stream Francois had wandered away beyond recall, lost in the zest of catching frogs with Nicolle Dupont.

It was fully an hour later when the old cure entered the chapel and started to see that motionless form at the altar.

Andre lifted a face flooded with unutterable calm.

The old man guided him to a seat. Sat beside him, hands laid over the thin hands of Andre.

Very simply the younger man explained.

"I have been letting the world slip away, Father. I have made up my mind to join the church. It was painful, for a while—like birth—like death—like all transitions. But as the world slipped away, so the pain and the bitterness and the dreadful hot jealousies lost the power to hurt. The world has rejected me, Father. Heaven must accept me."

Deep understanding in the eyes of Pere Joseph. And deep sympathy.

"Many a man has decided to play one role, my son, only to find le bon Dieu has intended him for another. Why do you do this thing?"

"For Marianne," he answered steadily. "So brave—so loyal she is. It wrings my heart. She loves the young American who was here. Youth calls to youth. . . I am old now—old as the world. Yet they will not reach their happiness by trading on my heart—those brave ones. They are fine. Shall I be less fine."

The cure's mind flew back to the day Andre had come home. He remembered the stricken look in the girl's eyes. The brave resolution of her face.

"You see very clearly for a blind man, Andre."

"I see with the eyes of the heart"—there was infinite sweetness in Andre's voice. "And see, Father, a miracle has come! Truly he who gives up the world gains his soul—now, for the first time, my heart is at peace. Now, I can rest. . . ."

Bread Sticks

To make bread sticks, take balls of dough, roll on breadboard with hands until eight inches in length. Keep of uniform size and rounded ends, which may be done by bringing fingers close, but not over ends of sticks. Let rise for 15 minutes. Start baking in a hot oven, reducing the heat so that the sticks may be crisp and dry.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Urges Madge to Keep Veritzen in Line

LILLIAN'S words concerning my management of Philip Veritzen and his feeling for me were the height of absurdity—I knew that—but she managed to invest them with such an air and tone of sincerity that I found myself literally gasping with astonishment as I guided the car through the gate of the farmyard. Dicky was nowhere to be seen—he evidently had not yet returned and I thanked my particular little joss for the small mercy. I needed time to recover my breath from Lillian's astounding assertion that Philip Veritzen was "half off his head" about me, but I could keep him "cherishing a hopeless heartbreak for an unattainable star." She had commented before upon my employer's admiration for me, but never had she spoken so plainly concerning it.

"Don't talk nonsense," I said crossly, when I felt that I could speak.

Lillian leaned forward and looked mischeviously into my face.

"Well done, old dear!" she said. "That's the most approved mid-Victorian way of taking raillery concerning the admiration of what your great aunt would call 'one of the opposite sex.' You really do it very well. But it won't do. You've got brains, also too much sense to play ostrich. Old Phil Veritzen is daffier about you than he's been over any woman for many a day. He's reveling in the romance, too. 'I know the cock of his old eye,' to quote the revered Rudyard. He's probably got incense burning before your pictured face if he's been able to steal a photograph somewhere."

I was furious that I could not conceal the flaming flush which stained my face. But her words had evoked the memory of the annoying and surprising revelation which Noel Veritzen inadvertently had given me concerning his father's replacing his long-cherished picture of Queen Olga, of Transvania—his first infatuation—with a photograph of me which he had made from a studio group.

"So-o!" Lillian drawled, and I marveled through my wrath at her persistence in commenting upon the topic which she must know was most annoying to me. Usually she is meticulous in her consideration of one's privacy. But she seemed determined to keep me on the rack, and though I hotly resented her apparent crassness, yet I knew subconsciously that there was some exceedingly good reason for it in her own mind.

"So-o," she drawled again, this time with laughter in her voice—"so the oldboy's been stealing photographs like a love-sick freshman. I wonder who tipped you off, for I know you didn't sanction his having any kodak of you. Look here!" as I angrily jerked myself toward the door of the car, "you stay put for a second or two. I've got something to say to you before anybody finds out we're back and interrupts us."

She put a firmly detaining hand upon my arm and pulled me back beside her.

"I'll admit my alleged humor is an awful thing and that I'm all wet generally," she said. "And I'll apologize all over the map for my involuntary chuckle at your tell tale face when I spoke of photographs. But that doesn't alter the fact that you're the only person who can keep Phil Veritzen walking the straight and narrow during the next few weeks. He's likely to upset the apple cart at any minute with his ridiculous notions of the divinity which doth hedge royalty and all the rest of it. You agree with me that we want to get these sprigs of royalty safely back to their homes with all romantic American entanglement simply memories?"

It was an imperative question, and I answered it promptly, if sulkily.

"Of course."

"Then don't endanger the apple cart yourself, by refusing to take the reins whenever old Phil Veritzen backs into the shafts. For of all the balky old mules in this wide land, he is the worst. Just now you happen to have his number. He'll eat sugar from your hand and refrain from kicking the shafts from the wagon. So don't you dare to renig until this present job is over. I told you this before, plainly enough, I thought, but you've evidently forgotten the lesson. Police! Here comes the Dicky-bird, on two wheels as usual. Now for the fireworks! But remember I'm the best little asbestos curtain in ten counties."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Selecting Bridal Attendants

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been a reader of your column for the past seven years and have found it so helpful that I am writing to you now in the hope that you may be able to help me with my problem.

I am engaged and expect to be married shortly. While discussing the marriage plans with both families, I mentioned the bridesmaids and ushers—and there the difficulty lies. My fiance has one sister and a brother younger than himself, and one brother who is older. I have a younger brother and two very young sisters. My fiance's sister insists that she should be maid of honor, since I have no sister old enough to fill that place, while I would rather have my girl friend as my chief attendant, with my fiance's older brother as best man. My future sister-in-law says it is proper for her to be coupled with her brother, while I say it is not. She also says she does not think it necessary for her oldest brother to be best man, while I feel that that much courtesy and respect are due him. Although he will not voice his opinion, if asked to be just an usher, I know he will feel slighted. Haven't I the right to choose my girl friend instead of my future sister-in-law? Isn't it my duty to make my fiance's oldest brother the best man?

BRIDE-TO-BE.

I HOPE that some day the millenium will come when the families and friends of a bride allow her to make her own decisions for her wedding. The wedding day should be the bride's day and everybody should co-operate most agreeably and pleasantly and completely to help her carry out all the little plans and dreams that she has always had of what she wants for her wedding. And I wish that you and I could persuade your future sister-in-law to realize this. Don't you suppose we can? She has no right in the world to make any suggestion as to whom you should choose for your chief attendant. That is one of your sacred privileges, and nobody should make any suggestions concerning it.

You may, if you wish, have your two young sisters as maids of honor. I think this is a very charming plan, even if they are quite young. I wish you had told me just how old they are. But if you think they are too young, then, by all means, invite your girl friend to be your chief attendant. Explain to your sister-in-law that this is your choice, and that you are very anxious to carry out this plan. Be as pleasant mannered as possible. If you are to have bridesmaids, it would, of course, be correct for you to invite your bridegroom's sister to be one of the bridesmaids, but even this is not absolutely necessary, even though customary.

Just as your sister-in-law-to-be should not have anything to say about your choice of your chief attendant, so you do not make the choice of the best man. The best man is chosen by the bridegroom, and is invited by him. It is according to custom for the bridegroom to invite his brother to be his best man, and it would seem strange if your bridegroom did not do this.

Attention to Mothers

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If a young lady and her mother enter a restaurant with a gentleman, whom must he assist with the chair and the coat while seating them and at leaving, the young lady or her mother?

M. A.

HE assists them both, both at entering and when leaving, if he is agile and expert enough! If not, he assists the girl's mother. In such a circumstance, age always naturally takes precedence. The girl, if she has the right kind of feeling, would of course wish the young man to give his courteous attention to her mother.

A Gift of Flowers

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are good friends. Her birthday comes in the near future and flowers, I have decided, will be my choice of remembering it, but which shall it be—a box of vari-colored roses (they are my favorites) one for each year, or just a bouquet of flowers? What would you suggest?

I want to tell you that I would not miss your column for anything, as it certainly helped me out a number of times and I appreciate it.

BOB.

WELL, now, my dear sir, that is a difficult question, for it is all a matter of personal taste. I'm afraid that I don't agree with you about vari-colored roses, even though your sentiment about each shade representing a separate year of her life. I like roses all of one shade; they seem to me much more effective and beautiful than the variegated shades. And most girls love the pale yellow roses that are so especially lovely now. What do you think of sending those? Or would you be interested in the suggestion of having your florist make one of the charming old-fashioned bouquets, of tiny flowers of pastel shades, tightly packed in rows? They can be most beautiful, and seem so "special" a remembrance that it adds an extra personality to the gift. The entire bouquet is set in a "smart" paper collar and streamers of one shade or pastel shades are added. I think that some kind of corsage bouquet seems always more personal for a bouquet remembrance. If you don't like the chic little bouquet that I have suggested maybe you'd like a corsage of orchids (one or a spray) or gardenias, either combined with lilies of the valley or violets.

I'm glad that you enjoy the column. Your kind words made me very happy. Do come again, sir.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Golf Widows

"DO YOU know," exclaimed Mrs. Divot spontaneously, "if Bill should die or desert me, I don't believe I'd ever marry again!"

* * *

"I should hope you wouldn't!" rejoined Mrs. Green. "Because in about five years, you'll reach the Great Divide. I don't mean death, I mean your fortieth birthday—and the woman who marries, after that, takes an awfully long chance! Lucky the one who still has her own good, old prewar husband and isn't foolish enough to put him back into circulation!

HELEN ROWLAND

"After forty, a woman finds mighty few men around her own age, who are free, single and in the market for any wife over twenty-five. So, she usually has to choose between being a young man's mother or an old man's nurse.

"Between putting ice-packs on a young man's head and putting hot-water bottles on an old man's feet. Or between trying to keep up with a young man who has a going foot and trying to slow down to an old man who has a sciatic leg."

* * *

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Divot. "There's not much choice between trying to change the wild habits of a young man who hasn't settled down and trying to get used to the set habits of an old man who has positively 'jelled'!"

* * *

"Well, that's all you have, after forty," insisted Mrs. Green. "The rosy prospect of putting up with a young man's flirtations or of putting up with an old man's whims. The choice between wondering what a young man is doing to amuse himself when he is away from home all evening—and wondering what you are going to do to amuse an old man who is around the house all day.

"Between trailing a young man to the football game and catching a hard cold and trailing an old man to the golf course to see that HE doesn't catch cold. Between listening to a young man tell you 'how he did it' and listening to an old man tell you how YOU 'ought to do things.' Between assuring a young man that he's not going to live if he keeps up the pace and assuring an old one that he's not going to DIE if he keeps up the window! Between—"

* * *

"Stop! Stop!" cried Mrs. Divot. "You are making my head swim! And I forgot to make Bill take his cough medicine this morning! Is there no such thing for a woman as life after forty?"

* * *

"There is!" returned Mrs. Green cheerfully. "But it's a dangerous life if she's unmarried, lonely and attractive. For, she is still too young to be satisfied to take a back seat and watch the world go by and too old to stand the empo and confusion and merciless lights on a ringside seat!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Breathing Through Nose Is Essential

NOT long ago I told you about the importance of free passage of the air through the nasal cavities. It is not good for health to practice mouth breathing. The nose was planned by kind Nature to warm and cleanse the inspired air.

DR COPELAND

Many persons do mouth breathing, not because the nasal passages are not free, but from sheer laziness. They make no effort to keep the mouth closed.

This is an unsafe practice. It permits the cold air, filled with dust, dirt and bacteria, to scrape its way across the delicate breathing organs into the shivering air cells.

All this is wrong. The air should be breathed through the nostrils, to be heated by the rich blood supply and to be filtered clean by the hair-like processes of the cells covering the mucous membrane of the nose.

If the nose is stopped up all the time, find out why. The doctor, after his examination, will advise you what should be done to restore the nose to its normal use. You cannot hope to be a perfectly healthy person unless the nose is clear and working all the time to cleanse and warm the air.

After the air is taken through the nasal passages, it goes through the back of the mouth. It goes from the throat into the windpipe.

The windpipe is a round tube, running from the throat into the chest. Now it divides into two branches, called the bronchial tubes. One of them runs to the right lung and the other to the left lung.

Each of these tubes divides and redivides into smaller and smaller branches. The arrangement is much like that of a tree with its top downward.

At the tip of each of the smallest tubes are groups of air cells. These are set on the ends of the tubes, much as the grapes are clustered on the end stalks and stems of the bunch.

The walls of the air cells are extremely thin. The outer wall of each cell, thin as it is, is packed with tiny blood vessels. In consequence it is possible for the oxygen of the cells to pass through the thin walls into the blood itself. Then it is carried to every part of the body.

Let us review the travels of the air we breathe. It passes through the nose, where it is warmed and cleansed, through the back of the mouth and throat, into the windpipe. Then it goes along the bronchial tubes and small divisions into the tiny air cells. From there the oxygen gets into the blood, to do its work, among other things, of preparing the food for the proper use of the body.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Sunday, November 3.

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very interesting but intriguing figure. There is sign of a sudden and radical change, and there is also a portent of subtle undermining from unsuspected sources. This may distort and disrupt proper adjustments to the new conditions.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of abrupt change, with intriguing contacts. These promise benefits if the mental vision is not confused and distorted. There is some danger of duplicity and sinister influences.

A child born on this day may be original and ingenious, but it may lean to craft and strategem rather than candor.

Monday, November 4.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast favors employment and bold projects, but also hints of danger through unwise speculation or personal extravagances. With conservation, forethought and cautious signing of papers affairs should be fairly successful.

Those whose birthday it is should make a fair success in employment or where personal initiative is required, but they should shun speculation and too free a use of funds in personal extravagance.

A child born on this day may be enterprising and resourceful, qualities which may advance its interests best in the employment of others, since there may be a personal tendency to squander its own funds.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

ACCORDING to a statistican the huge flood lights used for Pittsburgh's first football game played at night burned no more than five dollars worth of juice.

Havey J. Boyle.

The same authority says that the lights on the top of the Koppers' Building, operating from 7 o'clock to midnight, burn $12 worth of power.

$6.00 WORTH OF JUICE !
IS THAT TOO MUCH ?

An indication of the good time in store for theatrical fans here was to be had with the presentation of "Caprice," by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne of the Theater Guild which leaves here tonight. Mr. Lunt is the kind of actor who prompts you to shout to everyone nearby: "Hey, don't miss a gesture, listen to his every line."

MR. LUNT, by the way, is the subject of reminiscence by Bill Robson, our wandering correspondent, who says:

"I looked after Mr. Lunt's public relations while he was in pictures. On our way to the Pittsburgh Athletic Association to a dinner one evening the general manager of his company asked him if he had his railroad ticket to New York. They were to leave that night. Mr. Lunt replied that he thought the ticket was an old Pullman stub and he had thrown it into a waste basket in the William Penn. From the club I telephoned the hotel. Rubbish was searched and the ticket was found. Later that evening we went to a 'movie ball' and he and his wife, Lynn Fontanne, would not lead the grand march unless I walked at the head of the procession. Naturally, ever one wanted to know who was the foreign looking movie star at the head of the march."

In the play "Caprice" by the way, the playwright contrives to make conventional husbands and wives in the audience hope that the leading male character will refuse a reconciliation with the mother of his boy in order to dally further with a woman lacking the conventional moral outlook.

"Detroit," writes Mr. Robson in his monthly bulletin to this department, "is going in for fortune tellers in a big way. Nearly every tea-room has a young lady who reads your fortune for you from the tea leaves. Their potency can be judged from the want ads that ask for well-educated and genial young ladies to do this work. The ads also state: 'Experience unnecessary.'"

AND HE'LL BE DARK AND—!
OH!

A PITTSBURGH woman plans to contest a will, in which she is named a beneficiary. It is a peculiar case. A wealthy relative left her certain securities and at the same time left Southern relatives securities. All were equal amounts. But the securities of the Northern woman slumped until they are virtually worthless while the securities of the Southern relatives increased ten fold.

In line with our suggestion that the town be kept lit up, a man was seen walking along Ferry street the other night trying to find his way with the aid of a searchlight.

MARY PHILBIN HAS DATE WITH 'BIG BOY' AND MR. KOHNER TAKES BACK HIS RING

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 2.

THE long engagement of Mary Philbin and Paul Kohner, Universal exek., has come to an abrupt and perhaps unexpected end. It was only a few weeks ago that Kohner returned from an extended business sojourn in Germany. But the engagement had survived absence. Survived, to all appearances. Until—

Paul arrived at Mary's home one eve, to be told she was out with friends. Love is funny. So Kohner sorta stuck 'round to see for himself. And, according to the yarn relayed to this bureau, saw Miss Philbin return accompanied by "Big Boy" Williams.

Mary Philbin.

Came the inevitable showdown. That being a strictly twosome affair, I can only report that Mary admitted she did not feel so enthusiastic about her engagement. That, to Paul, apparently made it mutual. Mary returned his ring. Finale. Exit scowling.

Oscar, the w. k. bootblack on the Famous Players lot, says the sun has gone black-cloud to stay. Oscar lost the family shirt when the market crashed.

AND apropos of this, there's a dramatic story the rounds about a flick executive who lost close to a million dollars in the stock calamity. He continues at his desk, though his mien is such that all stand in trembling awe. So trembling that there are employes on the lot who are getting nervous about their salary checks. The executive hasn't been asked to sign them, because of his mental state. At least, so 'tis said.

Lubitsch, Wife As Honor Guests

Ernst Lubitsch and his wife were honor guests at a shindig given at the Russian Club, of which Michael Vavitch is the head man. As a courtesy to Lubitsch, practically every prominent Russian actor and singer in town showed. An impromptu entertainment was given a la the Chauve Souris. Among those to volunteer was Mrs. Fagel Panitz. She sang, accompanied by her daughter Sylvia. So impressive was her singing that a Universal-ite present got her telephone number. The next day or so she received a call from the studio and went out to make a test. Purpose: to appear in John Murray Anderson's Paul Whiteman's Revue. What the outcome is, this bureau hasn't learned, but at all events this is merely another instance of how one gets movie breaks in this break-seeking town.

Hal Skelly.

Janet MacDonald Is Headed East

JANET MacDONALD is headed East. Purpose: To attend to business matters. When Miss MacDonald trailed to Hollywood to leading woman opposite Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade, she expected to stay for only the one picture.

She was kept here for the Dennis King operetta, "Vagabond King." She was then assigned to co-star with James Hall in "Let's Go Native." But 'twill be a lil' while ere this reeler goes into production, so Miss MacDonald bee-lined outta town on the double quick before minds could change. Hal Skelly got as far as New York on a two weeks' leave of absence, only to receive a wire that same day ordering him home for re-takes! U never know when a vacation is not a vacation. . . .

Janet MacDonald.

Among the Sunday Hollywoodians to trail to San Francisco for the University of Southern California-Stanford football game, was Fay Wray and her husband, John Monk Saunders. That was swell. Training home wasn't so swell. Miss Wray made the scar-y discovery that her compartment was in the same car that carried prisoners from San Quentin penitentiary to Los Angeles. She didn't get much sleep that night!

And—that's all.

Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 2.

Mr. Hoover is becoming a typical American president, by becoming disgusted with the Senate early in his administration. Distrust of the Senate by Presidents started with Washington, who wanted to have 'em courtmartialed.

Jefferson proposed life imprisonment for 'em, old Andy Jackson said, "To Hell with 'em," and got his wish.

Lincoln said the Lord must have hated 'em, for he made so few of 'em. Roosevelt whittled a big stick and beat on 'em for six years.

Taft just laughed at 'em and grew fat. They drove Wilson to an early grave.

Coolidge never let 'em know what he wanted, so they never knew how to vote against him.

And Mr. Hoover took 'em serious, thereby making his only political mistake.

Yours, WILL.

TAX DEFENDANT ACCUSES STAR

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Miss Marjorie Berger, Hollywood income tax expert, completed her testimony yesterday as the first defense witness in her Federal Court trial on a charge of falsifying the 1926 income tax of Dorothy Mackaill, screen actress.

Miss Berger was on the stand throughout the morning session, undergoing a rigid cross-examination by United States Attorney Samuel McNabb. Her attorneys frequently clashed with McNabb in attempts to prevent the defendant from being led into disputes.

The defendant testified that before Miss Mackaill's tax report was filed the actress herself made a personal examination of all deductions listed upon it.

The witness testified that Miss Mackaill informed her that her mother, Mrs. Florence Wise, was her business manager at a salary of $6,000 yearly. The actress also said, Miss Berger added, that Mrs. Wise earned the salary by making all her contracts and handling her business affairs.

"Instead," the witness testified, "I learned that Miss Mackaill's contracts to the contrary had been prepared by attorneys in New York City."

Considerable wrangling ensued between counsel over Miss Berger's testimony concerning the expensive automobiles owned by Miss Mackaill. One valued at $7,500 was designated by the witness as "the little car," while mention was made of the "big car" as a higher priced imported machine.

Wagner ...... Prelude to "Lohengrin"
Stravinsky, Orchestral suite from the Ballet, "Petrouchka"
Beethoven, symphony No. 5 in C minor, Op. 67

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, with Serge Koussevitzky conducting, played the opening concert of the Pittsburgh Orchestra Association in Syria Mosque last night. It was gratifying to note the increased attendance and the fine applause for these players, and may we hope for continued appreciation of these unsurpassed concerts.

The Boston Orchestra has always meant superlative musicianship. The concert last night was no exception, no matter how much any of us prefer other interpretations. Koussevitzky is a leader with aristocratic demeanor. His active interest finds new music, but he prefers to play his music with academic aloofness rather than personal abandon. Therefore his orchestra's tone is purged of imperfections, and only when a Stravinsky flings his color pot into the midst of this orchestra do we find its heart.

One missed the usual novelty which Koussevitzky always brings us, for the "Petrouchka Suite" now belongs to an older generation of modern music. Just in this music was the orchestra most interesting, for it resisted the many temptations of pure showmanship, and yet gave us brilliant though not garish color. It was interesting to contrast the classic and romantic in the opening numbers of Vivaldi and Wagner. The first was so clearly sung, that if one had been quick-witted enough and so minded, one might have written out every phrase of the score. The Wagner prelude came with more restraint, but that marvelously emphasized the beautiful mystery of the "Lohengrin" legend, especially during the one climax in the brasses.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony certainly has never had a more suave reading. Where Toscanini enlivens his Beethoven so that every phrase dances in Italian sunlight, Kousevitzky has gone to the other extreme. Beethoveen was here in kid gloves. He was Bostonian. Not the Beethoven who shook his shaggy mane in the storm. Beethoven would certainly have admired the andante, but he might also have stamped his foot impatiently during the first and especially the third movements. The life was polished out of them.

Human Link Theater Hope, Jane Cowl Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—Jane Cowl, actress, told the Church and Drama League of America that the only thing that will save the legitimate theater from complete defeat in the competition with the cinema is a "renaissance of interest in the personal human equation."

"The theater has one thing the talking pictures never can give," she said. "That is the bond between you, the audience, and the actor. This should be reason enough to uphold the theater."

Cohan Is Staging Play Curate Wrote

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 2.—(INS.)—"New York," a play written by the Rev. Charles Root, curate of St. Joseph's Church here, will be produced in Los Angeles, beginning Thanksgiving Day, as a George M. Cohan production, according to word received by Rev. Root today.

The play, which was presented in Cleveland last year to raise parish funds, attracted the attention of theatrical managers there who recommended it to Cohan.

Nazarro, Jr., Stays On Penn Stage In M. C. Role

Nat Nazarro, Jr., New York Winter Garden entertainer, who was rushed on from New York to pinch hit as master of ceremonies in the Penn this week, is to remain for an indefinite period, the management has announced.

Nazarro has a record of achievement in theatrical realms. Starting at the early age of five, he has spent 19 years before the footlights, appearing with numerous Winter Garden shows and other big musical productions. He was featured in Passing Shows of 1922, 1923, 1924; "Topics" of 1924 and 1925, and in Artists and Models. He starred in "Sweetheart Time" and J. P. McEvoy's "Americana."

Most performers usually start by selling their wares in some little honky-tonk or unrecognized small-town theater. But not so with Nazarro, who, thanks to his father and mother, was virtually born a Broadway star. His first public performance on any stage was at the New York Winter Garden.

WARN AUTOISTS TO LOCK CARS

Calling attention to an increase during the last two months in the number of automobiles stolen here, C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, today warned motorists to lock their cars when they leave them even for a few minutes.

Roth made public a letter from Sergt. William J. Crehan, of the automobile theft department of the city detective bureau, stating that the trend in the number of stolen cars was upward, and that most of the thieves are boys from eight to 18 years of age. Crehan says:

"If motorists will keep their cars locked at all times when not using them, the 'joy rider' and the thief will take the other man's car. The thief will seldom waste his time trying to force the locked car, for he knows that a little further down the street there is bound to be one unlocked and ready to go."

Former Grid Star Loses Eye in Crash

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 2.—Theodore Tomaska, 25, former high school football star, lost his right eye when the automobile in which he was riding with Raymond McDonald crashed into a taxicab on the outskirts of the city as the latter car was turning from the highway. Glass struck Tomaska.

Morgue Mascot —Or Dinner— Goes Free

County morgue attaches might have had a new mascot—or a good 'possum dinner—for some time in the future.

Deputy Coroners John T. McQuaid and Stanley Guzenski were called to the vicinity of Wexford last night to get the body of an unidentified man found in the woods. When returning to the ambulance left on the highway, they spied the yellow eyes of the 'possum gleaming in the darkness a short distance away.

They gave chase and soon captured him, slightly scared, but otherwise "O. K." He was consigned to a soft bed in the ambulance, and brought in to the morgue.

Today Deputy McQuaid released the animal.

2 Aged Waynesburg Men Die Suddenly

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 2.—Two well-known Waynesburg men died suddenly yesterday. They were Frank Grove, 68, and Samuel Milliken, 76. Grove's death occurred in a barber shop here just after he had been shaved. A relapse of a paralytic attack suffered several years ago was given as the cause. For the past several years he had been employed as superintendent of the Greenmont Cemetery here.

Milliken died as a result of an attack of heart truble suffered at his home. He was a retired farmer.

DRYS ARREST 12 IN RUM RAIDS

Eleven men and a woman were arrested yesterday, and whisky, wine, beer and alcohol seized in a series of raids in the Pittsburgh district, according to Prohibition Headquarters reports.

Agents said they visited a building at 815 Carson street and discovered a half-pint of moonshine in a coffee pot in the kitchen sink. A whisky glass stood nearby. Hip Kendzerski, 37, was arrested and released on his own recognizance, according to the raiders.

The agents reported raiding a building at 5403 Butler street, and finding a small quantity of moonshine. Mary O'Connor, 54, was released on her own recognizance, they said.

Two gallons of whisky and 100 gallons of wine were seized at 137 Butler street, Etna, the agents reported.

An assortment of whisky, beer and alcohol was reported found in a raid at 246 Hays avenue, Mt. Oliver. Paul Roeschenthaler was arrested, according to the report.

The agents reported raids and arrests as follows: 1415 Clark street, David Leff; 1407 Pittman street, James E. Ford and Peter Williams, Negroes; 750 Warrington avenue, Nick Heisler; 1701 Wylie avenue, Artina Kelly; 38 Freeport street, Etna, Charles Turcis, and 1833 Diaz street, Ernest Augustic.

Rogues' Galleries To Get Talkies Of Criminals

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—(AP.)—A talking motion picture of prisoner's crime confession, made by the Detective Bureau here, is to be used as an experiment to determine any advantage of such enterprise in police work, including rogue's gallery records.

Harold E. Roller, a milk wagon driver, accused of robbing several houses, is the subject of the experiment. If plans of Public Safety Director Schofield are carried out, Roller may see and hear himself repeating his story to a jury when his case is tried.

Roller was questioned after police warned him that anything he said would be used against him.

Several other prisoners were made to walk before the camera, to talk, and to show different views of their heads.

Police hoped to develop a system of recording individual mannerisms and peculiarities for the rogue's gallery.

Insurance Failure Blamed for Suicide

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 2.—Failure to collect insurance following a fire in his home is believed to have made Michael Krecsno, 65, of Morewood, a suburb of Mt. Pleasant, so despondent that he ended his life by firing a bullet into his chest and another into his head.

Krecsno chose a lonely spot in the St. Joseph's Cemetery to kill himself. His body was discovered several hours later.

Negro Faces Court In Theft of Auto

Edward Mitchell, 23, a Negro, of 6626 Morningside avenue, East End, was to have a hearing today in East End Police Court on a charge of stealing the automobile of H. D. Lauderbaugh, of Maple avenue extension, Coraopolis. Mitchell was arrested in the machine by Police Officers Nixon and Bigley at Margaretta and St. Clair streets, East End, police reported. He claimed the car had been given him by another man. Lauderbaugh told police the car was taken from Sixty-second and Butler streets.

Officer Beats Man, Says He Drew Knife

David Rudolph, 25, a Negro, of 3202 Penn avenue, was held by North Side police early today after, it was alleged, he drew a knife on Patrolman Thomas Murphy at East Ohio street and the Thirtieth street bridge. Murphy subdued the man and took him to Allegheny General Hospital, where 10 stitches were taken in his head, after which he was sent to North Side Station, and held as a suspicious person.

Walter Winchell
On Broadway

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.

Patrolling the Broadway Beat

THERE are few nights in the week when this paragraph-gatherer fails to frequent Eddie Cantor's dressing room in Mr. Ziegfeld's New Amsterdam Theater on Forty-second street, where the star of "Whoopee" invariably has a quip, nifty, gag, joke or anecdote to unfold. His dressing room is a rendezvous for most visiting players and celebs, and all one need do to be entertained is to start telling Eddie something and he usually is reminded of something equally engaging.

Most of the better gags have come out of the Cantor room, and if it isn't a joke he has to offer, then it is a heart throb about some unfortunate chorus girl or ham. The other night, however, just as the curtain fell, Cantor went through his desk and brought forth a typical letter from a stage-struck youth, who wrote in part: "My friends tell me I have talent as a comedian. Won't you be kind and tell me how to start on Broadway?"

ALREADY PRINTED

TO which Cantor forwarded a form letter, which went something like this:

"My dear Friend: Over 500 comedians with experience and talent are walking Broadway day and night looking for a job. And they know all the managers, too. They even have fat scrapbooks loaded with pretty writeups, but I wouldn't advise you to enter the show business where the ladder to success is as unsteady as Leon Errol's leg. However, if some one had written such counsel to me when I started, I wouldn't be a millionaire today, but I assure you I didn't make my coin acting. I happened to make friends with some of the country's shrewd bankers, who took a fancy to me, and put me in on the ground floor of Wall Street, before it became a basement. Use your own judgment. Cordially your, Eddie Cantor."

But, if you asked us, the recipient of such a letter will disregard the counsel, for the stage-struck boy or girl never learn until they are crushed and squelched by the bitterness that comes with striving to be clever in show business.

YEAR'S WORK VARIES

THEY must first weather the months of waiting for the so-called "break;" the officious office boys and 'phone operators; the "You're-not-the-type!" reply of most casters and managers, or the numerous disappointments even after a sketch, a play or a production has been launched. They must experience the smelly cellar dressing rooms, the third rate restaurants, the small town hotels, and the other rebuffs that all troupers know, and then, unless the boy or the girl has exceptional talent, he is forced into some staple profession or business where there might not be any glamour, but the wage envelope comes 52 weeks in the year.

There are but few Eddie Cantors and Al Jolsons and they will tell you that their coin came not from show business, but from shrewd investments. Even George White, Ziegfeld's only rival, as a revue sponsor, confesses he made most of his coin dabbling in stocks and bonds—and lost most of it, incidentally.

In sum, 52 weeks' bookings, as a wag once said, is not a route, it's a career!

WHERE NOT TO LOOK

AN interesting episode was revealed at the Central Park Casino the other evening by Sidney Solomon, its owner. When the fashionable rendezvous was being plotted they encountered the problem of acquiring a first-rate chef. The better food-mixers were tied up by long-time contracts, by either the Ritz, the Sherry-Netherlands, the Savoy-Plaza, or the other snooty hotels and restaurants with which New York abounds.

Finally, after great to-doing, Solomon hired the Savoy-Plaza's assistant chef, who now is listed among the town's worthies. The irony of the sitch-ee-ay-shun is that the Savoy-Plaza had contracted for a chef at $25,000 a year, who was imported from Paris. But things didn't pan out well, for want of a better pun. And after much litigation and a settlement the chef was returned to France without so much as a goodby.

The Savoy-Plaza, then, which had searched all over Europe for a good chef, never thought of looking in its own kitchen, where the Casino discovered the cook who now entices most of the local smart set to Central Park.

REAL LIFE DIFFERS

AMONG other observations that make paragraphs is the plight of the handsome lad in a show who plays the leading male love interest. In the piece he two-times the heroine (who adores him for three acts), and before the last asbestos drops he breaks her heart and runs off with another.

But to those of us "in on the know" it is most amusing.

Matters are reversed off-stage.

He really adores her, and has been walking around in circles for a fortnight, because she Can't Be Bothered.

UNDER the title "Hunk on Winchell" the current Variety reports:

"When the Walter Winchells moved into their new apartment on Fifty-fifth street last week, June (that's Mrs. Winchell) selected a special room as Walter's exclusive sleep den for his late hour nights. She shushed the Winchell kidlets when her husband dove in at his usual 8 o'clock the first morning. At noon, Walter's midnight, his sound-proof room was penetrated by so many high C's he awoke with but four hours of dreams and a grouch. And he just signed a long lease! Right next door, on the same floor, is the studio of the noted vocal instructor, Kinney. Among his pupils are Ona Munson, Irene Delroy and Marjorie Peterson. They love Winchell like you love carbolic acid. His notices being such nice ones. And Miss Munson is reported to have requested that an amplifier be started hereafter when she runs up the scale."

Amplifier or no amplifier. It would be swell if they only stayed on key!

SHORT ON FEW FACTS

ACCORDING to the usually infallible Paul Sweinhart of Mr. Zit's weekly, the New York drama oracles can be influenced in their opinions on the new entertainments and those that are not so entertaining. Mr. S. Reports: A story is being related of how one of the recently opened plays on Broadway came to get such poor notices from the critics. It seems that the author, up against the bar in a speakeasy one night, was introduced to Ward Morehouse, dramatic editor of the Sun, and immediately became facetious. Naturally this didn't rest very well with Morehouse, who related the story to several of the critics, each one of whom had passed it on that the author had been a little too flip with one of the craft. And what they did to that author's play was just too sad to tell about. It closed after three performances. So always be careful what you say to newspapermen.

To be reportorially accurate, Mr. Morehouse is not the Sun's dramatic editor and we do not believe that he would resort to such a trick, for his own play of last year, "Gentlemen of the Press," was hammered hard by all his conferes and kicked around until it was lost.

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

WELL I HAD A BIT OF LUCK AGAIN TODAY. PICKED ANOTHER STOCK THAT WENT UP LIKE NOBODY'S BUSINESS. THAT MAKES THREE GOOD ONES IN A ROW. AND ALL FOR $500 A WEEK. MY WORD, IT'S LIKE HANDING OUT THREE FIFTEEN CENT CIGARS FOR A NICKEL.
WHAT ABOUT THE EARLIER PART OF THE WEEK WHEN YOU PICKED THREE BAD ONES IN A ROW?
OH, I'LL ADMIT I HAD BAD LUCK EARLIER IN THE WEEK. AND THOSE MILLIONAIRES WHO TOSS ME A FEW NICKELS FOR WHAT I DO DIDN'T FORGET TO REMIND ME OF THOSE THREE BUSTS EITHER.
OH GEORGE WHY BE SO SILLY? THE IDEA OF CALLING $500 A WEEK A FEW NICKELS.

AND ANOTHER THING YOU OUGHT TO AVOID IS BEING SO SWELLED UP WITH IMPORTANCE SIMPLY BECAUSE YOU HAPPENED TO PICK A GOOD STOCK. YOU JUST CAN'T HELP DOING THAT NOW AND THEN. YOU'LL ADMIT YOU WERE WRONG OFTENER THAN YOU WERE RIGHT, WONT YOU?
WHADDYE MEAN BY WRONG? I'LL ADMIT THAT STOCKS—A FEW—I PICKED WENT DOWN, BUT THERE'S ALWAYS A NUMBER OF VERY GOOD REASONS TO EXPLAIN EVERYTHING.

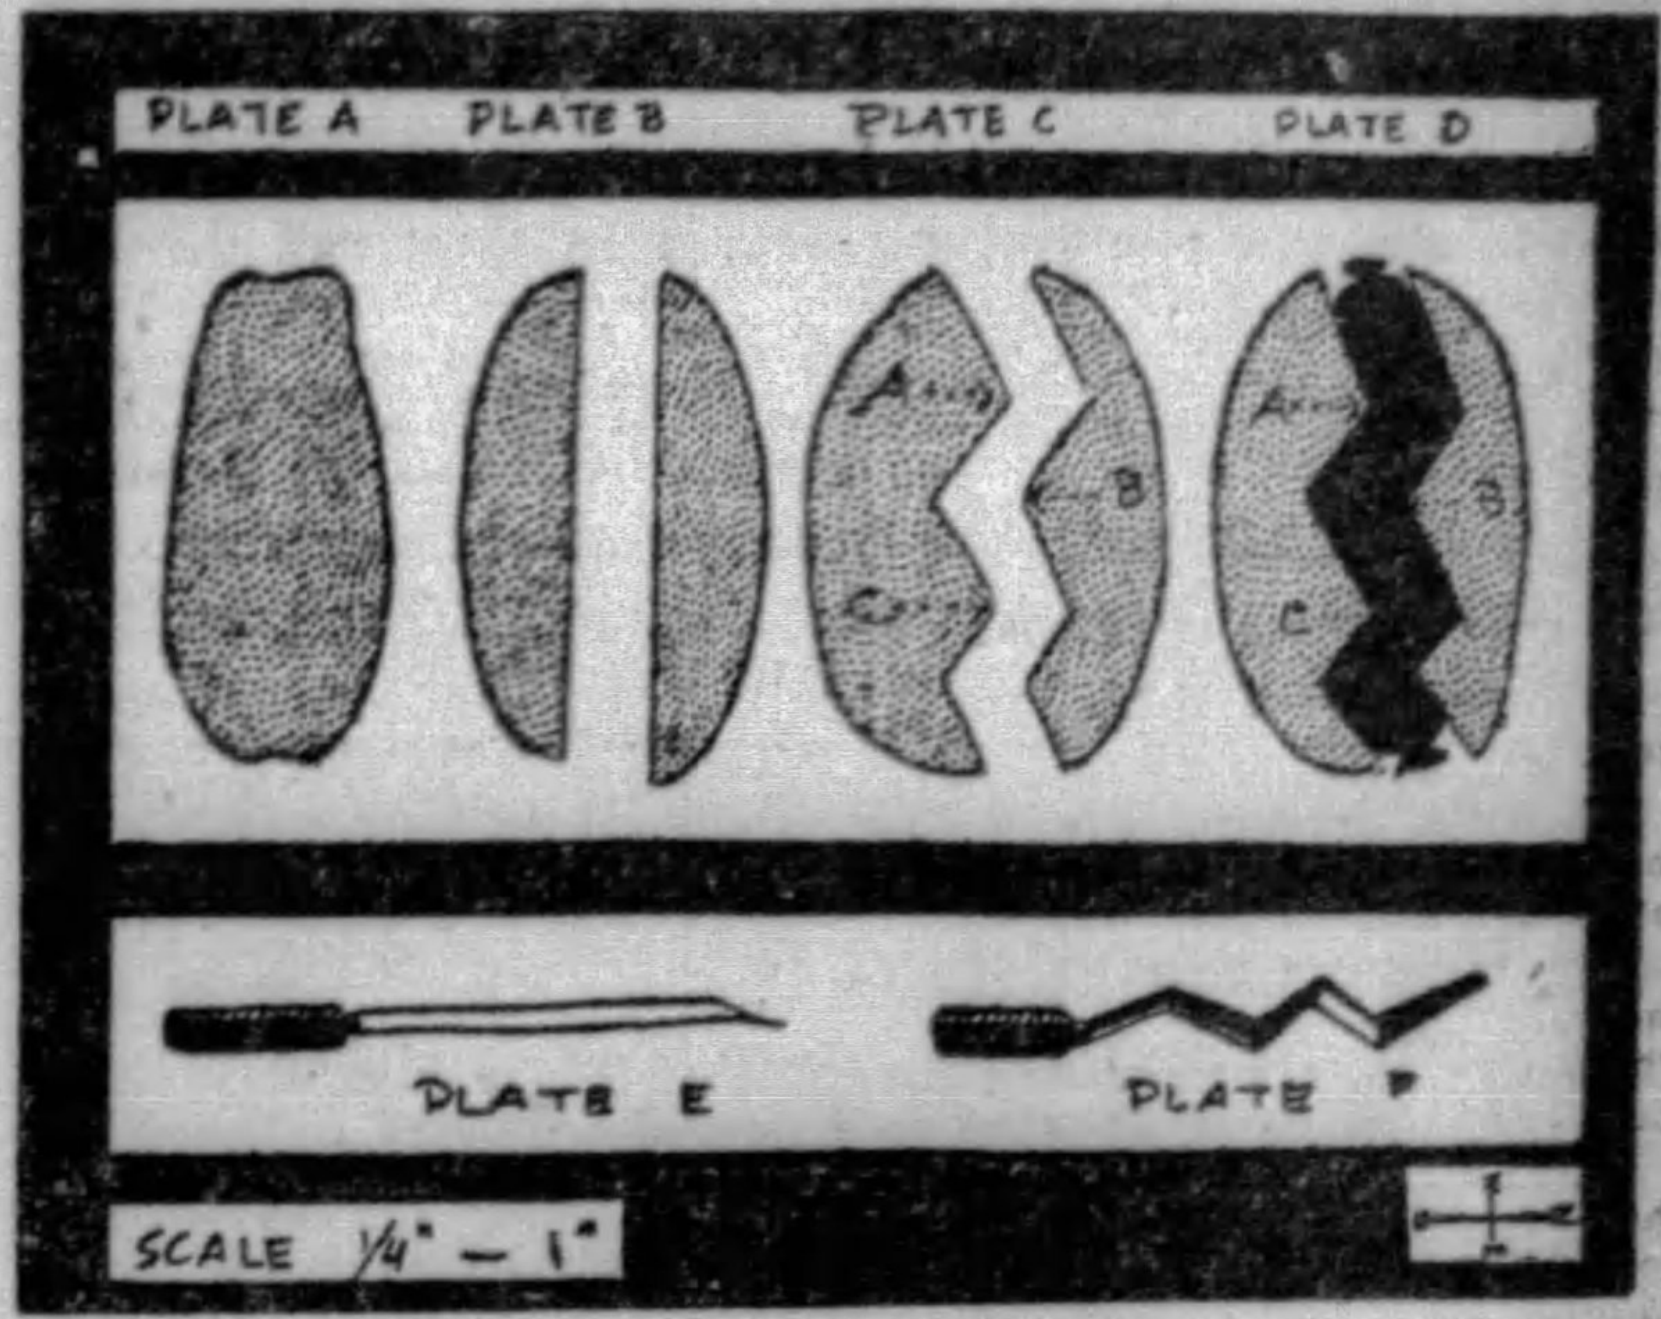
NON-SKID HOT DOG PERFECTED BY ENGINEER

Wins Scholarship Offered by Chicago Sausage Packers' Association



IT is with considerable pride that we present the winning blueprints in the nationwide contest to perfect a non-skid hot dog. The winner is Louis DeShera, 1730 Chase street, Chicago. You will (or should) recall that the Chicago Sausage Packers' Association recently called upon the engineers of the nation to work on this problem—and thus save thousands of dollars damage resulting annually from hot dogs slipping out of buns and soiling shirts and vests with mustard. The following data explains the above drawing—

PLATE "A"—Bun or natural housing for commercial hot dog.

PLATE "B"—Same bun cut by ordinary method—stream line straight through center causing gravity fault or skid surface.

PLATE "C"—Same bun cut by DeShera patent zig-zig blade, and showing non-leakage angles A, B and C.

PLATE "D"—Same bun with hot puppy ensconsed, showing death grip at points A, B and C and automatic gaskets formed by vacuum contact osmosis.

PLATE "E"—Modern knife used for halving bun on slippage basis.

PLATE "F"—DeShera Wonder-Knife which prevents side sway and drift, and retards squirt pressure.

Hoover Now Has Chance To Oppose Radio Trust

President Hoover early in 1924, when he was secretary of commerce, saw the dangers of a radio trust and warned against it. He said:

"The question of monopoly in radio communication must be squarely met. It is not conceivable that the American people will allow this new-born system of communication to fall exclusively into the power of any individual, group or combination."

MR. HOOVER IS NOW AT THE HEAD OF THE ADMINISTRATION AND CONFRONTED WITH THE OPPORTUNITY AND THE DUTY TO PUT THOSE HIGH PRINCIPLES INTO PRACTICE.

The drive for monopoly proceeds in every branch of radio—most flagrantly in the field of international communication.

The huge International Telephone and Telegraph Company, owning the Mackay Company and other cable lines, wants to buy the American and foreign sending and receiving stations of the Radio Corporation of America.

This means merger and elimination of competition between a cable and a radio company, forbidden by Section 17 of the radio act, and by the anti-trust laws.

So the corporations are down in Washington lobbying to have the radio act amended to allow the merger. They have not disclosed how they propose to get around the attorney general and the anti-trust laws.

The price the International Telephone and Telegraph has "tentatively" agreed to pay for the $15,000,000 physical properties of the Radio Corporation is $100,000,000. Most of the value acquired will represent the worth of trans-oceanic wave lengths licensed to the Radio Corporation by the United States government. Without these wave lengths the properties would not be worth one dollar of the $100,000,000.

Congress should under no condition repeal Section 17 of the radio act, with its wise provision for competition between radio and cable telegraph service.

The attorney general should examine the radio situation in the light of anti-trust laws.

For example, has Radio Corporation secured monopoly rights in a great number of foreign countries, making it impossible to establish a competing radio service from here?

What other understandings accompanied the "tentative" agreement of the I. T. and T., signed in Paris, to purchase the communication services of the Radio Corporation? To what extent do those understandings prevent any real competition between these parties?

The people have the right to count on the President and his departments to use the radio act and the anti-trust laws to protect us against the evils which the President himself warned against, five years ago.

Four months ago William Randolph Hearst said on this page:

"The citizenship of the nation needs another interstate commission to regulate the radio corporation, the telephone trust, the power trust and other interstate outlaws.

"Fortunately Senator Couzens has a bill before the Senate to create just such a commission, and until that bill is passed the government might try ENFORCING the laws which already exist."

Probably, however, this present Republican government is hopelessly in the grip of the predatory interests, and the only thing which will save the nation from limitless exploitation by these selfish private interests is the election of a progressive Democratic administration.

Testimony of Grundy Should Arouse Senators

Future tariff bills would be largely written by lobbyists if Joseph R. Grundy, Pennsylvania's leading lobbyist, could rewrite the Constitution of the United States.

Senators and Representatives in Congress would approve without change the tariff schedules framed for them by the Grundy School of Lobbyists.

And Senators from so-called "backward states"—Borah, of Idaho; Walsh, of Montana, and Norris, of Nebraska, for example—would be denied an equal voice in tariff making with those on Grundy's list of "Senators preferred."

This is the system of government by lobbyists which Mr. Grundy, as a witness before the Senate committee investigating the lobby evil, has had the candor, not to say the effrontery, seriously to advocate.

Under such a system all tariff bills would be framed by the lobbyists for special interests and voted without question by the duly elected representatives of the people in both Houses of Congress.

Replying to a direct question from Chairman Caraway as to whether he believed that those interested in a tariff bill should write it, Lobbyist Grundy replied:

"I think a great many mistakes in tariff writing would be avoided if the men could pass on the language, pass upon the punctuation, the harmony of the rates, and all of that as against the method which has been pursued in this tariff act."

By "the men" Mr. Grundy undoubtedly means himself and his fellow lobbyists. They would fix all the rates affecting the special interests they represented.

And Congress would adopt these rates and the mass of the people of the United States be compelled to pay them.

Here is a challenge that cuts athwart all party lines.

It is a challenge to popular government.

It is a challenge of special interests to the public interest.

It is a challenge from "the invisible government" to the government of the Constitution.

And the Senator and Representative in Congress who will not resent this challenge and who will not resolve to meet it standing, will show himself unfit to remain in Congress.

If the astonishing testimony of this chief of lobbyists does not open the eyes of the Senators and Representatives in Congress to the national danger and the national disgrace of the lobby evil, then the people should promptly elect a more loyal and more enlightened lot of Senators and Representatives.

The solution of such vital problems and possibly the salvation of the nation depends upon the return of our government from autocracy to democracy through the election of a progressive Democratic administration.

SELL high tariff short, TOO. There's ANOTHER form of security that will never overcome bear sentiment.

Consensus of opinion is now aligned against that brazenly inflated measure. The country is convinced it won't pay COMMON dividends and refuses to subscribe to the issue.

The Hawley Bill can't vindicate its exactions and therefore must be revised or retired.

Congress DARE not enact a statute so manifestly conceived to return election favors, and plainly designed to satisfy special interests, wire-jerkers and persuasive lobbies.

The Bingham-Eyanson disclosures attaint the entire Act with suspicion and justify agricultural claims of class favoritism and confiscatory discriminations.

CONNECTICUT "brass" sha'n't saddle eight hundred million dollars' worth of trick nutmegs on the farmer and the householder.

The fact that manufacturers in a SINGLE state conspired to raise living costs by almost a billion, brings America to the realization that Mr. Hawley and his confreres were prepared to extract from consumer incomes a greater sum than speculation's recent losses in Wall street.

Prosperity denies the necessity for such outrageous schedules.

Prevailing confidence and the ready cash position of business, after weathering the severest storm in financial history, prove that the average profits of our production units have been QUITE sufficient to maintain maximum wage levels, dividends and reserves.

Mr. Joseph Grundy doesn't think so. But if Mr. Grundy is aware of popular reception of his conclusions, he will appreciate the extent to which they destine the defeat of super-protection.

MR. GRUNDY, who pulls political strings for Pennsylvania pap-seekers, has been speaking his mind to the Senate Investigating Committee.

He resents the intrusion of trans-Mississippi influence in matters, which shouldn't concern "small Western States."

Mr. Grundy, besides suggesting Republican platform planks, feels called upon to rebuke the "indelicacy" of Messrs, Walsh, Borah and Caraway, as expressed in their opposition to pocket-picking monopolies.

Their particular constituencies shouldn't break in on a game to which they contribute so FEW chips.

It hardly behooves PARVENU communities to criticise their elders. The East, according to our venerable lobbyist, is exclusively entitled to shake federal plum trees.

And mining, lumbering, food and fiber raising regions, show scant respect for economic etiquette when they demur.

MR. GRUNDY regrets that the American system of government impartially distributes Senatorial authority among the 48 commonwealths, thereby confounding the pet aims and lofty purposes of capital and fabrication: "It's a tragedy."

After reading Mr. Grundy's views, his employers and associates will certainly CONCUR in that observation.

If anything were needed to complete the mess that Senator Bingham started, friend Grundy has furnished the missing ingredient.

THERE stands the CO-ASSASSIN of high-tariff hopes. It's fool talk, like his, that produces schisms in the national establishment, sets section against section and inspires party splits.

This is his own swan song. His usefulness to Steel, Coke and Company hereby resigns. HE TALKS TOO MUCH—a fatal disqualification for secret service.

And that means "the end of Solomon Grundy."

OUTSIDE the first rain is falling.

All these months Summer has burned above the Sierra. By day the heat poured down in a white, molten wave. Rocks, earth and inert trees were steeped in glare. By night the air was bright and still, sparkling like mica with the dry light of the moon.

A bright, hard earth, brittle as colored glass . . . an earth that lay still, sleeping under its brilliant shell.

Until the rain. But now the rain is falling—

All morning there was a hush, a darkening, a feeling that something was about to happen. The air was no longer meaningless space through which heat poured. It became mysterious, pregnant, heavy with secret purpose.

And now the rain is falling. The rain is falling on the powdery dust that yesterday rose in puffs of smoke before my feet. It is falling on the tall pines that have stood, propped, like painted trees, against the taut, hot sky. It is falling on the miles of chaparral . . . on the dry arroyos . . .

And the earth is answering.

It is answering as a great, lovely body answers, rousing from its sleep.

It quivers beneath the rain . . . relaxes . . . opens its million mouths.

The rain falls on the softening earth with a swift, rushing patter and the air fills with fragrance. It is the fragrance of the blossoms that fell in the spring, the summer pollen, the gum and withered leaves and ripened berries of the fall, all giving up their essence under the falling rain. The air is flooded with a pungent freshness.

At first the rain comes like small, brilliant beads which roll, unbroken, from the hard, baked crust . . . unbroken, like slow, bitter tears which do not touch the soul. And then it quickens, spreads itself into a soft, gray web which wraps and clings . . . then pelts, in strong, quick shafts that pierce the crust, that penetrate down to the secret heart of earth.

Standing there, in the falling rain, your wilted senses drinking in its loveliness . . . something passes out of you.

And you feel, suddenly, how much you and Earth are one. How the same breath moves through you . . . how the same storms pass over you . . . how you both need rain.

The rain falls and falls. The earth softens. The secret heart of the earth softens and perfume rises from it like sympathy . . . like a wise tenderness . . .

LIKE THAT WISE TENDERNESS WHICH ONLY COMES AFTER THE SOUL HAS KNOWN BITTER DROUGHT AND BLASTING STORM.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

THERE was a Scotchman in a taxi wreck in Kansas City. The cab got started at the top of a high hill, and it crashed against a brick wall a mile or two straight down the hill. There was seven police inquiries, four coroner's probes and a federal investigation. The Scotch passenger woke up in the hospital and asked the probers:

"How did ye find the meter?" he asked.

"It was turned down and had registered 35 cents on the last trip."

"Good," says the Scotchman. "I reached through and shut it off when he told me we were not stopping for two miles. But the wicked driver cheated me a wee bit. It was only 30 cents when I started to reach for the meter."

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

3. BLOOD.

"THE blood, which is the life thereof," says the Bible, and we may best go on to our examination of the life in a man's body by considering the nature and functions of the blood.

Blood is not a simple lifeless fluid like water or milk; it is, in biological language, an active living "tissue." One-third of its volume consists of living cells. The cells float in a watery medium, and blood as a whole is therefore a fluid, but it is nevertheless quite as much a tissue as cartilage or bone—it is simply a liquid tissue.

H. G. Wells.

The cells of blood are of two kinds, red and white, and it is to the presence of vast quantities of the former kind that the red color of blood is due. A human red blood cell is a disc about seven-thousandths of a millimeter across, about one-quarter as thick at the rim, and rather thinner in the middle, or, putting it into English measures, 2,500 red blood corpuscles side by side would measure about an inch.

It has no nucleus, inside the cell there is an apparently homogeneous fluid in which no structural elements can be discerned, containing as one of its chemical constituents a red pigment known as haemoglobin. The whole is bounded by a membrane, so delicate that it cannot be seen even with the highest powers of the microscope and which is believed to consist of a double layer of fatty molecules arranged side by side in a regular way.

The white blood cells are of several different kinds, but they are all alike in being a little larger than the red cells, in havig conspicuous nuclei, and, like isolated cells of a tissue-culture, capable of a slow change of shape. The cells are present in enormous numbers; a cubic millimeter of blood contains about ten thousand white and six million red.

The red cells are concerned with the transport of oxygen and the white cells include among their many duties that of combating bacterial parasites.

The remaining two-thirds is water, carrying a great and varied assortment of chemical compounds. This water, with its dissolved substances, is called the plasma; it forms a clear, colorless fluid in which the blood-cells float. Plasma is the non-living part of blood, but it is nevertheless by no means the least important, for it is as solutions in the plasma that the great majority of transported substances are carried by the blood.

In the first place blood fetches and carries for all other tissues. It brings them supplies of oxygen and of various kinds of food they require, and it takes away and eliminates various unwanted products of their activity. Of these functions one—oxygen-transport—is performed by the red cells; the remainder are undertaken by the plasma. Dissolved in the plasma are all the many and complex food supplies that cells need, and the waste products are simply shed by the cells into it.

A cell needs not only fuel and oxygen to work, but its delicate mechanism is acutely susceptible to the presence or absence of certain mineral salts in the surrounding fluid.

A minute trace of calcium must, for example, be present if our muscle-cells are to obey our will. Withdraw that and they will begin a rhythmic twitching. There is a whole range of such accessory substances in the blood needed for the proper working of the body.

Swarming in the air we breathe, lurking on the solid objects we touch, and even on the surface of our own skin, are the spores of minute bacteria, many of them ruthless parasites, waiting for a chance to work us mischief.

The very efficiency with which blood performs its normal ministering function makes it the most attractive and stimulating environment for these parasites. Many of them are extremely troublesome and ungracious guests.

Unless they are defeated and repelled they produce the colds, influenzas, fevers, epidemic diseases, typhoid, smallpox, and so forth, that disturb and may overthrow the central government altogether.

The resistance, once skin or membrane, is pierced, goes on almost wholly in the blood.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—This is the story of two princes of royal blood and one of those American good fellows—a rich bachelor who knocks about queer corners of the globe. He met them at a dinner party in France several years ago. They had the appeal of high-mettled young men whose blood ran swift.

Descending from a truly royal family of noble lineage, but suddenly impoverished, they were, as usual, unable to make a living. They had polished manners, were as agreeable as two Newfoundland puppies, and possessed all the amiability of the natural and royal moochers.

The nobles had heard of America and had their dreams of rehabilitating the family household. They had heard, too, it was pretty soft for any sort of princes, grand dukes and even for some of the scorbutic offal of a decaying aristocracy. But they were broke—stony!

This is where the rich bachelor came in. They confided their ambitions. They knew something of oil through the wells that had been drilled on their vast estates in more prosperous times. The bachelor operated oil properties in the southwest. And he gambled on the princelings.

They were staked to a student cabin on a liner, furnished with railroad transportation and a sum of money to last them until they donned overalls in the oil field. Cast among the hurly burly of seasoned workers, their metal proved so much slag. Their hollowed nervous temples throbbed with despair. Oh, deah!

About the only form of manual labor they ever accomplished was carrying silk parasols over pretty ladies at Biarritz. They buckled under the strain of a rough world and became whiners, then cadgers. They even gypped a faithful old darkey assigned as a servant. They went Hollywood!

Handsome, and bearing family crests, many doors in the movie colony opened. They wooed and won two reigning beauties and lived high until discarded. "I got as even as I cared," said the bachelor, "when the young nobles sailed home again in the steerage."

New York, as no other American city, has a "feel." Considering its nondescript, conglomerate population, this is puzzling. Most cities, drawing citizenry from all parts of the globe, have little of the frazzled term dubbed personality. New York has it plus.

Every visitor is gripped by the kaleidoscopic coloring of Fifth avenue, Broadway, Wall street, the Bowery and other thoroughfares into which the cross currents cascade with rushing madness. Save for a few residential streets of brown stone fronts, no street is the same.

Each is touched by varying moods. From the sleepy quiet of Washington Square, Fifth avenue rolls northward into a somber loft district, then a smart shopping district, a de luxe hotel zone, a Millionaires' Row, and ends abruptly like a bursting skyrocket in a babbling Ghetto.

Broadway, too, has chameleon qualities, changing swiftly from the roaring Battery to the peaceful Bronx. The first impression of New York is one of utter diffidence. Yet when the shell which is its casing is cracked, it becomes as warm, soft and pliable as the yolk of a freshly laid egg.

It is the New Yorker who pans his city with the greatest zeal. He somehow finds an unholy ecstasy in handing the metropolis the raspberry—especially among strangers. He is, however, merely expressing inversely his assurance of civic superiority. The city's boosting comes chiefly from outsiders; yet no city has such a strangle-hold on its population.

A talented actress is credited with never wearing a pair of silk stockings more than once. If she dresses several times a day a new pair is worn on each occasion and discarded. But if her press agent, who sends us the information, expects to see her name here, he's going to need spy-glasses. Our humor is grisly at times.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

INSTEAD of trying to think of mean things to say about someone why not think of some of the good qualities and speak about them.

Have you ever tried to analyze the spirit which prompts you to tell of the weaknesses of persons instead of the strong and favorable qualities you find? There must be something wrong with you if your mind gathers and then your tongue circulates stories of the frailities of your friends as well as those of mere acquaintances.

You don't always think along right lines yourself. If you did you would have more charity for others.

Those who tell the little derogatory stories about others are often more to blame for not being right than those they are talking about.

If you were clean-minded, free from the filth which promotes evil gossip, you would not care so much for scandal.

Why not look at other's lives trying to find the good—the commendable.

Looking for evil creates a desire to locate evil where it cannot be found.

Are you this sort of person?
